Easing Of Tight Money Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford heard more than a dozen of America's leading economists urge Thursday that the federal government ease its tight money policy in a move to bring down record high interest rates.

Ford didn't say immediately, however, if he would pressure the Federal Reserve Board to relax its restrictions on money available for lending.

At the conclusion of a day-long White House conference of economists, congressmen and government officials, Ford also was told there is a wide divergence of opinion on wage and price controls.

The President, who convened the session as the first in a series leading to his economic summit conference this month, hailed the meeting as a success in the search for cures for America's economic ills.

But there was a suggestion of a middle ground on the issue — increased monitoring and jawboning by the new Council of Wage and Price Stability. Some of the economists believe a "jawboning effort could work effectively," said Arthur Okun of the Brookings Institution in summarizing the panel's deliberation.

Ford made no specific commitments but gave a strong indication of the course he prefers when he said, "The American people . . . want us to take those actions I believe that fall within the middle ground of the spectrum."

Okun said that "at least half expressed the opinion we have reached or are rapidly approaching the time for a change" in the tight money policy.

The economists are "not talking about easy money," Okun said, but rather about a reduction of the restraint that has produced record high interest rates.

There were several distinct dissents to the monetary policy relaxation, but Okun said the "breadth of agreement . . . was striking to me."

Some of the economists urged tax increases, others called for tax cuts. Almost all agreed the line should be held on federal spending, but there was a split on exactly where cuts should come.

Ford opened the meeting by telling the panel the American people want the unvarnished truth about inflation and "they are sick and tired of having politics played with their pocketbooks."

Perhaps the best indication of Ford's approach to the nation's economic problems came in his spontaneous response to an economist's suggestion that the country needs "positive thinking."

After Walter Hoadley of the Bank of America called for upbeat thinking to counter "a lack of confidence in the future," Ford volunteered the opinion that Americans can't indulge in positive thinking unless they first have the truth.

At the first of a dozen sessions leading up to a Sept. 27-28 summit conference on inflation, a consensus emerged among economic experts that a depression is unlikely to develop but that output is apt to be flat, sluggish or even down a bit over the next 18 months.

A sizable number of conference participants representing business, finance, labor and the academic profession — all of them professional economists — also called for a gradual easing of the Federal Reserve Board's tight money policy that has produced record-high interest rates.

Many of them conservatives as well as liberals, also recommended that serious consideration be given to a public service employment program in anticipation of an early rise in joblessness. Improved unemployment compensation programs also met with considerable support.

At the Capitol, Senate Democrats put Ford on notice that they are ready to keep Congress in session for the rest of the year to deal with the economic problems. At the same time, their leaders said it is up to the White House to make a specific move if any action is to be taken this year.

Drought Area Loans Stalled

By EDWARD W. HOWARD
The Associated Press

Because applications failed to contain required letters, low-cost loans for 40 drought-stricken Nebraska counties have been delayed.

Gov. J. James Exon sent a sharply-worded telegram to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz Thursday, complaining about the delays.

"While we have been working closely with our congressional and federal officials since July 25, we have not been advised by anyone of anything further that needs to be done and therefore assume all is in order for your approval," Exon's telegram said.

However, a spokesman in Sen. Carl Curtis' office said the delay could be traced to the lack of required letters from banks in the communities involved.

Required By Law

"The law requires that these applications include letters from the local banks, with the banks verifying that they cannot meet the further credit needs of their customers," according to Don Shasteen, administrative assistant to Curtis.

Shasteen said Ken Bowen, head of the Farmers Home Administration in Nebraska, had thought the application could go through without the letters.

Bowen was not immediately available for comment.

Glenn Kreuscher, director of the state Agriculture Department, said "the first I heard that those letters were needed was when Don Shasteen talked to me this morning."

'Recalled No Word'

Kreuscher, and officials in Exon's office, said they had obsolutely no word on why the loans were delayed.

"You asume that if they don't tell you something is wrong, that things are being processed," an Exon administration official said.

"If they just asked me I would have pursued it myself," Kreuscher said.

Asked why Bowen apparently thought the loans could go through without the specifically required letters, both Shasteen and Kreuscher declined to comment.

Will Open Jam

Until Thursday morning, Exon administration officials, including Kreuscher, believed they had done everything necessary to secure the loans.

"I can tell you that the log jam will be broken, probably by Friday," Shasteen said Thursday.

In his telegram to Butz, Exon cited the extensive documentation provided in the applications, and noted that the situation has deteriorated since the loans, available at 4 per cent interest, were requested.

Exon cited the drought and said:

"Now we have been further hard hit in some areas by an early killing frost.

Home Hit Hard

"The serious drought, the devastating situation in livestock prices, decreasing grain prices and now the early frost have hit unbelievably hard at our farmers and ranchers. At the same time they are facing ever increasing interest costs.

"We need the legitimate assistance your department can give us now and are understandably discouraged by endless delays," Exon said.

Shasteen said some of the applications had been sent back to Nebraska, the letters obtained, and then returned to Washington.

Never Informed

All indications were that, until Thursday, Exon had never been informed that the loans were held up because of the failure to include the letters.

"The governor can speak for himself," Kreuscher said, "but I can tell you he did what he was supposed to do. He forwarded the applications, that were supposed to be complete when they got to him, with his recommendation."

"No one told him, or me, until Thursday morning, that anything was wrong," Kreuscher said.

Last Minute Appeal Delays Possible Eviction Of Couple

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

On Thursday bureaucracy came to the aid of an elderly Lincoln couple being threatened by bureaucracy.

And as a result, the Martin Lindells are going to be allowed to continue living in the house where they've lived for more than two decades. At least, for a little while longer they can live there.

The city housing administrator's office was supposed to have declared the Lindell's home, at 618 S. 19th, unfit to live in Friday, but an eleventh hour appeal from the Legal Aid Society halted the potential eviction.

Lindells Puzzled

While Legal Aid attorneys, VISTA workers and Jim Hait, the city's housing relocation officer, bargain with other officials for additional time, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lindell can't quite understand what it's all about.

Lindell, who is 81, and his wife Eva, 71, live in a two-story white house in a neighborhood sprouting apartment complexes, lots of parked cars and older, deteriorating houses.

But the Lindells' house sticks out.

He has covered the structure with biblical verses, printed in bold, black letters, earning the house the simple title of "the Jesus House."

Both Lindells have vowed not to move to another house or an apartment, which would be provided by the Housing Authority should their home be "red-tagged" — declared unfit to live in — by the city. The red tag on a house means that people living inside have to move out, or face eviction.

Lindell, who uses a crutch to help him get around, said the sheriff would have to drag him away.

'What Right?'

"I don't see what right the city has to come in here and put us out of our home," he said.

"It's been this way (speaking of the condition) for years. Why are they bothering us now?" he asked.

The neighbors "have been after me for three to four years to repaint it," he said gesturing to the people living next door and across the street in a new apartment complex.

City housing consultant Garrett Huenick checked the house July 29, after numerous complaints were made to the housing administrator's office, the mayor's office and the Community Development Department.

He denied that the religious sayings prompted the inspection.

Violations Cited

Huenick said he found a number of violations of the city housing code.

In an Aug. 6 letter to the Lindells he listed those violations, which included: insufficient electrical outlets, no hot water heater, no furnace, deteriorating roof, rotten wood around windows, excessive rubbish and deterioration of the foundation.

Also, Huenick cited the use of several space heaters, which he said constituted a fire hazard.

Huenick said the house has deteriorated to a point where it would not be economically advisable to make the repairs needed to bring the house up to standards.

On the basis of his inspection, Huenick officially reported that an "emergency" existed and two days later Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf signed an order declaring the emergency.

That order allows the city to put a placard on the house, declaring it unfit to live in. The placard has not been affixed to the house, however.

Handling Criticized

Some working on the case agree that the house violates the housing code, but they question the way the case has been handled.

Attorney Gale Pokorny of Legal Aid said bureaucratic machinery is usually laborious and protracted "yet, within two days (from Aug. 6 to Aug. 8) they decide an emergency exists."

In Thursday's appeal to Housing Administrator Carl Kopines, Pokorny charged that the city was singling out the Lindells and said the city had not shown that an emergency exists.

Kopines seemed somewhat baffeled at the action, since, he said, "We've kept them fully informed all the way along."

It is still not known whether a hearing on the case will be held, even though the city code provides that any person affected by the mayor's order "shall be afforded a hearing as soon as possible." Kopines said he will have to check with the city attorney.

Pokorny promised to go to court and seek a temporary restraining order to prevent the city from evicting the couple if the appeal is not processed.

Repairs Promised

In lifting the Friday deadline for "red-tagging" the house, Kopines said his office received a commitment that repairs will be made.

Kopines and Community Development Director Leo Scherer say the city has "bent over backwards" on the case and voiced concern for the Lindells' safety in the house.

VISTA worker Pam Snively maintained that a forced move would endanger the Lindells' health more than continued occupancy of the building would.

In the meantime, Snively said she will try to marshall volunteers to help fix up the house.

Changing Name Costs $113,000

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

At a time when state and national leaders are urging restraint in spending, the State Department of Labor is planning possibly the costliest name-change in the state's history.

Labor Department officials acknowledged Thursday that a $113,000 media campaign is scheduled to begin Oct. 1 to inform Nebraska citizens that the Labor Department henceforth will be known as Job Service of Nebraska and that it offers free job placement.

Officials said the campaign is completely paid for by the federal government and will occur simultaneously in 14 other states across the nation.

Some Grumbles

The campaign, which will be conducted by an Omaha advertising agency, PRA Inc., has a number of state officials grumbling about it being a waste of money.

One official, who asked not to be identified, said, "I think they'd accomplish more good if they just handed the money out to the unemployed."

State Labor Commissioner Jerry Chizek and Don Haase, associate director of employment service, defended the program's worth, saying it is needed to make the public more aware of the help the agency can provide.

Mrs. Rhonda Burton, the department's public relations person, said a pilot campaign in Virginia increased the number of job placements in that state by 30%.

'All Appropriate Steps'

Chizek noted that legally he is required to take "all appropriate steps to reduce and prevent unemployment."

"If this program can help accomplish that, then I've got to say, 'Well done,' " he said. "If anyone is speaking against this program, maybe they're the ones with the problem."

Asked if he felt the program is necessary, Chizek replied, "Who's to say what is necessary? Maybe we could lay off half our staff and do our work — is that necessary?

"I think we ought to be honored to have this opportunity."

The campaign, properly titled Job Service Employer Relation and Job Development Public Communication Project, has a $113,000 budget for the year. According to Mrs. Burton, PRA Inc. was awarded the contract for the campaign after bidders were asked what they could do for $113,000.

Five bids were received and one was disqualified before PRA Inc was awarded the job in June.

Here is the media budget provided by Mrs. Burton: television, $33,000; radio, $36,000; newspapers, $11,000; magazines, $5,000; and outdoor ads, $7,000.

Among other things, that money will go for full page ads in the regional editions of Time, Newsweek, Sports Illustrated, U.S. News & World Report and T.V. Guide.

Paperweights, Cups

The balance, roughly $20,000, will cover the costs of "collateral material" which includes slide shows, production costs, brochures and novelty items, such as paperweights and coffee cups which bear the Job Service of Nebraska emblem.

Haase said the campaign is intended to change the public image of the agency from a negative one to positive one, or from unemployment to employment.

Although the agency's function is not being changed, Haase said the public should know that the agency does not have only less desirable jobs available.

The agency made 50,000 placements during fiscal 1973-74, and Chizek and Haase think that figure could be increased significantly.

They admitted it will be difficult to gauge the campaign's success.

84% Of Civilians Fail Wallet Test

New York (UPI) — Who's more honest, the civilian or the cop?

According to a test involving susposedly lost wallets, the man in uniform is more trustworthy than the average man in the street.

The test showed that 84% of civilians failed to turn in wallets they found in the street. In addition, one of the wallets turned in was missing the money it once contained.

In contrast, in a similar integrity test involving randomly selected police officers, 29% of the men in blue failed to return the "lost" wallets to their owners. And all of the wallets returned by officers contained the money they originally had.

Patrolmen's Benevolent Association President Ken McFeeley said at a news conference Thursday that the test of civilian honesty was conducted for one week last month by an independent consulting group.

Fifty wallets, each containing identification and $9 in cash, were dropped at 10 locations around the city. Cameras trained on the sites recorded the public response.

McFeeley said only eight wallets were returned — and the cash had been removed from one of them.

Foreign Orders Up

Washington (AP) — Foreign orders for the drought-damaged U.S. corn crop continued to climb, mainly because of a further increase in purchases by the European Common Market, new export figures by the Agriclture Department showed Thursday.

The export listings showed corn orders by all foreign countries totaled nearly 25.2 million metric tons more, or 991.2 million bushels, as of Aug. 25. The figures represent a two-thirds gain in two weeks.

On Aug. 11, a day before a new USDA report showed 1974 corn production would be down sharply, export orders stood at 15.5 million tons or about 612 million bushels.

Admiral: Soviets Pose Threat To Mediterranean

By The Associated Press

The new commander of the U.S. 6th Fleet warned on Thursday that Russia is posing an increasing threat in the Mediterranean.

"Today we can defend ourselves at any time and from any attack," Vice Adm. Frederick C. Turner said at a change of command ceremony aboard the aircraft carrier Independence off Gaeta, Italy. "But I don't know about the future."

Turner replaced Vice Adm. Daniel J. Murphy, who has been reassigned to Washington to head antisubmarine warfare operations.

Adm. Means Johnston, commander in chief of allied forces Southern Europe, seconded Turner's apprehensions, saying: "We must keep control of the Mediterranean . . . The Russian bear has learned to swim."

Stressing the "inexorable build-up of Soviet seapower, both in numbers and in sophistication," Johnston said it was difficult to conceive of a purely defensive role for the growing Soviet Mediterranean fleet.

"We can only conclude, however reluctantly, that the primary Soviet naval mission is interdiction," he said.

Drought Area Loans Stalled

Because applications failed to contain required letters, low-cost loans for 40 drought-stricken Nebraska counties have been delayed.

The campaign, which will be conducted by an Omaha advertising agency, PRA Inc., has a number of state officials grumbling about it being a waste of money.

One official, who asked not to be identified, said, "I think they'd accomplish more good if they just handed the money out to the unemployed."

State Labor Commissioner Jerry Chizek and Don Haase, associate director of employment service, defended the program's worth, saying it is needed to make the public more aware of the help the agency can provide.

Mrs. Rhonda Burton, the department's public relations person, said a pilot campaign in Virginia increased the number of job placements in that state by 30%.

'All Appropriate Steps'

Chizek noted that legally he is required to take "all appropriate steps to reduce and prevent unemployment."

"If this program can help accomplish that, then I've got to say, 'Well done,'" he said. "If anyone is speaking against this program, maybe they're the ones with the problem."

Asked if he felt the program is necessary, Chizek replied, "Who's to say what is necessary? Maybe we could lay off half our staff and do our work — is that necessary?

"I think we ought to be honored to have this opportunity."

The campaign, properly titled Job Service Employer Relation and Job Development Public Communication Project, has a $113,000 budget for the year. According to Mrs. Burton, PRA Inc. was awarded the contract for the campaign after bidders were asked what they could do for $113,000.

Five bids were received and one was disqualified before PRA Inc. was awarded the job in June.

Here is the media budget provided by Mrs. Burton: television, $33,000; radio, $36,000; newspapers, $11,000; magazines, $5,000; and outdoor ads, $7,000.

Among other things, that money will go for full page ads in the regional editions of Time, Newsweek, Sports Illustrated, U.S. News & World Report and T.V. Guide.

Paperweights, Cups

The balance, roughly $20,000, will cover the costs of "collateral material" which includes slide shows, production costs, brochures and novelty items, such as paperweights and coffee cups which bear the Job Service of Nebraska emblem.

Haase said the campaign is intended to change the public image of the agency from a negative one to positive one, or from unemployment to employment.

Although the agency's function is not being changed, Haase said the public should know that the agency does not have only less desirable jobs available.

The agency made 50,000 placements during fiscal 1973-74, and Chizek and Haase think that figure could be increased significantly.

They admitted it will be difficult to gauge the campaign's success.

84% Of Civilians Fail Wallet Test

New York (UPI) — Who's more honest, the civilian or the cop?

According to a test involving susposedly lost wallets, the man in uniform is more trustworthy than the average man in the street.

The test showed that 84% of civilians failed to turn in wallets they found in the street. In addition, one of the wallets turned in was missing the money it once contained.

In contrast, in a similar integrity test involving randomly selected police officers, 29% of the men in blue failed to return the "lost" wallets to their owners. And all of the wallets returned by officers contained the money they originally had.

Patrolmen's Benevolent Association President Ken McFeeley said at a news conference Thursday that the test of civilian honesty was conducted for one week last month by an independent consulting group.

Fifty wallets, each containing identification and $9 in cash, were dropped at 10 locations around the city. Cameras trained on the sites recorded the public response,

McFeeley said only eight wallets were returned — and the cash had been removed from one of them.

Foreign Orders Up

Washington (AP) — Foreign orders for the drought-damaged U.S. corn crop continued to climb, mainly because of a further increase in purchases by the European Common Market, new export figures by the Agricltuere Department showed Thursday.

The export listings showed corn orders by all foreign countries totaled nearly 25.2 million metric tons more, or 991.2 million bushels, as of Aug. 25. The figures represent a two-thirds gain in two weeks.

On Aug. 11, a day before a new USDA report showed 1974 corn production would be down sharply, export orders stood at 15.5 million tons or about 612 million bushels.

Ford Urged To Halt Federal Foot-Dragging

....On Northern School Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The authors of a new civil rights report Thursday challenged President Ford to order a crackdown on alleged school discrimination in the North.

Otherwise, they said, the private study which sharply criticized federal foot-dragging may provide the ammunition for a new wave of law suits against the government and school districts in 32 northern and western states.

"An early test for the Ford administration is whether it is prepared to respond candidly and firmly to evidence that its own officials are not living up to their legal duties to protect the rights of children," said William L Taylor, director of the Center for National Policy Review.

At the White House presidential press secretary Jerald F. terHorst said that Ford, to his knowledge, was not aware of the report

"He is very much concerned with equal treatment and justice for all Americans," terHorst said

If the Departments of Justice and Health, Education and Welfare were not aware of the President's feelings about civil rights, he said, they would be made aware in the future.

The 117-page report, entitled "Justice Delayed & Denied," charged that HEW has failed to require racial school desegregation in the North although its files "literally bulge with documented evidence of violation of laws."

The three-year study by the center drew upon HEW's own investigative files from 84 districts. Some of the records were obtained through a freedom of information law suit.

Of the 84 compliance reviews, the report said, 52 remain open and unresolved although they have been around an average of more than three years.

Only four of the cases reached the point where districts were cited for discriminating against blacks: Mount Vernon, N.Y.; Boston; Wichita, Kan., and Ferndale, Mich

Only Ferndale has had its federal education funds cut off, and Taylor said that some federal revenue-sharing funds now are flowing to that small district.

The HEW cases still open are sprinkled through the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah and Wisconsin.

The report charged that HEW generally had chosen to investigate relatively small school districts but stayed out of the large cities such as Philadelphia, Jersey City. Los Angeles, San Diego, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee and Cleveland where most of the 2.8 million black and 2 million Spanish-speaking children outside the South live.

The HEW review districts include only 9 per cent of the black children in the North, the report said, while 10 per cent attend all-black schools and 70 per cent attend majority black schools.

Peter E. Holmes, director of HEW's office for civil rights, said the report failed to note "a number of major actions" undertaken by the government.

Similar reviews are planned in Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles and Houston, he said.

Holmes said that significant gains also have been made through the use of emergency school aid funds in the North and West.

The center's report said it found in HEW files instances of apparent discrimination in assignment of pupils to segregated schools, hiring and assignment of minority teachers, and classification and assignment of pupils to classrooms.

Taylor blamed the problems on political restraints during the Nixon administration, poor investigative work, bureaucratic mismanagement, and unrealistic legal standards required by the HEW general counsel's office.

Most of the instances of alleged discrimination noted in the report could be corrected with little or no increased busing of pupils, he said.

The report said that Atlantic City, Hoboken, and Passaic, N.J.: South Bend and Fort Wayne, Ind.; Toledo and Dayton, Ohio; Utica, N.Y.; and Racine, Wis.. appear to be examples of districts practicing this sort of discrimination ruled illegal by the Supreme Court earlier this year in a Denver case

President, Wife Appear To Disagree On Abortion

Washington (UPI) — Both President and Mrs. Ford were on record Thursday that abortion must be available as a therapeutic remedy in cases where pregnancy results from rape or incest, or where the mother is seriously ill.

Neither believes in abortion on demand.

But whether that represents a uniform policy of the first family is open to question. There is a degree of conflict between the statements of the President's lady and later "clarifications" of press aides.

Mrs. Betty Ford had previously said she favored abortions for certain situations involving unmarried teen-agers. At her first full-scale news conference Wednesday, she said her views on abortion "definitely" were closer to those of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller than to those of Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y.

Rockefeller, Ford's nominee for vice president, while he was governor of New York vetoed a bill which would have sharply restricted New York's liberal abortion-on-demand laws.

Buckley, on the other hand, is sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment to overturn the Supreme Court ruling that a state cannot regulate abortions during the first six months of pregnancy.

Mrs. Ford's answer caused some stir in anti-abortion circles, particularly religious groups. She was supported by groups favoring birth control to meet the world population problems.

Early Thursday, her press aide, Helen McCain Smith, told reporters Mrs. Ford believes in therapeutic abortion in cases of rape or incest but opposes abortion on demand.

Shortly thereafter, presidential press secretary J. F. terHorst said the President shares his wife's view that abortion must be available as a remedy in certain cases.

But he said Ford has long believed that the matter of abortion should be left to the states, and said the President favors Buckley's amendment to overturn the court ruling.

Heavy Shooting Breaks Out Along Cyprus 'Green Line'

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The heaviest shooting in Nicosia since the cease-fire 20 days ago broke out Thursday night along the Green Line separating the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities, sending thousands of Greek Cypriots fleeing the city in panic.

Scores of cars and tractors piled high with luggage lined the roads to the south as machine gun fire and mortar explosions sounded in the capital.

Sporadic shooting has been heard almost nightly in Nicosia, but Thursday's barrage was the heaviest since the Aug. 16 cease-fire.

Earlier Thursday, Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash said the Turkish invasion force had occupied another pocket of northwest Cyprus, extending the area under Turkish control by 12 miles.

Occupation of the zone gave Turkish forces full command over Morphou Bay where the island's copper production is exported by the American-owned Cyprus Mines Corp.

Denktash, who is also vice president of Cyprus, also announced he would resume meetings Friday with President Glafcos Clerides, the Greek Cypriot leader, to discuss the crippling problems of about 234,000 refugees on the island.

Denktash was not certain whether regular Turkish troops had moved westward to Kokkina, but said Turkish Cypriot fighters "are in control of the areas. The Turkish Cypriot fighters are now part and parcel of the Turkish army, so whether the Turkish army goes in is irrelevant."

A newsman visiting Lefka, formerly the western end of the Turkish line, was told that regular Turkish troops landed in Kokkina by ship earlier. Greek Cypriot forces pulled out of the 12-mile pocket between Lefka and Kokkina, Turkish residents said, and Turkish troops were clearing mines from the roads.

Diplomatic sources in Nicosia said the Turks were expanding their hold on Cyprus daily, if only a few yards at a time, and one source surmised that Turkish commanders might be moving without direct permission from the government in Ankara. Many Greek Cypriots fear the Turks could launch another major offensive.

A U.N. spokesman said Turkish forces had advanced 30 yards across the cease-fire line inside the capital of Nicosia.

Ford Offers Fulbright Embassy To Britain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has picked Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to be ambassador to Great Britain but Fulbright has not said whether he wants the post for sure, it was learned Thursday.

Peter M. Flanigan, an asistant for international economic affairs under former President Richard M. Nixon, is Ford's choice to be ambassador to Spain.

Fulbright's proposed nomination has been given the nod by the British government and the White House is awaiting word from the senator that he will accept. Fulbright would replace Walter Annenberg, former Philadelphia publisher and longtime Nixon supporter.

The Associated Press was told that Fulbright's nomination was cleared with key Republicans in Congress. It was reported that Fulbright was interested at first but apparently had some second thoughts.

Fulbright lost a re-election bid in the Arkansas Democratic primary. A one-time Rhodes scholar, he has been in the Senate since 1945 and committee chairman since 1959.

The Flanigan nomination is awaiting approval by the Spanish government. The delay is apparently caused by the recent illness of Gen. Francisco Franco, who resumed his post as chief of state only last week.

The Associated Press was told that Fulbright's nomination was cleared with key Republicans in Congress. It was reported that Fulbright was interested at first but apparently had some second thoughts.

Fulbright lost a re-election bid in the Arkansas Democratic primary. A one-time Rhodes scholar, he has been in the Senate since 1945 and committee chairman since 1959.

The Flanigan nomination is awaiting approval by the Spanish government. The delay is apparently caused by the recent illness of Gen. Francisco Franco, who resumed his post as chief of state only last week.

Depletion Of Ozone Layer By Nuclear War Possible

©The New York Times

Washington — The director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency warned Thursday that a nuclear war could destroy the ozone layer in the stratosphere that protects all living things from the sun's ultraviolet radiation.

The potential depletion of the ozone layer by nuclear explosions is a new, accidental discovery that arms control officials believe adds an awesome new element to the destructive global effects of a nuclear war.

It now appears that a large-scale nuclear war, aside from its immediate destruction and deaths and lingering radiation, could upset if not destroy the food chain of plants and animals upon which man depends to survive. If so, in the opinion of some scientists, the nuclear deterrent, if ever used, could become a global doomsday machine, destroying not only the warring nations but also causing widespread deaths among the rest of the world's population.

Unexpected Impact

The previously unexpected impact of a nuclear war upon the ozone layer was described by Dr. Fred C. Ikle, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, in a speech prepared for delivery before the Council on Foreign Relations in Chicago. A copy of the speech was made available here by Ikle, who amplified on his speech, entitled "Nuclear Disarmament Without Secrecy," in an interview.

Ikle cited the ozone effect as an example of how "we have imposed on ourselves an inner secrecy" about the dangers of nuclear war, to the point that "we have lost comprehension — in emotive and human terms — of the reality of nuclear weapons.

"Even scientist," he argued, "have become unable to express the full range of physical effects of nuclear warfare" because "the damage from nuclear explosions to the fabric of nature and the sphere of living things cascades from one effect to another in ways too complex for our scientists to predict."

Implication Immediate

One immediate implication of the discovery of the ozone effect, Ikle suggested, is to reinforce the effectiveness of nuclear deterrence since a nuclear power would know that it was ordaining perhaps the destruction of mankind if it resorted to nuclear weapons. But in the longer range, the hope of arms control officials is that the discovery can help contribute to disarmament measures by demonstrating the self-destructiveness of the present nuclear arsenals.

In the past, the ozone effect has never been seriously considered by military planners, who have come to accept the deterrent concept that a nuclear attack would lead to mutual suicide between two nations. But they have never completely dismissed the possibility that a nation might successfully conduct a pre-emptive attack without being destroyed in return.

One of the side effects of a nuclear war — one which Ikle observed was discovered by accident when radioactive dust from a thermonuclear explosion in 1954 by the United States rained down upon the Japanese fishing boat Lucky Dragon — is global fallout. While radioactive fallout could kill millions, arms control agency officials who have studied the problem believe the global destructive effects of upsetting the ozone layer would be far worse.

Three Atoms In Molecule

Ozone — a form of oxygen with three instead of the two atoms in a molecule — is found in abundance in the lower stratosphere. It forms a protective layer against the sun's radiation, absorbing in particular the short-wave ultraviolet rays which can tear apart protein molecules in plants and animals.

In a way not previously understood, the heat of atomic explosions produce molecules of nitric oxides, which as they rise with the atomic cloud, interreact with and destroy the ozone molecules without being destroyed themselves.

While there is still some uncertainty about the extent of this interraction, there is now general agreement within the scientific community that large-scale nuclear explosions could cause considerable depletion of the ozone layer.

Quantity Unknown

"We do not know how much ozone depletion would occur from a large number of nuclear explosions — it might be imperceptible, but it also might be almost total. We do not know how long such depletion would last — less than one year or over ten years.

"And above all, we do not know what this depletion would be to plants, animals and people. Perhaps it would merely increase the hazard of sunburn. Or perhaps it would destroy critical links of the intricate food chain of plants and animals, and thus shatter the ecological structure that permits man to remain alive on this planet.

"All we know is that we do not know."

Ikle said his agency had commissioned the National Academy of Sciences to study the potential impact upon the ozone layer as well as to examine whether there might be other "surprise effects" of nuclear warfare.

SALT Resumption To Be Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a six months recess the United States and the Soviet Union will renew their talks on limitations of strategic nuclear weapons in two weeks, U.S. officials said Thursday.

The exact day when the talks, known as SALT II, will resume in Geneva will be announced by the White House on Friday.

The first round of SALT II was adjourned March 19 in the expectation that the July Moscow summit between former President Nixon and Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev would produce agreement in principle on how to proceed.

Panama Claims 'Banana War' Won

PANAMA (AP) — A six-week "banana war" between Panama and United Brands Co. of the United States has ended with Panamanian strong man Gen. Omar Torrijos claiming victory for Panama.

The Chiriqui Land Co., a United Brands subsidiary in Panama, suspended production and export of bananas July 24 in a dispute with the government over payment of a banana export tax of $1 per 40-pound box.

An agreement to resume operations was reached Wednesday on the resort island of Contadora, in Panama Bay, between Torrijos and United Brands president Eli M. Black.

"The company has resumed the production and exportation of the fruit," Torrijos said. "Talks will begin soon on the eventual transfer of properties owned by United Brands and the conditions of its future operations in the country."

The company also agreed to pay back wages and taxes for the period of suspended operations, totaling an estimated $10 million.

Torrijos did not mention the amount of tax to be imposed. Panama had earlier insisted on a $1 tax per box, but this is four times higher than neighboring states charge and may have been lowered in the negotiations.

In his statement Wednesday evening, Torrijos said the banana confrontation was a workout for a possible U.S.-Panama tangle over a new Panama Canal treaty.

The Chiriqui Land Co. has operated in Panama since the end of the 19th century, when Panama was still a province of Colombia.

Bananas account for 87 per cent of Panama's agricultural exports and for about 48 per cent of the country's total export earnings. Last year banana exports totaled $63.8 million.

OAS To Meet, Consider Ending Cuban Sanctions

Washington (UPI) — Western Hemisphere foreign ministers will be called to meet in Ecuador Nov. 11 to vote on lifting diplomatic and economic sanctions imposed on Cuba 10 years ago, it was learned Thursday.

The request is included in a note which is expected to be presented Friday to the Organization of American States by the governments of Costa Rica, Colombia and Venezuela.

The drive to lift OAS sanctions is believed to have a good chance of success, according to diplomatic observers. It is understood to have at least tacit approval of President Ford.

Health Cost Rises Faster Than Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hospital and doctor costs have increased 50 per cent faster than the economy as a whole since May and if unchecked could cost Americans an additional $13 billion over the next two years, Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, said Thursday.

"This we must and will moderate," he said.

Engaging in a little economic jawboning of his own, Weinberger told the American Association of Medical Clinics that health care price increases "are a prominent fuel in the acceleration of the nation's inflation."

Since federal wage-price controls expired April 30, physician fees have risen at an annual rate of 19.1 per cent and hospital charges at an annual rate of 17.7 per cent, he said.

They were on their way to Chicago to get medical treatment for their son.

Was Pusser Murdered?

Adamsville, Tenn. (UPI) — Was the death of Buford Pusser, former Tennessee sheriff who was the real-life model for the movie "Walking Tall," in an auto crash an accident? Or was he murdered?

Pusser's parents believe someone sabotaged the car their famous son drove to his death, but authorities said Thursday they have found no evidence to support the contention.

"He never lost control," Carl Pusser said after his son died Aug. 20 when his red 1974 Corvette careened off U.S. Highway 64 near Selmer, Tenn., and burned. "Something else is wrong."

Mrs. Helen Pusser, the mother of the former McNairy County, Tenn., sheriff who survived seven assassination attempts, said this week a representative of Chevrolet had been asked to check the car, which the family is keeping at an undisclosed location.

Rumors have persisted since the wreck that the tie rods in the Corvette were tampered with. But Tennessee highway patrol Capt. Jerry Simmons said the day after the wreck that he could find nothing to support the theory.

"It is our belief," Simmons said, "that the tie rods broke on impact. None of the parts are missing and the jagged ends fit together perfectly.

"We consider this just another unfortunate highway accident," he said.

Before the car was turned over to the family, Simmons said, the tie rods and power steering cylinder were removed "to keep anyone from messing around with them and starting any wild rumors."

Col. Charles Danner, a highway patrol officer in Nashville, said Thursday the tie rods have been sent to the FBI in Washington for examination. He said a report on the tests have not been received.

Danner said the investigation of the crash remains open, just as it does in any accident, but there has been no evidence of foul play. The death remains officially classified as accidental, he said.

'Land Of Ghosts' Yields Devil God

CERVETERI, Italy (AP) — The statue of Tuchulca, the devil god of the Etruscans, has surfaced from "The Land of Ghosts," sending shivers down the spines of the laborers who made the historic archeological find.

Legend in this Etruscan town 22 miles north of Rome has it that a devil's shadow guarded the treasures buried in "The Land of Ghosts," where the Etruscans carved their tombs in the rocky hills of Greppe di Sant'Angelo.

The legend was good for bootleg excavators who challenged the devil and ghosts to dig for ancient vessels and statuettes in a no man's land inhabited only by wild pigs.

It was these excavators who gave police the clue which led to the unearthing of the first known sculpture of Tuchulca, known only to historians through inscriptions and paintings.

Early in the summer, police investigated rumors that clandestine diggers had found a treasure worth at least as much as the famed Vase of Euphronios, the $1 million vase acquired in 1972 by the New York Metropolitan Museum and which Cerveteri claims came from clandestine excavations on the Greppe.

Police called in archeologists and digging started. What came to light was an archeologist's dream.

Two tombs carved into an 18-foot-high cliff looked down upon a "Sacrificial Yard" enclosed by a wall. Guarding the princely tombs from the walls stood two lions, a sphynx and Tuchulca, the devil.

Tuchulca's head and torso lay apart. The head featured a bulbous nose, long ears, a deeply furrowed forehead, a gaping, fleshy mouth and a goatee — a close relative of the devil Christians depicted in the Middle Ages.

A staircase carved in the rock led down to the Sacrificial Yard. The entrance to the tombs was through narrow slits under the carved doors.

The architecture is unique for southern Etruria, combining local and northern styles.

Each tomb features one large room, which the experts said appear to have been looted. In the tombs they found broken vases and inscribed tombstones in the shape of phalluses.

The Etruscans had the highest form of civilization in Italy before the rise of Rome. It evolved around the 8th century B.C., developed rapidly during the 7th century, achieved its peak during the 6th century, and declined during the 5th and 4th centuries.

Etruscan wealth and power was in part based upon their knowledge of ironworking and their exploitation of iron deposits which were abundant in Etruria.

Newark Man Beaten During Trouble Dies

Newark, N.J. (UPI) — A man apparently beaten at the height of three days of street violence died Thursday in a hospital, bringing to two the number of deaths being investigated in connection with the disturbances.

Police Director Hubert Williams cautioned at a news conference against speculation that the victim, David Perez, 30, of Newark, died of blows received at the hands of police Monday, but he said "there is the possibility" police were involved.

Perez, formerly employed as a press worker, was one of four Puerto Ricans assisted near the scene of Monday night's disturbances by two police intelligence officers, Edwin Padilla and Chris Jackson.

Williams said the officers put Perez into an ambulance, and he was taken to Martland Hospital, where he died Thursday of hemorrhaging due to a fractured skull, An autopsy revealed the fractures were due to a massive blow to the head.

AMNESTY: Do They Even Want To Come Back?

The Spell of Toronto

By KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

TORONTO, Canada — When Gerald Ford announced his conditional amnesty policy, stirring up considerable hostility among veterans' organizations, he got an indirect boost of sorts from the reaction of a trio of deserters and draft-dodgers displayed in a widely seen Toronto television interview: The three young men indicated mixed feelings about coming home and little desire for anything short of unconditional forgiveness.

You have to visit Toronto to understand what they are talking about. That young runaways will pay a steep price to come back to the United States may seem reasonable in the VFW Halls and Kiwanis Clubs; it seems far-fetched, however, in a city that combines the cosmopolitanism of San Francisco, the financial district skyscrapers of New York and the gothic-and-granite solidity of London in the cheeriest and best-run major metropolitan area (2.6 million population) in eastern North America.

There is no real way to know, but most of the runaways have probably carved out better lives and opportunities for themselves than they could have at home.

I don't intend to write a travel feature for Toronto. Even so, the city's appeal is central to my point, being almost tailor-made for youth. The stodginess that characterized Toronto in its earlier days as the focal point of Canadian-British tradition has been changed by a tremendous influx of European immigrants and young people.

Everywhere in the city, new office buildings, restaurants and boutiques seem to be opening up. There are gardens everywhere. The city hall is something out of tomorrow's texts on architecture, and you can walk almost anywhere downtown at night — I did — without seeing a hint of a mugger. A friend in market research says that Toronto is the North American City, with the most enthusiastic lifestyle rating.

Which brings me back to the question of amnesty. I am sympathetic to President Ford's conditional amnesty program — requiring compensatory service — although I didn't care for the swing-to-the-left context in which he offered it. Moreover, it may be useful to underscore the numerical realities involved here. Of the tens of thousands of U.S. deserters, draft-dodgers and runaways in Canada — many in Toronto — only a minority would be likely to come home even with an absolute amnesty. Visit their families, yes; but not move back to the U.S. And a much smaller minority would return if compensatory service were involved.

Thus, those who expect that conditional amnesty would mean a re-invasion of hippies, junkies and dropouts are wrong. That's not very likely. To paraphrase the old World War One ditty, how are you going to get them back to Dubuque after they've seen Bloor Street West and Queens Park East?

Presumably the minority that would return and pay the price are the harmless and the homesick, with less collective anti-social potential than an existing, second-rate Southern California motorcycle gang. Besides which, there is also another aspect of the situation. Conditional amnesty might defuse the overall amnesty issue once it became clear that no large-scale repatriation was going to occur.

In political terms, President Ford was lucky that the Toronto television threesome were so contemptuous of his scheme, because that contempt moderated the reaction of conservative and veterans' groups against the liberality of Mr. Ford's proposal.

Over the long-run, though, we might do better to resolve the amnesty issue before too many Toronto interviews and stories underscore the comparative attractions of Canada and the U.S. That part is a little embarrassing.

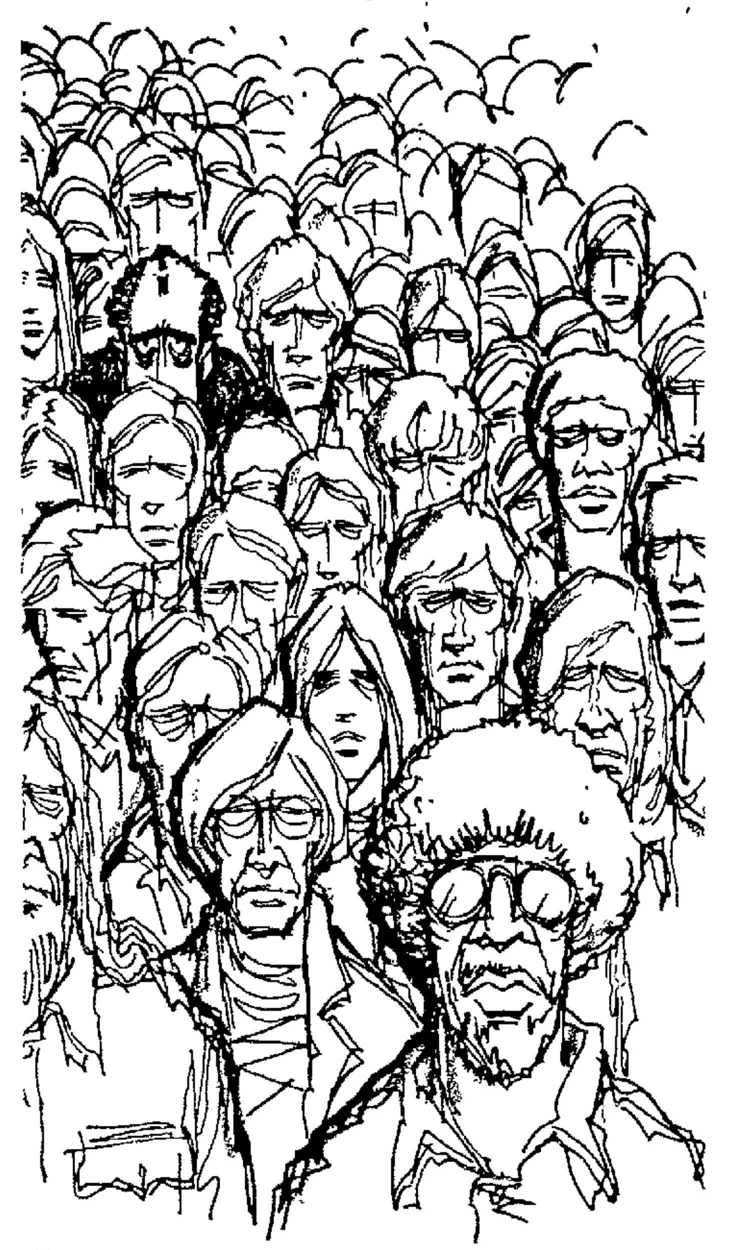
Amnesty Rally



Hawk Minus Squawk

By MIKE ROYKO

CHICAGO — Sen. John Tower, of Texas made some venomous remarks about amnesty the other day, and I can't blame him.

If I were in Tower's shoes, I'd probably rage against amnesty, conditional or otherwise.

That's because Tower was a hawk during the Vietnam War. You remember the hawks. The word isn't used much any more, but they were the people who believed we belonged in Vietnam, who wanted the war expanded, who urged that more and more troops be sent.

Not all of them were well-known politicians. Many were ordinary people who showed how they felt by shaking their fists at peace marchers, or waving a flag, or crunching the heads of demonstrators.

Hawks could generally be found in political arenas, on TV talk shows, or in the comfort of their own living room or backyard.

Hawks were less often found in induction centers, on troopships, or in the steamy jungles of Vietnam.

You seldom hear the old hawks talking about Vietnam any more. What is there for them to say? As it turned out, we didn't belong in Vietnam, and we finally got out, and now the Vietnamese are doing quite nicely in slaughtering each other without our help.

But the hawks do have one issue left — and that's the question of amnesty.

I'm sure it is safe to generalize that most of the former hawks are against amnesty.

If you took a survey as to how people felt about the war at the time of, say, the 1968 Democratic convention, and how they now feel about amnesty, you would wind up with the old hawk-dove alignments.

The doves would favor amnesty because they believe it is just a logical extension of admitting we didn't belong in Vietnam in the first place, and getting out.

Amnesty would be just further proof that we have recognized that the doves were right.

So you can see why Tower feels the way he does. You can see why the VFW — which was hawkish during the war — rejected President Ford's views on conditional amnesty.

Amnesty would be just another way of telling the hawks: "You were wrong, Chum."

For all the pious talk about how amnesty would be a slap in the face to those who served in Vietnam, in reality the faces that would be slapped would be those of the hawks.

That, I suspect, is why the hawks so strongly oppose amnesty. Those draft resisters in Canada, Europe, and our underground, are the last thing they can cling to as proof that they might have been right.

If you take that away from them, they might then have to face the fact that they were wrong.

And if I were Tower, or anyone else who so lustily waved the flag and shoved young men in the direction of the troopships, I wouldn't want to think about what having been wrong means.

We all make mistakes. But this mistake was a whopper. It left something like 50,000 young men dead. That is a lot of dead people. It left thousands of others without arms, or legs, eyes or ears. It left thousands with terrible psychological problems and drug problems. It left thousands of women without husbands, parents without sons, children without fathers. They haven't put an eraser on a pencil that will undo that big a mistake.

So the people who fled the draft are important to the hawks. As long as they are fugitives from the law, Tower and the others can point an accusing finger toward Canada and cry: "Coward, traitor, shirker."

But if you take that away through amnesty, then they will have to lower their finger and take a long look at their own hands.

There are some things you can never wash off your hands.

Kennedy Candidacy Uncertain

"It's Kennedy's for the asking." So goes nearly everybody's assessment of who can gain the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976.

We have the feeling, however, that a great mass of Democrats will heave a collective sigh of relief if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts swallows his presidential ambitions and sits out the election two years hence.

And if he is to do just that, it would be the fairest thing for the party and its other hopefuls for Kennedy to announce his non-candidacy well within the next twelve months. For it's another popular axiom that "nobody (except, perhaps, "Scoop" Jackson) will move until Teddy does." Kennedy should signal his intentions to run or not early enough for others to make their move in staking a claim on the nomination if Kennedy decides to hold off. A free-for-all among late-emerging candidates just before convention time will not help the Democratic Party to put its best foot forward in the 1976 election.

There are compelling reasons to believe that Kennedy may take himself out of the running, at least for six more years. The statement by former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien, the Watergate burglary target, that Kennedy should not run for president in 1976 should be regarded as having more than casual significance because of O'Brien's long-time ties with the Kennedy family as friend and advisor.

It is O'Brien's position that Kennedy should step aside because he could be the target of possible assassination attempts if he should seek the office. Sadly, it is all too possible, considering the violent emotions the Kennedys stir up and the bloody record that remarkable family has suffered in public service.

There is another practical reason, too, why a Kennedy decision to withdraw from presidential politics might be silently hailed among Democratic ranks. And that is that the shadow of Chappaquiddick will hang heavy in post-Watergate America, no matter what people like O'Brien say publicly about it not being a serious negative factor.

We think the experience of the last two years has proved that the people will demand the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth at the earliest possible opportunity from public figures who are called upon to answer for their acts. And that is what many people believe they did not get from Kennedy in the aftermath of Chappaquiddick.

A Questionable Mix

If indeed there was a double agent in the White House during the last days of Richard Nixon, it would have to be Alexander Haig, the presidential chief-of-staff and a fast-rising four-star general before he hired on with the former president.

Toward the end, while publicly still working to stem the tide against his boss, Haig was privately involved in orchestrating efforts to persuade Nixon that resignation was in the nation's best interests. It was, by all reports, a difficult thing for him to do; it violated his sense of loyalty and burdened him emotionally. But he knew that Nixon's resignation was the only proper course and for his part in obtaining it he deserves the nation's respect.

Now Haig wants to return to the military and he is being considered by President Ford for a top job, perhaps as supreme allied commander of NATO in Europe.

Some western European governments are said to oppose that move because Haig served in a scandal-ridden administration and some U.S. politicians, notably Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., also oppose it. Proxmire says he will strenuously oppose any move to return Haig to active duty status because it would "send a signal throughout the military officer corps that politics pays off — and in a big way."

Haig is reputed to be an intelligent and immensely capable officer and administrator and the nation should continue to benefit from his talents. But Proxmire has a point. The U.S. doesn't need a political general in a position of high authority because of the effect it might have on the ambitions of up-and-coming officers.

President Ford, in another questionable move, has slotted GOP National Chairman George Bush, another capable individual and former U.N. ambassador, to be chief of the U.S. mission to the Peoples Republic of China. While having some diplomatic experience, Bush is essentially a politician.

Ford's putting a new face on his administration is commendable, but if he mixes politics and military service and continues the practice of mixing domestic politics with foreign diplomacy, he will not be doing the nation a service.

It is unbelievable to hear Attorney General Saxbe ask for harder retribution for criminals at the same time the President is meditating about pardon for the Watergate gang.

If you are dumb and can't adequately make it, the bully says: "Put him away so long he will never do it again." If you are smart, living high on the hog and break the law for greed fulfillment, they say: "Pity the poor man. He was never caught before."

We have had six years of a tough law-and-order philosophy and crime is climbing — that ought to tell something. It is not soft to advocate love and understanding; it is Christian. It is smart because it can reduce crime, save money, improve security and make a better world. Habilitate. Rehabilitate. Care for.

Indians Denied Basic Rights

Wilber, Neb.

About all a person hears out of Washington is "food for peace." But they don't seem to be too concerned as to the source, nor are they concerned for their own people, the only real Americans, the Indians.

How can the Washington fat-cats speak of world peace and then deny food and rights to the American Indians? To use food as a means to forcing someone into submitting to rules is inhuman and barbaric.

The Indians have been humiliated and discriminated against long enough. They have been denied the rights that all people are entitled to. I feel that their uprising was caused by some profiteers, in the first place, who for their own gain took away what was the Indians'. Now they are attempting to starve them for fighting back.

Is this a classic example of what Washington has in mind for anyone who stands up and fights for what is his? It sounds as if the poor and needy will have to remain silent on the affairs and concerns of the country.

Starting Within The Home

Falls City, Neb.

Crime did not begin on the streets. It started in permissive or indifferent homes — with fathers eluding the paternal role while pursuing the almighty dollar — with mothers evading a demanding domestic role while exerting their "rights" on the office-front. It began with churches yielding to permissiveness — offering bribery to youth instead of providing spiritual leadership. It started with schools, enamored by scientific, biological, materialistic ideology while neglecting the need to open and fill the mind of the child with real knowledge.

Crime began with coddling courts that wink at misdemeanors and offer a wrist-slap for many cases of felony. It began with colleges and universities indoctrinating you with unwarranted arrogance and vainglory.

Attorney General Saxbe's warning that we may eventually have to rely on the organization of a national police force to curb the violence surrounding us could serve as a stop-gap measure only. Society would still have the deep basic need for returning to standards encouraging civility, propriety and common sense, especially within the home.

JACK ANDERSON

A Letter To Ford

WASHINGTON — All but forgotten in the Watergate aftermath has been its chief victim, Sen. George McGovern, who was badly defeated after the dirtiest presidential campaign in American history.

Yet the South Dakota senator, betraying no bitterness, has written a stirring, private letter to the man who has now wound up in the White House in his place, without ever running for president.

The letter thanks him for his "constructive leadership" at this critical hour and declares eloquently: "No one can now fail to see what is right with America, even as we strive to repair what is wrong."

Although McGovern was the Democratic presidential candidate in 1972 and will oppose Ford's election in 1976, he wrote the new President on August 30 to wish him well.

"No one who loves America has taken satisfaction from the crisis that put you in the nation's hardest job . . .," the letter allows. "But we can draw satisfaction from the underlying strength of our constitutional structure and the rule of law. For we have demonstrated that we take those principles seriously and that they can be made to work. . .

"For despite the serious challenges we have to face, despite the honest differences we are bound to have, we have taken the first and greatest step toward recovery. Our confidence is returning."

Citing what is right with America, McGovern tells Ford warmly: "One thing that is right is your approach to the presidency. Above all else the country needed healing. You have understood that need and met it.

"The spirit of excessive partisanship is gone from the White House. Instead you have summoned a spirit of cooperation from Democrats and Republicans alike. Instead of 'enemies lists,' there is a list of domestic and foreign priorities we share together.

"And with the sense of common purpose you have inspired, we face them with renewed strength and resolution — as one united people once again. We can hammer out the answers on the basis of mutual respect, and with a common vision of America as a great and decent land."

McGovern goes on to praise his political adversary. "You have the opportunity and the capacity to be a great president," writes the senator. "You bring to the White House the same qualities of fundamental honesty and fairness those of us who served with you saw in Gerry Ford, our colleague in the House.

"As President Ford, you have called upon civility among politicians. That alone would be an historic achievement. Knowing you as I have, I see every chance for equal achievements in meeting the challenge of inflation and other challenges still unforeseen.

"For my part, you can be assured that I will give all the help I can to a president doing all he can to find the best course for the country."

WILLIAM SAFIRE

'Inflession' Possible

WASHINGTON — When President Ford introduced the new chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers to his cabinet, virtually the first words out of Alan Greenspan's mouth were, "Don't expect miracles."

But one of our central problems is that we do expect a miracle: specifically, the slowing of inflation without the slowing pains of unemployment. On that score, ahead lies disappointment.

Intentionally, high interest rates depress America's largest industry, construction; unintentionally, high interest rates depress the stock market. In an effort to check inflation, we have already gone into a recession, and it must get worse in order to do any good.

Anyone who suggests that such a trip through the wringer might be necessary or ultimately worthwhile is denounced as fishy-eyed, hard-hearted, or Hooveresque, but the state of the economic art is such that the only way to good times is through hard times.

That is why the Fed's Arthur Burns is uncharacteristically pushing a multi-billion-dollar W.P.A. to shorten the lines of the unemployed when they begin to form: Nobody wants to be the ogre who demands that the greatest payment for the cure of inflation fall on the poor.

That is why Paul Samuelson, an economist accustomed to raising Keynes, is willing to accept a period of unemployment hovering about 6%: Nobody wants to be the ogre who lets ideology stand in the way of curing inflation which afflicts the working poor.

And that is why our new President has laid on what is so easy to describe as an enormous public-relations stunt, billed as an "economic summit," a televised econothon with stars of labor, management and academe: Nobody wants to be alone in leading the American people into such an unpromising land.

Look at the common denominator beneath the suggestions coming from all sides: Almost all propose a means of alleviating the pain, spreading the suffering, making fair the anticipated sacrifice. Investors will be given capital gains tax breaks to shore up the sinking stock market, the wealthy will have their minimum tax raised to produce the appearances of equity and the unemployed will get more benefits over a longer period.

Federal spending will be held down, which will encourage recession, because — follow this — deficit spending would mean federal borrowing, which would drive interest rates too high, which could lead to either a depression or an abandonment of the fight against inflation.

Depression. As the saying goes, a recession is when you are out of work, and a depression is when I am out of work. We are not headed into a depression because there are enough stimulants available to pull us out of one: the real prospect that is depressing is that we might not have the stamina to take a recession long enough to reverse the rate of inflation.

No matter what is undertaken, we are certain to go through a period of perhaps a year in which we have the worst of both worlds — "inflession," when our suffering will seem for naught, when prices continue to go up as jobs become scarcer in a time of no growth. At that point, economics will tend to revert to its original name, "political arithmetic," and the pressure will build to try something else.

That is when controls will begin to look good again, and the siren song of "bold leadership" will be heard on the hustings. The quick fix will gain preference over the patient cure, and in a democracy, who is to resist the will of the people?

We can live with some inflation. But we can never remove the causes of double-digit inflation with the prestidigitation of controls, and that is the sleight-of-hand that will be demanded down the line.

The way to slow inflation is to increase productivity. That means more output per man-hour, which happens after the cruel discipline of an increase in unemployment, and is aided by the investment of corporate profits and freshly-raised capital in new equipment. That is the only way to bring about a rise in the average worker's real income.

Toward that end, let us summitteer with passion, consense ourselves into a lasting lump, sugarcoat our potent pill until we hardly recognize recession, and praise the tintinabulators of austerity while we condemn the queasy for calling quits too quickly.

Americans do expect miracles — prosperity without inflation and without war — and such an economic miracle is not too much to expect, if we are prepared to make the sacrifice that will prove us worthy of it.

AMNESTY: Do They Even Want To Come Back?

It is unbelievable to hear Attorney General Saxbe ask for harder retribution for criminals at the same time the President is meditating about pardon for the Watergate gang.

If you are dumb and can't adequately make it, the bully says: "Put him away so long he will never do it again." If you are smart, living high on the hog and break the law for greed fulfillment, they say: "Pity the poor man. He was never caught before."

We have had six years of a tough law-and-order philosophy and crime is climbing — that ought to tell something. It is not soft to advocate love and understanding; it is Christian. It is smart because it can reduce crime, save money, improve security and make a better world. Habilitate. Rehabilitate. Care for.

Indians Denied Basic Rights

Wilber, Neb.

About all a person hears out of Washington is "food for peace." But they don't seem to be too concerned as to the source, nor are they concerned for their own people, the only real Americans, the Indians.

How can the Washington fat-cats speak of world peace and then deny food and rights to the American Indians? To use food as a means to forcing someone into submitting to rules is inhuman and barbaric.

The Indians have been humilitated and discriminated against long enough. They have been denied the rights that all people are entitled to. I feel that their uprising was caused by some profiteers, in the first place, who for their own gain took away what was the Indians'. Now they are attempting to starve them for fighting back.

Is this a classic example of what Washington has in mind for anyone who stands up and fights for what is his? It sounds as if the poor and needy will have to remain silent on the affairs and concerns of the country.

Starting Within The Home

Falls City, Neb.

Crime did not begin on the streets. It started in permissive or indifferent homes — with fathers eluding the paternal role while pursuing the almighty dollar — with mothers evading a demanding domestic role while exerting their "rights" on the office-front. It began with churches yielding to permissiveness — offering bribery to youth instead of providing spiritual leadership. It started with schools, enamored by scientific, biological, materialistic ideology while neglecting the need to open and fill the mind of the child with real knowledge.

Crime began with coddling courts that wink at misdemeanors and offer a wrist-slap for many cases of felony. It began with colleges and universities indoctrinating you with unwarranted arrogance and vainglory.

Attorney General Saxbe's warning that we may eventually have to rely on the organization of a national police force to curb the violence surrounding us could serve as a stop-gap measure only. Society would still have the deep basic need for returning to standards encouraging civility, propriety and common sense, especially within the home.

JACK ANDERSON

A Letter To Ford

WASHINGTON — All but forgotten in the Watergate aftermath has been its chief victim, Sen. George McGovern, who was badly defeated after the dirtiest presidential campaign in American history.

Yet the South Dakota senator, betraying no bitterness, has written a stirring, private letter to the man who has now wound up in the White House in his place, without ever running for president.

The letter thanks him for his "constructive leadership" at this critical hour and declares eloquently: "No one can now fail to see what is right with America, even as we strive to repair what is wrong."

Although McGovern was the Democratic presidential candidate in 1972 and will oppose Ford's election in 1976, he wrote the new President on August 30 to wish him well.

"No one who loves America has taken satisfaction from the crisis that put you in the nation's hardest job . . .," the letter allows. "But we can draw satisfaction from the underlying strength of our constitutional structure and the rule of law. For we have demonstrated that we take those principles seriously and that they can be made to work. . .

"For despite the serious challenges we have to face, despite the honest differences we are bound to have, we have taken the first and greatest step toward recovery. Our confidence is returning."

Citing what is right with America, McGovern tells Ford warmly: "One thing that is right is your approach to the presidency. Above all else the country needed healing. You have understood that need and met it.

"The spirit of excessive partisanship is gone from the White House. Instead you have summoned a spirit of cooperation from Democrats and Republicans alike. Instead of 'enemies lists,' there is a list of domestic and foreign priorities we share together.

"And with the sense of common purpose you have inspired, we face them with renewed strength and resolution — as one united people once again. We can hammer out the answers on the basis of mutual respect, and with a common vision of America as a great and decent land."

McGovern goes on to praise his political adversary. "You have the opportunity and the capacity to be a great president," writes the senator. "You bring to the White House the same qualities of fundamental honesty and fairness those of us who served with you saw in Gerry Ford, our colleague in the House.

"As President Ford, you have called upon civility among politicians. That alone would be an historic achievement. Knowing you as I have, I see every chance for equal achievements in meeting the challenge of inflation and other challenges still unforeseen.

"For my part, you can be assured that I will give all the help I can to a president doing all he can to find the best course for the country."

WILLIAM SAFIRE

'Inflession' Possible

WASHINGTON — When President Ford introduced the new chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers to his cabinet, virtually the first words out of Alan Greenspan's mouth were, "Don't expect miracles."

But one of our central problems is that we do expect a miracle: specifically, the slowing of inflation without the slowing pains of unemployment. On that score, ahead lies disappointment.

Intentionally, high interest rates depress America's largest industry, construction; unintentionally, high interest rates depress the stock market. In an effort to check inflation, we have already gone into a recession, and it must get worse in order to do any good.

Anyone who suggests that such a trip through the wringer might be necessary or ultimately worthwhile is denounced as fishy-eyed, hard-hearted, or Hooveresque, but the state of the economic art is such that the only way to good times is through hard times.

That is why the Fed's Arthur Burns is uncharacteristically pushing a multi-billion-dollar W.P.A. to shorten the lines of the unemployed when they begin to form: Nobody wants to be the ogre who demands that the greatest payment for the cure of inflation fall on the poor.

That is why Paul Samuelson, an economist accustomed to raising Keynes, is willing to accept a period of unemployment hovering about 6%: Nobody wants to be the ogre who lets ideology stand in the way of curing inflation which afflicts the working poor.

And that is why our new President has laid on what is so easy to describe as an enormous public-relations stunt, billed as an "economic summit," a televised econothon with stars of labor, management and academe: Nobody wants to be alone in leading the American people into such an unpromising land.

Look at the common denominator beneath the suggestions coming from all sides: Almost all propose a means of alleviating the pain, spreading the suffering, making fair the anticipated sacrifice. Investors will be given capital gains tax breaks to shore up the sinking stock market, the wealthy will have their minimum tax raised to produce the appearances of equity and the unemployed will get more benefits over a longer period.

Federal spending will be held down, which will encourage recession, because — follow this — deficit spending would mean federal borrowing, which would drive interest rates too high, which could lead to either a depression or an abandonment of the fight against inflation.

Depression. As the saying goes, a recession is when you are out of work, and a depression is when I am out of work. We are not headed into a depression because there are enough stimulants available to pull us out of one; the real prospect that is depressing is that we might not have the stamina to take a recession long enough to reverse the rate of inflation.

No matter what is undertaken, we are certain to go through a period of perhaps a year in which we have the worst of both worlds — "inflession," when our suffering will seem for naught, when prices continue to go up as jobs become scarcer in a time of no growth. At that point, economics will tend to revert to its original name, "political arithmetic," and the pressure will build to try something else.

That is when controls will begin to look good again, and the siren song of "bold leadership" will be heard on the hustings. The quick fix will gain preference over the patient cure, and in a democracy, who is to resist the will of the people?

We can live with some inflation. But we can never remove the causes of double-digit inflation with the prestidigitation of controls, and that is the sleight-of-hand that will be demanded down the line.

The way to slow inflation is to increase productivity. That means more output per manhour, which happens after the cruel discipline of an increase in unemployment, and is aided by the investment of corporate profits and freshly-raised capital in new equipment. That is the only way to bring about a rise in the average worker's real income.

Toward that end, let us summitteer with passion, consense ourselves into a lasting lump, sugarcoat our potent pill until we hardly recognize recession, and praise the tintinabulators of austerity while we condemn the queasy for calling quits too quickly.

Americans do expect miracles — prosperity without inflation and without war — and such an economic miracle is not too much to expect, if we are prepared to make the sacrifice that will prove us worthy of it.

Hog Breeder Has Off Year —He Only Won 25 Ribbons

By H.L. HOFFMASTER
Star Staff Writer

Lloyd Kelly had an off year at the Nebraska State Fair . . . he won only 25 ribbons . . . and it took 18 of his Chester Whites to do it.

It's hard to believe, but Kelly has done better; not only at the Nebraska State Fair, but at several other fairs around the Midwest.

Kelly is from Kearney, but not Nebraska's Kearney. He is a Missouri Chester breeder from the small town near St. Joseph, Mo.

'One Of Best'

"This is one of the nicest swine buildings to show in and the people who run the fair are among the greatest.

"If I didn't enjoy it so much and the people so much, I wouldn't have come this year. I'm too far behind at home."

Kelly also praised the quality of the competition at the Nebraska State Fair, although he says that the toughest show for him is Missouri's, where there are about 10 more Chester White breeders than show at Lincoln.

Every one of the pigs Kelly brought to Lincoln won a ribbon and many were double winners. Besides Chester White grand champion boar, grand champion sow and grand champion barrow, he also showed the senior champ boar, reserve champion boar, junior champion boar (which also was grand champ), and senior champion sow plus reserve champion sow.

And he didn't even bring his best animal, although he couldn't do better than grand champ everything. He left a boar at home that he says is his best because he hadn't received pedigree papers yet.

Kelly is proud of this year's two dozen-plus ribbons, but says that he "cleaned this show" many years ago when he first began exhibiting. He also said he has won more ribbons at a few other shows over the years.

Kelly tries to avoid bragging, but he will admit, after some prodding, that he almost never loses at the Topeka, Kan., fair.

Kelley said his wife will burn some old ribbons when he gets back with this year's bunch from Lincoln.

Tortillas Too Light; Prosecution Sought

The State Department of Agriculture will seek prosecution of an Omaha tortilla-maker accused of shortweighing corn and flour tortillas.

Glenn Kreuscher, director of agriculture, said Thursday he will ask the Douglas County attorney to file criminal charges against Ricardo's Wholesale Mexican Foods for violating the state's weights and measures law.

Department inspectors found 74 of 96 tortilla packages weighed less than the label indicated at stores in Omaha, Lincoln, Auburn, McCook and Wahoo.

The decision was made following a hearing attended by department inspectors and Richardo Correa, the business' owner. The hearing was the first time a wholesaler has been accused of selling underweight products.

Steve Malone, head of the weights and measures program, said he received a complaint from Offutt Air Force Base in Bellevue that the firm was selling underweight tortilla packages.

A subsequent investigation turned up other violations.

Kreuscher said Correa and his attorney, Mike Fitzgerald, were asking "too much" in suggesting a warning would be proper.

"I'm impressed by the corrective action you've taken, but I can't excuse the violation," he said. "This is an excellent example why Nebraska needs a weights and measures law."

Fitzgerald told Kreuscher that such punishment "certainly doesn't encourage anybody to cooperate with you."

The department estimated that consumers were paying 2.3 cents too much per package in view of the true weight.

Little Hope Offered For McDermott Job

Gov. J. James Exon Thursday offered little hope Dean S. McDermott will be able to regain his job as director of rehabilitation services for the visually impaired without a court fight.

Exon said in an interview Thursday he has received "many complaints" about McDermott. He said James Nyman, the new director, is "the best qualified individual to head the post the state has ever had."

McDermott, who was fired by Institutions Director Jack Anderson on May 16, is seeking to regain his $15,000-per-year job on the strength of a State Personnel Board ruling that he be reinstated.

McDermott and Doug Marti, his attorney, said Wednesday they would approach Exon before going to court.

Exon said he will talk to Anderson about the question.

He said he felt the Personnel Board acted in good faith when it held Anderson had been arbitrary. But he said it is "a critical situation" in government when an administrator has no way of relieving someone who has not performed adequately.

"It's frustrating," he said.

Arms, Ammunition Gone From California Armory

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A large supply of arms and ammunition has vanished from an unguarded California National Guard Armory here, a spokesman said Thursday.

The theft marks the second time in two months a California National Guard armory has been the target of arms thieves.

A sophisticated antiburglar device was undisturbed and appeared to be in operating order, said Lt. Col. Frank S. Salcedo, a guard information officer.

"Due to the burglar alarms, we felt it was redundant to have guards posted," he added.

Missing from the San Joaquin Valley weapons dump were 58 automatic M16 rifles, two .45-caliber pistols, four .38-caliber revolvers, two M60 machine guns and three 40mm grenade launchers.

In addition, thieves stole almost 2,000 rounds of ammunition for the weapons, along with 40 riot-control chemical grenades.

Salcedo said he didn't know if the weapons were in working order but said automatic rifle parts can be legally purchased on the open market.

The weapons disappeared from an armory storage vault at the 217th Transportation Battalion between Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning. There was no indication of a forced entry, an FBI agent in Sacramento said.

Shute Named To State Post

Stan Matzke, state director of administrative services, said Thursday George E. Shute will be the new head of accounting for the state beginning Sept. 9.

Shute has been director of finance for Hy-Gain Electronics Corp. in Lincoln. A Certified Public Accountant, Shute holds a masters degree in accounting from Ohio State University.

Matzke said Shute will be paid $20,712 per year.

Lindner Renews Request For Lahners' Full Income

Lancaster County attorney candidate Jack B. Lindner has renewed his request that his opponent, Chief Deputy County Atty. Ron Lahners, disclose in a sworn statement his income from private practice.

Lindner, a Democrat and former assistant city attorney, says if the taxpayers pay public servants a full-time salary, they have a right to expect the full-time of those public servants.

He said he had called upon Lahners several months ago to disclose his income from private practice and has had no response to date.

"I am satisfied that if the county attorney and his staff were to devote their full time to the duties for which they are paid, a substantial reduction in budget could be achieved," Lindner said.

Lahners told The Star he intends to respond to Lindner's letter in the very near future.

He said he does not and would not if elected to the post "let anything interfere with his job as a county attorney."

Trade Deficit Up In South Korea

Seoul (AP) — South Korea's imports and exports on a customs clearance basis in the first seven months of 1974 totaled $3.9 billion and $2.7 billion, registering a deficit of $1.2 billion, the Economic Planning Board reported.

Babcock Source

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Montana Gov. Tim Babcock has been identified as the source of $54,000 in cash delivered to the 1972 Nixon campaign under the names of various donors, the Washington Star-News said Thursday.

It is illegal for donors to give to federal candidates under the names of other persons. The Star-News said it understands the donations are under investigation by Watergate prosecutors.

Babcock was an official of Occidental Petroleum Co., whose chairman Armand Hammer gave $46,000 to Nixon. The Star-News said this makes a round $100,000 from officials of the same firm.

Babcock resigned his Washington job with the firm a month ago and returned to Montana where he is engaged in private business. The Star-News said he refused to discuss the $54,000.

Tortillas Too Light; Prosecution Sought

The State Department of Agriculture will seek prosecution of an Omaha tortilla-maker accused of shortweighing corn and flour tortillas.

School Residency Opinion Declined

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska attorney general has declined to offer the Lincoln Public Schools an opinion on guidelines for students to qualify for free school privileges.

In a letter to Lincoln State Sen. Wally Barnett, who asked him if his office could respond to the residency issue, Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer said, "We regret that we cannot answer the question."

At issue is a request by Arthel Eugene Crump, a University of Nebraska law student, that the Lincoln Board of Education waive tuition for his brother-in-law, Patrick Cooke of New York City, to attend Lincoln High School.

Application Denied

On its attorney's recommendation, the board denied Crump's application on grounds Crump said he would provide only partial financial support of Cooke, 16.

But the board invited Crump to file suit in a test case on the residency and tuition questions, district policy for which is based on State Supreme Court rulings made 57 to 73 years ago.

Board attorney Willis Hecht appealed to the Legislature to pass a new law updating the guidelines.

Meanwhile, Crump asked the board to appeal to the attorney general for an opinion, rather than file suit. But Supt. John Prasch pointed out the board was not in a position to make such a request. Meyer's office deals only with state departments and not local school districts, he said.

Meyer, in dismissing Barnett's request on behalf of the district, explained, "The principal reason is that the Legislature has not authorized it. In such a case, our opinion would not be binding upon anyone and would be meaningless.

'Question Of Fact'

"An additional important reason," Meyer wrote, "is the fact that 'residents' is a question of fact and not of law, and so the answer should be worked out by the parties involved or by the courts."

Crump has asked the board itself to take the question to court for a declaratory judgment, but that was dismissed on grounds that if the board asked for court review of a decision it had already made, the district would be acting against itself.

Crump said he could not afford to pay the $1,500 tuition for Cooke, but the board agreed Cooke could begin school if a suit were filed, and Crump could delay paying tuition, with the requirement to be based on any opinion rendered.

A school administrator said Thursday the district has "not heard anything more from Crump" on what action he would take. Meanwhile, Cooke began classes as a junior at Lincoln High.

Prasch said earlier Crump had another option, amending his original application on behalf of Crump, to reflect any additional facts.

The Star's attempts to contact Crump, for comment on what actions he will take and on Meyer's letter, were unsuccessful.

Hospital Board OKs Participation Rules

By CINDY JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

The issue of public participation in meetings of the Lincoln General Hospital and Lincoln Hospital Association Board of Trustees sparked debate among board menbers at the group's regular meeting Thursday evening.

The proposal, which was ultimately adopted, states, "Any person including a member of the Board of Trustees desiring to place a matter upon the agenda for discussion and consideration by the Board of Trustees shall advise the administrator at least ten days prior to the date of the meeting of the Board of Trustees."

Such matters, the proposal goes on, "shall be in writing and shall set forth the general detail the nature and reason for the request and shall to the extent possible be accompanied by information which will aid the members of the Board of Trustees to consider the agenda item."

Majority Vote

Only by a majority vote of the members of the board present at the meeting may matters not on the agenda be brought before the board.

Voicing opposition to the proposal, board member John Robinson indicated his concern that it might inhibit public participation in board meetings.

"I think that there ought to be greater public access . . . to these meetings," he said, following adjournment.

"I don't see this as impeding anyone's opportunity to appear," countered Lincoln Attorney Norman Krivosha, who presented the proposal to the board.

Noting that "this board has limited jurisdiction," he went on to explain that the policy would allow the board "to respond to the individual;" to indicate to him or her prior to the meeting, whether or not the board has the power to deal with the matter in question.

If board members are permitted to consider the matter prior to the meeting, they will be able to act on it more expeditiously, he said.

'Not A Town Hall'

Expressing concern that, in the absence of such a policy non-board members might use meetings for publicity purposes, board chairman Walter E. Nolte said, "This is not a town hall meeting." It is simply a meeting "in the eyes of the public."

We have a difference of opinion as to what a public meeting is," Robinson responded.

In other action, the board tabled a proposed bylaws revision, because of insufficient board member attendance.

The matter will be considered at the next meeting.

Hospital administrator, W. Robert Brungard, reported the hospital's new comprehensive data processing system will become operational "about a year from now."

Currently in developmental stages, it "will be one of the most up-to-date systems in the country," Brungard said.

It will provide for the computerization of "a great deal of information about patients," he said. And it will "eliminate lots of hand-work," provide for "greater security," and facilitate the admission, discharge and transfer of patients.

Union Raps Federal Pay Raise Delay

A national representative of the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE) Thursday urged AFGE members to protest President Ford's proposed delay of a federal pay raise.

Carl W. Holt of Omaha said AFGE, with the support of 13 million AFL-CIO members, "is conducting an all-out battle to defeat President Ford's attempt to deny (federal employes) an equitable salary adjustment."

Holt said Ford's suggestion is of the same type as proposed by former President Nixon in 1972. That attempted delay was ruled illegal.

"It is an outright insult for anyone to imply that federal employes are the primary cause of inflation," he said.

Gas Found In Gulf

Pittsburgh, Pa. (AP) — Estimated and proved reserves totaling 180 billion cubic feet of natural gas have been discovered in the Gulf of Mexico off Louisiana, Consolidated Natural Gas Co. said.

400 Protest Dam Network On Creeks

Kennard (UPI) — Some 400 persons jammed the community hall here Thursday night, all opposing the network of 20 dams being constructed by the Army Corps of Engineers for flood protection and recreation on the Big and Little Papio Creeks which flow through populous West Omaha.

Bob Gottsch of Elkhorn, one of the organizers of the Papillion Valley Preservation Association, admitted the farmers are late in protesting, but said, "Farmers never could believe their elected representatives would allow such a thing to happen.

"The work on the first two dams and the forced land purchases by the Corps of Engineers have now finally convinced them of the terrible actuality of events," Gottsch said.

Taking Away Land

He predicted the dams would silt-up, "perhaps as soon as 10 years," and said the corps was taking land out of production "at a time when the demand for food is rising."

Gottsch promised the fight to save farm land would be pursued on all fronts, including the courts.

Dan Lynch of Omaha, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 2nd District, told the crowd he would support the newly-formed organization in a lawsuit to stop the projects.

Lynch also suggested the dams will not offer adequate flood protection.

Lawsuit Supported

State Sen. James Dickinson of Omaha said he would also support a lawsuit, and said he could see no reason to take land out of production for the dams and lakes.

"This fight is going to take money, and it's frustrating to have to spend money to save the taxpayers money from being spent," he said.

State Sen. Blair Richendifer of Walthill suggested pressure on the Legislature and letter-writing campaigns, but said "probably the only way to stop the project is though court action."

Cost $500,000

The four dams scheduled for construction in Washington County, he said, would not only remove valuable farm land from production but would also "remove a half-million dollars from the tax rolls which would have to be made up by local taxpayers."

Gottsch said the Interior Department had a plan for flood control without taking valuable land out of production.

"Upland water control, by adequate terracing and small drop-inlet dams which take very little land out of production, is the only way to go," he said.

Douglas Refuses To Delay Ehrlichman Trial

Washington (UPI) — Supereme Court Justice William O. Douglas Thursday refused a request by former No. 2 White House aide John D. Ehrlishman to further delay start of the Watergate cover-up trial scheduled for Sept. 30.

Ehrlichman, one of six defendants in the case, said it was impossible to have a fair trial because of the recent publicity surrounding the resignation of President Nixon.

Douglas denied Ehrlichman's request without issuing an opinion. He merely scribbled "denied" and his initials on the petition. The justice was vacationing at his wilderness home in Goose Prairie, Wash.

Earlier, Ehrlichman had asked Chief Justice Warren E. Burger to delay the trial. Burger declined and issued a four-page opinion on Aug. 28 saying the Supreme Court normally does not interfere with the mechanics of trial procedure.

Burger said the circuit courts of appeals must be looked to as the primary source of relief since such courts are in closer touch with the facts presented in the workings of the regular activities of the district courts within a circuit.

District Judge John J. Sirica had planned to start the trial next Monday. The Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia suggested — but did not order — a three-week delay and Sirica complied.

Ehrlichman submitted the same petitions to Douglas that he gave Burger. Douglas is the justice responsibile for the appeals circuit that includes Washington state, where Ehrlichman lives.

Ehrlichman, who was Nixon's domestic affairs adviser, also contended his lawyers had not had time to prepare a defense.

H. R. Haldeman, meanwhile, filed a new petition with the Supreme Court claiming the term of the Watergate grand jury expired last December and Congress extended it illegally.

Haldeman was indicted March 1, 1974, and told the Supreme Court the indictment should be dismissed. Both Sirica and the Court of Appeals have denied Haldeman's motion.

His Supreme Court petition does not have to be acted on before the cover-up trial begins, and it will not be considered until the justices start a new term next month.

Haldeman said Congress had violated his right to due process of the law when it made the highly unusual move of extending a regular grand jury term beyond the normal life of 18 months.

The five other persons facing trial Sept. 30 are Haldeman, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Gordon C. Strachan, Kenneth W. Parkinson and Robert C. Mardian.

All are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice in relation to a coverup of the break-in at the Democratic National Headquarters in the Watergate Hotel in June, 1972.

All but Parkinson and Mardian are also accused of perjury.

Test Case Starts Against Leases

©The New York Times

Tallahassee, Fla. — The State of Florida filed charges Thursday against one of its biggest condominium developers in an effort to break controversial recreation leases that cost consumers millions of dollars a year.

Florida Atty. Gen. Robert L. Shevin described the action as "very much a test case" aimed at ending the lease arrangements associated with most of the some 250,000 condominium units in the state.

The case is important nationally because of Florida's position as a condominium pioneer and because an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission is understood to center on the same issues raised Thursday.

'Unconscionable' Profit

Shevin charged that developers who invest perhaps $2 million in recreation facilities would typically reap an "unconscionable" windfall profit of between $3 million and $6 million annually for as long as 99 years.

Each condominium owner is required to pay the fees even if the facilities are not used. Many purchasers have asserted that the recreation leases, which commonly include an escalator clause tied to the cost of living, were not disclosed before their purchase.

These and other factors have made the recreation arrangements a highly charged issue here for several years. While the leases are most popular in Florida, they have turned up in other states as condominium housing spread.

84% Of Housing

Condominiums, in which a person holds title to his apartment and a joint interest in such common elements as elevators and greenswards, made up 84% of the housing built in South Florida last year.

The state cited two huge complexes called Century Village. One, in West Palm Beach, contains more than 7,800 units. The other, under construction in Deerfield Beach, will contain more than 8,000 apartments.

Buyers at both places are required to sign 99-year leases for such facilities as swimming pools, grymnasiums and billiard rooms. Failure to make payment on the lease is a ground for the developers attempt to foreclose on the owner's apartment.

Shevin contends that when the more than 15,800 units in both Century Village complexes are sold, the developers will received lease payments of more than $12 million a year, or more than $1.1 billion over the 99-year term.

President Out

H. Riwin Levy of Palm Beach, the president of the development concern, was reported to be out of town and could not be reached for comment on the state's charges. A spokesman said there would be no immediate comment

Developers generally have defended the leases on the ground that it allows them to offer their apartments at significantly lower prices because they can fall back on the lease payments.

Shevin's charges were brought as an administrative proceeding under the state's "little FTC act," a statute patterned after the Federal Trade Commission law.

Restrained Trade

The developers were accused of restraining trade "because they preclude condominium buyers from exercising their own free choice in selecting other recreational services" and bar competitors from offering such facilities.

The state also maintained the leases were an unfair trade practice because they forced condominium owners to pay "fees which are higher and more restrictive than the same services that would be available in a free competitive market."

Sugar Price To Fall; Little Relief Predicted

Washington (UPI) — Government and industry experts said Thursday sugar prices may soon decline, but consumers can expect only modest relief and another increase in soft drink prices.

"U.S. raw sugar prices appear likely to remain high for some time, though they may decline some from the current level of over 30 cents a pound," the U.S. Agriculture Department said in a food situation report.

A sugar industry spokesman agreed in an interview that refiners are expecting raw sugar prices to turn down soon.

But the report said that soft drinks, which use nearly a fourth of the nation's sugar supply, are likely to rise again in the third and fourth quarters of 1974 following sharp jumps during the past year.

Both government and industry economists said prices have jumped from last summer's average of about 10 cents a pound for raw sugar to about 34 cents because of a short world supply.

Douglas Refuses To Delay Ehrlichman Trial

Washington (UPI) — Supereme Court Justice William O. Douglas Thursday refused a request by former No. 2 White House aide John D. Ehrlishman to further delay start of the Watergate cover-up trial scheduled for Sept. 30.

Ehrlichman, one of six defendants in the case, said it was impossible to have a fair trial because of the recent publicity surrounding the resignation of President Nixon.

Douglas denied Ehrlichman's request without issuing an opinion. He merely scribbled "denied" and his initials on the petition. The justice was vacationing at his wilderness home in Goose Prairie, Wash.

Earlier, Ehrlichman had asked Chief Justice Warren E. Burger to delay the trial. Burger declined and issued a four-page opinion on Aug. 28 saying the Supreme Court normally does not interfere with the mechanics of trial procedure.

Burger said the circuit courts of appeals must be looked to as the primary source of relief since such courts are in closer touch with the facts presented in the workings of the regular activities of the district courts within a circuit.

District Judge John J. Sirica had planned to start the trial next Monday. The Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia suggested — but did not order — a three-week delay and Sirica complied.

Ehrlichman submitted the same petitions to Douglas that he gave Burger. Douglas is the justice responsibile for the appeals circuit that includes Washington state, where Ehrlichman lives.

Ehrlichman, who was Nixon's domestic affairs adviser, also contended his lawyers had not had time to prepare a defense.

H. R. Haldeman, meanwhile, filed a new petition with the Supreme Court claiming the term of the Watergate grand jury expired last December and Congress extended it illegally.

Test Case Starts Against Leases

©The New York Times

Tallahassee, Fla. — The State of Florida filed charges Thursday against one of its biggest condominium developers in an effort to break controversial recreation leases that cost consumers millions of dollars a year.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

Mexico — I was sitting in the Rivoli when the columnist, Pepe Romero, came in and said: "The father-in-law of the President has just been kidnapped!"

A couple of Americans — local residents — stood up and cheered. The father-in-law of President Echeverria is a general. He hasn't been popular, I gather. Somebody remarked that he was a "card-carrying Communist."

The general had a house on the edge of San Isidro. That's the posh golf and country club Bing Crosby is interested in. I stayed there a few weeks ago. I passed the general's house each night. There were no guards. The lights were on.

I could have put the sleeve on the general myself. I didn't know he was that valuable.

☆ ☆ ☆

Kidnaping is the new outdoor sport in Latin America. For two months now, Governor-elect Figueroa has been captive to a revolutionary cat named Cabanas.

"There are 16,000 soldiers out looking for him in the Guerrero Mountains," they told me in Mexico City.

The state of Guerrero has a long history of rebellion. It was the home of Zapata, the hero of the revolution.

Men on horseback have ridden out of the wild hills and held up the Mexico City-Acapulco bus.

It's lively country.

Lively around here, too. I was checking out of El Presidente when the moppets came up and cried: "We've found Insurgentes!"

Insurgentes is a scruffy dog who's been following them around for five days. They adore Insurgentes — named for the great cross-town street where they found him.

Insurgents rode the subway with them. I hired a taxi to watch him while we went to the bull fights. Then he disappeared. I was relieved because I was getting heavy pressure to take Insurgentes back to the States with us.

I said: "Blast it! I can't import Mexican dogs." I pointed out we'd need a vet with documents — you have to take animals for American visas.

They looked in the directory. They found a vet. They moaned and tears flowed like Mexican rain.

They said: "Insurgentes will die without us!"

Well, with a heart like warm butter, I said: "Let me think about it."

Then Insurgentes disappeared. Hallelujah!

He showed up at a pizza stand on Genova Street a half hour after I'd ordered a taxi to the airport.

I pointed out what Insurgentes would lose by coming with us. The herring mousse the Rivoli is famous for. The tail ends of Chateaubriand. The delicious white meat of Chicken Chitzen-Itza.

I said: "Also, Insurgentes only speaks Spanish. Who would he talk to?"

It was a harrowing goodbye. I couldn't stand to watch it myself. They hugged and kissed Insurgentes. (I said: "Be sure to wash your hands and face at the airport, hear?"

They swore Dario to give him the best of the chaud-froid with sauce Cumberland. (He swore it.) They made Pepe Romero promise to keep his name in the papers. (He promised.)

At The Age Of 25, Reporter Sees Childhood Dream Come True

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Every kid dreams of running away to join the circus or the carnival.

At the age of 25, I slipped back into childhood and, for an afternoon, that perpetual dream came true.

I signed on to work for Joyce's Nickel Toss at the 1974 edition of the Nebraska State Fair.

Little knowing what was in store for me, I reported for work confident that I could handle the minutest detail of the job.

Such naivete!

The minute I jumped into the nickel toss booth, I was handed an apron.

Four hundred nickels — $20 worth — were in one side pocket (the others were reserved for bills and other coins. My body leaning distinctly to the left, I lopsidedly stumbled to my post.

My duty was to give change to dollar bill-, quarter- and dime-toting players.

I nervously approached my first customer, dollar bill in his outstretched hand. "Let's see, how many nickels in a dollar?" I asked myself, fidgety fingers clumsily dropping the nickels into his hand. I felt like a human change machine.

"How do you win?" If I answered that question once, I must have answered it a thousand times that afternoon.

Again the machinelike feeling came over me.

"Toss a nickel in the red circle and you win a small teddy bear or stuffed dog. If it lands in the red circle inside the bonus square, you get the pick of the house."

I repeated the instructions so many times, I went to bed with the words reverberating in my head.

After an hour or so, I was hoarse. The constant repetition and attempt to make myself heard over the midway din had taken its toll.

Soon the crowd began to dwindle — there were no more outstretched hands demanding change.

Voice or no voice, I decided to cast my inhibitions to the wind and recruit new business.

"Step right up folks and test your skill. Win a teddy bear for your girlfriend. It only takes a nickel. A winner every time," I mumbled meekly. My efforts were in vein.

No one learned the ropes faster than I.

At first, I worked on every passerby. Then I discovered the true secret of working a midway booth — not everyone is interest in playing your game.

Soon, I narrowed my range of "possibles" to those who walked slowly, peering in to see what was happening. No sense wasting my efforts on those who marched along, glassy eyes fixed on some distant object.

"Come on in and give it a try," I said to those whose eyes furtively darted across the game and its waiting prizes.

Suddenly, I was jolted back to reality. "Lady, I won," said a young man pointing to a nickle clearly inside the red circle. He had, indeed.

"What on earth do I do now," I muttered under my breath, angry at my obvious display of amateurishness.

"What do I do? What do I say? That man over there just won," I said aloud, running to a co-worker.

I received my instructions and presented the man with a purple dog. The human slot machine coughed up another prize. My crisis was over and my stomach soon was rid of another herd of butterflies.

After 90 minutes of exchanging who knows how many nickles for dollars, quarters and dimes trying, usually unsuccessfully, to convince new players to rid themselves of their money; and explaining time and again the rules of the game, I turned in my apron.

Fingers black from handling the coins, I rubbed them on my jeans and lit a cigarette as I waited for the cashier to count my change.

"What if there really aren't 20 nickels in a dollar?" I asked myself, still uncertain about those math lessons. "What if I owe her money — that will be so humiliating."

The books finally balanced, the cashier handed me $1.25 — 10% of what I had brought in. I had counted out 250 nickles in the 90 minutes, nearly three a minute.

I tucked my earnings in my pocket and walked away.

I turned my back on all that had happened that day. On the haunting recollection of the discouraged youngsters who spent the last of their fair money trying to win a sourvenir; on the parents who made vain attempts at pacifying their children who just knew mom or dad would come through and win a stuffed animal; on the teenagers who bet their friends they could master the game.

And I also turned my back on another childhood fantasy.

Help! They're going fast! Reality's catching up!

Store Bread Properly To Preserve Quality

How bread is stored affects its eating qualities. Enriched bread may be stored in the refrigerator to retard mold, but the longer the refrigeration period, the firmer the bread becomes. Refrigeration tends to increase staling.

Special wrappers or special containers do not offset the effects of cool temperature on bread freshness. Freezing bread for a short time, however, keeps it in its fresh-from-the-oven condition, especially when reheated after thawing.

She's No Newcomer To Fair Competition

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

Mrs. Dean Williamson, who retired last year after nearly 31 years in the Civil Service, is no newcomer to State Fair cooking competition — she has been exhibiting "off and on" for 49 years.

"I started with a 4-H canning club," she said, "and in 1929, I took a five-jar meat exhibit to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago and won second place. I received a carving set and wrist watch as a prize."

So far this year, Mrs. Williamson has to her credit 15 blue ribbons, 11 red and four white for her 44 entries of canned fruits, vegetables, butters, jams, jellies, pickles and an emergency dinner.

"I've received no more than a red ribbon in the emergency dinner, but I'm still trying for a blue," she said.

"I like to make jam better than anything else. "I canned 200 jars this year. I had three jars and one jar lid left when the fair started."

Mrs. Williamson remembers when she used to help her mother can fruits and vegetables every year when she was growing up on a farm in Filmore County.

"My mother was always interested in canning things and that's where I got started," she said. "I was the oldest of six children and my mother, my sister and I used to can 500 to 1,000 quarts of fruits, vegetables, meat, jelly and jams."

Even now, though the number has been greatly reduced, Mrs. Williamson still has a demand for her canned items.

"I make dill pickles for my grandsons, jam with seeds for my granddaughter, apple butter for another grandson in Denver, mixed cucumber pickles for my daughter and daughter-in-law and jelly for my mother."

In addition, Mrs. Williamson uses her year-to-year supply in dinners she prepares each month for the 30 members of the Sunshine Bunch, a group of senior citizens at the Temple Baptist Church.

"I prepare the whole dinner from scratch," she explained. "I very seldom use convenience foods."

Besides her canning and cooking activities, Mrs. Williamson is a member of the Farmer's Club and the Lincoln Garden Club. And she enjoys sewing.

"I have 80 pieces of material to make clothes for myself, my family and missions," she said. "I'm White Cross chairman of my church and each year we send 2,000 pounds of used clothes and soap to the Indians and mountain missions.

"Every year I make 20 cans of lye into soap for the missions."

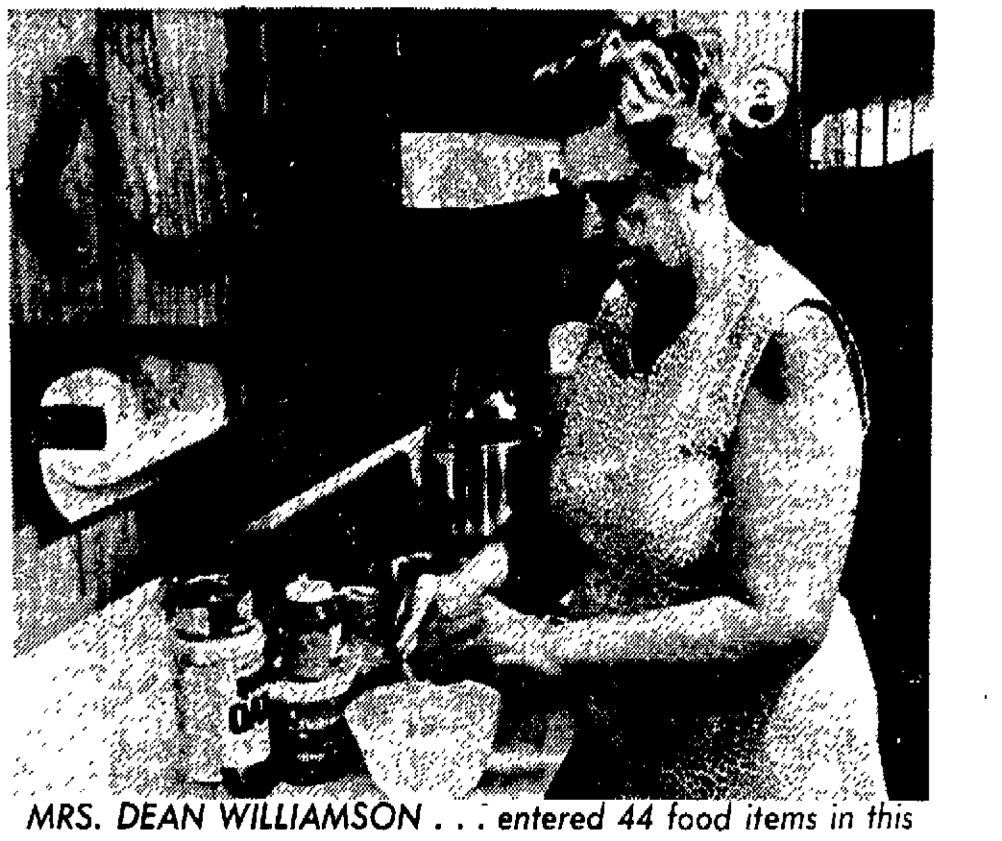
In spite of her busy schedule, Mrs. Williamson plans to initiate sewing and canning classes for young girls at her church "in the near future."

For those who like to experiment with new recipes, Mrs. Williamson offered this casserole dish, which she entered in the Miscellaneous Casserole competition at the Fair.

COTTAGE-TUNA LOAF

1 can tuna (6½ oz.)
¼ c. quick oatmeal
2 eggs, beaten
½ c. cottage cheese, creamed
2 t. grated onion
¼ t. pepper
½ t. prepared mustard
1 T. mayonnaise

Mix well and pour into buttered casserole. Sprinkle with 3 T. dry bread and 1 t. butter. Sprinkle with a little papricka and bake at 350° for 35 minutes.



MRS. DEAN WILLIAMSON . . . entered 44 food items in this year's State Fair.

Budget Casseroles

Recipes Are Winners

SURPRISE MEAT BALLS
Mrs. Lona Hansen,
1014 S. 22nd

Make your favorite meatloaf recipe, using a good grade of ground beef or, if price is no object, ground chuck. Flatten a patty in the palm of your hand and tuck in a bit of surprise — a mushroom, dill pickle or whatever you like. Fold shut and seal. Roll in flour, salt and pepper, just as you do chicken. Then brown in hot bacon drippings. Lift and arrange in large casserole. Sprinkle with a pinch or so of dried parsley and cover with one can of cream of mushroom soup, one soup can of water and one-half cup canned milk.

Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Bake 45 minutes at 325 degrees. Leave it covered until just before serving, then uncover and brown slightly in moderate oven.

Mrs. Hansen estimates total cost for six servings at $1.77 or 29¢ a piece.

BAKED CUCUMBERS
Mrs. Ralph Hitz,
1624 N. 29th

3 or 4 peeled cucumbers, sliced
1 medium onion
1 can cream of celery soup
1/3 cup milk
1/3 cup grated cheese
1/2 tsp. salt

Slice layers of peeled cucumbers and onion into casserole. Heat soup, milk, cheese and salt until cheese melts. Pour over cucumbers. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

DANISH CHEESE BAKE
Mrs. Lona Hansen

¼ lb. Danish bacon (for flavor)
1 lb. imitation processed cheese spread
6 oz. noodles, boiled in slightly salted water until limp
1 can canned milk
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
¼ cup minced green or red pepper
2 tbsps. finely chopped onion
2 tbsps. finely chopped celery (you can also substitute cream of celery soup for the canned milk and chopped celery)
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut bacon into small pieces and fry until crisp while noodles are cooking. Drain fat from bacon and add chopped vegetables. Saute until vegetables are transparent looking. Butter large casserole. Put in drained noodles. Chop imitation processed cheese into ½-inch cubes and add along with vegetables. Stir until mixed. Top with broken cracker crumbs or bread crumbs and little grated cheese. Cover with canned milk and season with salt and pepper.

Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until bubbly and brown. Serve hot. The Danish bacon gives this dish a very distinct smoked flavor.

Mrs. Hansen estimates you can serve eight persons for as little as $1.40 or 18¢ a piece.

VEGETABLE CASSEROLE SUPREME

Cheryl Kay Walker
of Waverly

10-oz. pkg. frozen green beans
10-oz. pkg. frozen broccoli
10-oz. pkg. frozen cauliflower
1 layer boiled onions
1 cup (8 slices) diced American cheese
2 cans warmed cream of mushroom soup
1 layer seasoned bread dressing

Boil each of frozen vegetables separately in slightly salted water. Drain and layer in a large casserole in this order — beans, broccoli and cauliflower. Add layer of onions. Sprinkle with diced cheese. Pour mushroom soup over top.

Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Remove from oven and top with seasoned bread dressing. Return to oven for 10 minutes and serve hot.

Mrs. Walker said 12 four-oz. servings would cost the average homemaker $2.01 or 17¢ a serving.

Sift Bread Crumbs

After crushing enriched bread crumbs, sift them to separate fine and coarse crumbs. Store the two kinds of enriched bread crumbs separately to be ready for different purpose, such as thickening and coating.

2 cans warmed cream of mushroom soup
1 layer seasoned bread dressing

Boil each of frozen vegetables separately in slightly salted water. Drain and layer in a large casserole in this order — beans, broccoli and cauliflower. Add layer of onions. Sprinkle with diced cheese. Pour mushroom soup over top.

Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Remove from oven and top with seasoned bread dressing. Return to oven for 10 minutes and serve hot.

Mrs. Walker said 12 four-oz. servings would cost the average homemaker $2.01 or 17¢ a serving.

Sift Bread Crumbs

After crushing enriched bread crumbs, sift them to separate fine and coarse crumbs. Store the two kinds of enriched bread crumbs separately to be ready for different purpose, such as thickening and coating.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	2 ♣
2 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 ♥
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Dble

Opening lead - ace of hearts.

This deal occurred in the match between Venezuela and Canada in the 1968 World Olympiad.

At the first table, the Canadian North-South pair staggered into game on the bidding shown. The Venezuelan East could easily have let the bidding die at two spades, and he furthermore made a doubtful double of four spades when North belatedly raised partner to game. As a result of these questionable maneuvers by East, the Canadians came home with a lucky 790 points.

At the second table, the Venezuelan North-South pair, Rossignol and Berah, conducted an eminently sound auction and quickly got to game on this sequence:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	2 ♣
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

Berah evaluated his hand much more accurately after passing originally and hearing his partner's opening diamond bid. So, over two clubs—with a singleton in the enemy's suit and a diamond fit with partner — he jumped to three spades to show extremely promising game values.

Rossignol naturally raised to four and West (Sheardown) led the nine of clubs. Berah ducked in dummy and, strangely enough, this turned out to be a fatal play. It enabled East (Elliott) to play his lowest club on the nine, thus strongly suggesting that partner switch to some other suit.

It was not difficult for West to read that East wanted a diamond shift. Accordingly, he played a low diamond at trick two. Declarer followed low from dummy, but was now fighting a losing cause. Elliott ruffed, returned a heart to Sheardown's ace, and another diamond lead put the contract down one.

Had Berah covered the nine of clubs with the jack, he would have made the contract very easily.

Schools Shouldn't Ban Controversial Books

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: As a teacher of 11th grade English, may I respond to the irate parent who objected to the "trashy" books his child was required to read in school? That letter could have been directed at me personally because I have recommended such widely accepted literary classics as "The Grapes of Wrath," "Brave New World," and the ever-controversial "Catcher In The Rye."

First of all, I respect the wishes of any parent who does not want his child to read certain books, and if the parent has the courage to let me know directly (and not through an anonymous phone call to my principal), I will gladly suggest some alternatives.

Second, I, like you, Abby, am also "turned off" by certain vulgar four-letter words, mainly because of my own straight-laced upbringing. However I suggest that no one can judge a book by selecting isolated passages from it. For instance, both "Grapes of Wrath" and "Catcher In The Rye" deal with the importance of feeling a sense of concern and responsibility for one's fellowman.

I realize that this letter is probably much too long for your column, but I feel so strongly about the value of presenting modern, readable and relevant books to our teenagers that I wish to air my views. As a teenager I never was nearly as excited about books as I am today, and I attribute my lack of enthusiasm to the dull, "safe," uncontroversial books which were the typical fare for high school English classes back in the '50s.

I want more than anything else to create in my students a genuine desire to read, and that can be accomplished only by exposing them to thought-provoking books that speak directly to them in modern language which, unfortunately, often includes a few words which happen to be offensive to me.

A TEACHER (I HOPE)

DEAR TEACHER: Well put. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: A poor, homely type girl became impregnated by a married man who had no intention of leaving his wife and marrying her. The poor girl says it's too late for an abortion, but the father of the unborn suggested that she have the baby and let him and his wife adopt it as they were childless and desperately wanted a child.

This would have been a perfect solution to everybody's problem. But you say "no," and even have the gall to suggest that the child be handed over to an adoption agency!

How can you be so narrow-minded? Any child born under such circumstances would rather be in a home with its biological father than in a "nice" home with adopted strangers.

Are you so arrogant that you think you can play "God" with people's lives with your often biased advice? It seems to me that you need a little advice yourself.

J.C.F.

DEAR MR. F.: What assurance have you that after this unwed mother hands over the child to the man with whom she's in love (a "detail" you ignored) she will simply disappear forever?

I have received many letters from people who have been a party to such a deal, much to their regret.

DEAR ABBY: I've often considered writing to you about this, but then I would think: "It's too silly!" Now, I've had it.

We share a duplex house with two of the warmest, kindest people in the world. They are always so nice. That's the trouble, they are TOO nice!

When the mister cuts his grass, he cuts ours too. I know this is silly, but it bugs me. I LIKE to cut my own grass! I've told him not to bother, that I would do it in the evening, but then he says: "That's all right. I already have my lawn mower out."

Abby, I've gone out and started mowing my lawn, and he has the nerve to come over, shut my mower off and say: "Now, you go tend your baby, and let me do this." (They have no children and are quite a bit older than we are.)

Abby, I truly like this sweet old neighbor, but he is carrying a good deed too far. How can I tell him?

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

DEAR KEEP: Tell him that you WANT to cut your own grass because you NEED the exercise. Now what warm, kind, sweet old neighbor would deprive you of your exercise?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Will 1984 Housewives Be Less Fastidious?

New York (UPI) — All you punk housewives, hear this:

By 1984 the nation will have fewer super-fastidious homemakers—the kind whose homes look as though there should be a velvet rope across the entrance to every room.

There's nothing bad about a person keeping a house in showcase condition. But it's hard on the punk housewives—also called, in housework circles, "escape artists." Their life's work is escaping housework.

Everytime a punk housewife sees a super homemaker's pad, she gets guilty feelings. The super homemaker's showcase of cleanliness also sometimes bothers the "realist" housewife.

Her cleaning habits are better than the punk's but can't come up to those of the super homemaker.

A market research study aimed at showing characteristics of the 1984 woman found that the super homemaker, now 40% of all homemakers, will be found in only 20% of households by 1984.

The "escape artist" homemakers—a la punk—will make up 20% of the homemakers, as they do today. But the realist homemakers—the middle group—will make up 60% of the homemakers, compared to 40% today.

The study by Herbert Zeltner and Associates at Kenyon & Eckhardt Advertising in New York also showed other characteristics of the 1984 woman, some surprising.

In an interview, the senior vice president in charge of marketing research for the ad agency, said the baby bust or birth dearth we now are experiencing—with births down to 3.2 million a year—probably will be ended by 1984. There will be fewer births per household, but since there will be more households there will be more births in total.

Estimates range from 3.6 to 4.2 million, according to Jean Rosenthal, the agency's vice president for market development.

Marks of the super homemaker: A showcase home, compulsively pursues cleanliness for its own sake, restricts family to maintain order and expects guest to admire the home. The super homemaker looks on food as she would a love object.

The realist homemaker maintains a pleasant environment, is good at housekeeping and pursues cleanliness for comfort. Food in this household is viewed with enjoyment and appreciated for its nutrition. The family is relaxed but shares the chores. Guests are made comfortable.

The escape artists, just this side of slob, views the home for what it is — fuel. The family in this household isn't restricted with a bunch of neatness rules but is expected to help. And guests? They're expected to accept the cluttered homefront—without commenting.

Other shifts in the households of 1984 :

— 46 million women will be in the 20-to-44 age bracket, compared to 36 million today and 30 million 10 years ago. That's a 10 million increase in the segment of the female population in the child bearing and household formation years.

— 58 million households will have wife-husband, compared to 49 million today, putting to rest the notion that the standard family makeup is on the way out.

—The educational attainment of women will continue to go up and something like 1.3 million women will be graduating from college.

—More women will be in the labor force. In fact, 46% of the married women will be in the labor force and 46% of all women in general, will be working. Interestingly, 61% of the women 20-to-44 will be working, compared to 53% in that category working today. The research analysts expect this big turnout of young mothers to spur growth of for-profit daycare centers.

The marketing research study found also that in terms of 1984 lifestyles, most families will be somewhere in the middle, combining the general values and needs of both traditional and avant garde.

The traditional values include doing the right thing, being bound by rules and roles, stickler for manners. The modern, tending to hedonism, is relaxed, sociable, casual.

Schools Shouldn't Ban Controversial Books

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: As a teacher of 11th grade English, may I respond to the irate parent who objected to the "trashy" books his child was required to read in school? That letter could have been directed at me personally because I have recommended such widely accepted literary classics as "The Grapes of Wrath," "Brave New World," and the ever-controversial "Catcher In The Rye."

First of all, I respect the wishes of any parent who does not want his child to read certain books, and if the parent has the courage to let me know directly (and not through an anonymous phone call to my principal), I will gladly suggest some alternatives.

Second, I, like you, Abby, am also "turned off" by certain vulgar four-letter words, mainly because of my own straight-laced upbringing. However I suggest that no one can judge a book by selecting isolated passages from it. For instance, both "Grapes of Wrath" and "Catcher In The Rye" deal with the importance of feeling a sense of concern and responsibility for one's fellowman.

I realize that this letter is probably much too long for your column, but I feel so strongly about the value of presenting modern, readable and relevant books to our teenagers that I wish to air my views. As a teenager I never was nearly as excited about books as I am today, and I attribute my lack of enthusiasm to the dull, "safe," uncontroversial books which were the typical fare for high school English classes back in the '50s.

I want more than anything else to create in my students a genuine desire to read, and that can be accomplished only by exposing them to thought-provoking books that speak directly to them in modern language which, unfortunately, often includes a few words which happen to be offensive to me.

A TEACHER (I HOPE)

DEAR TEACHER: Well put. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: A poor, homely type girl became impregnated by a married man who had no intention of leaving his wife and marrying her. The poor girl says it's too late for an abortion, but the father of the unborn suggested that she have the baby and let him and his wife adopt it as they were childless and desperately wanted a child.

This would have been a perfect solution to everybody's problem. But you say "no," and even have the gall to suggest that the child be handed over to an adoption agency!

How can you be so narrow-minded? Any child born under such circumstances would rather be in a home with its biological father than in a "nice" home with adopted strangers.

Are you so arrogant that you think you can play "God" with people's lives with your often biased advice? It seems to me that you need a little advice yourself.

J.C.F.

DEAR MR. F.: What assurance have you that after this unwed mother hands over the child to the man with whom she's in love (a "detail" you ignored) she will simply disappear forever?

I have received many letters from people who have been a party to such a deal, much to their regret.

DEAR ABBY: I've often considered writing to you about this, but then I would think: "It's too silly!" Now, I've had it.

We share a duplex house with two of the warmest, kindest people in the world. They are always so nice. That's the trouble, they are TOO nice!

When the mister cuts his grass, he cuts ours too. I know this is silly, but it bugs me. I LIKE to cut my own grass! I've told him not to bother, that I would do it in the evening, but then he says: "That's all right. I already have my lawn mower out."

Abby, I've gone out and started mowing my lawn, and he has the nerve to come over, shut my mower off and say: "Now, you go tend your baby, and let me do this." (They have no children and are quite a bit older than we are.)

Abby, I truly like this sweet old neighbor, but he is carrying a good deed too far. How can I tell him?

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

DEAR KEEP: Tell him that you WANT to cut your own grass because you NEED the exercise. Now what warm, kind, sweet old neighbor would deprive you of your exercise?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Will 1984 Housewives Be Less Fastidious?

New York (UPI) — All you punk housewives, hear this:

By 1984 the nation will have fewer super-fastidious homemakers—the kind whose homes look as though there should be a velvet rope across the entrance to every room.

There's nothing bad about a person keeping a house in showcase condition. But it's hard on the punk housewives—also called, in housework circles, "escape artists." Their life's work is escaping housework.

Everytime a punk housewife sees a super homemaker's pad, she gets guilty feelings. The super homemaker's showcase of cleanliness also sometimes bothers the "realist" housewife.

Her cleaning habits are better than the punk's but can't come up to those of the super homemaker.

A market research study aimed at showing characteristics of the 1984 woman found that the super homemaker, now 40% of all homemakers, will be found in only 20% of households by 1984.

The "escape artist" homemakers—a la punk—will make up 20% of the homemakers, as they do today. But the realist homemakers—the middle group—will make up 60% of the homemakers, compared to 40% today.

The study by Herbert Zeltner and Associates at Kenyon & Eckhardt Advertising in New York also showed other characteristics of the 1984 woman, some surprising.

In an interview, the senior vice president in charge of marketing research for the ad agency, said the baby bust or birth dearth we now are experiencing—with births down to 3.2 million a year—probably will be ended by 1984. There will be fewer births per household, but since there will be more households there will be more births in total.

Estimates range from 3.6 to 4.2 million, according to Jean Rosenthal, the agency's vice president for market development.

Marks of the super homemaker: A showcase home, compulsively pursues cleanliness for its own sake, restricts family to maintain order and expects guest to admire the home. The super homemaker looks on food as she would a love object.

The realist homemaker maintains a pleasant environment, is good at housekeeping and pursues cleanliness for comfort. Food in this household is viewed with enjoyment and appreciated for its nutrition. The family is relaxed but shares the chores. Guests are made comfortable.

The escape artists, just this side of slob, views the home for what it is — fuel. The family in this household isn't restricted with a bunch of neatness rules but is expected to help. And guests? They're expected to accept the cluttered homefront—without commenting.

Other shifts in the households of 1984 :

— 46 million women will be in the 20-to-44 age bracket, compared to 36 million today and 30 million 10 years ago. That's a 10 million increase in the segment of the female population in the child bearing and household formation years.

— 58 million households will have wife-husband, compared to 49 million today, putting to rest the notion that the standard family makeup is on the way out.

—The educational attainment of women will continue to go up and something like 1.3 million women will be graduating from college.

—More women will be in the labor force. In fact, 46% of the married women will be in the labor force and 46% of all women in general, will be working. Interestingly, 61% of the women 20-to-44 will be working, compared to 53% in that category working today. The research analysts expect this big turnout of young mothers to spur growth of for-profit daycare centers.

The marketing research study found also that in terms of 1984 lifestyles, most families will be somewhere in the middle, combining the general values and needs of both traditional and avant garde.

The traditional values include doing the right thing, being bound by rules and roles, stickler for manners. The modern, tending to hedonism, is relaxed, sociable, casual.

Sullivan Blasts Drivers

By The Associated Press

State Motor Vehicles Director John L. Sullivan said Thursday that the current highway safety campaign has been "an exercise in frustration" and "this disgusting waste of life on our highways" will continue until "Nebraska drivers begin acting like mature and responsible drivers."

In a prepared statement Sullivan said:

"We've distributed 100,000 bumper stickers, 8,000 posters, personally contacted over 100,000 Nebraskans through traffic safety stops, distributed highway safety-oriented public service announcements to all radio and television stations and have received excellent press coverage. In addition, private sector groups have gone all out for this cause.

"The states surrounding Nebraska have witnessed reduction in fatalities of between 34 and 22%, while Nebraska hangs in there with a mere 3% reduction. For our state to experience a 30 reducation in fatalities, we would have to have no more than 40 traffic deaths between today and New Year's Eve! If you check with the Accident Records Bureau, you'll find that in the past three years we've averaged that many deaths in a single month.

"There's one thing we can't do. We can't sit in the front seat of every car in the state, showing each driver in the basics of driving to stay alive. Our warnings have fallen on deaf ears. Until the time when Nebraska drivers begin acting like mature and responsible drivers, we'll continue witnessing this disgusting waste of life on our highways."

Is Mrs. Campbell Top Contender?

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Anne M. Campbell, director of public affairs for the University of Nebraska, is considered by knowledgeable educators to be the top contender for state commissioner of education.

Willard Waldo of DeWitt, chairman of the State Board of Education's search committee, said in a telephone interview that a candidate has been chosen for consideration by the full board Friday.

However, Waldo and other board members refused to confirm or deny persistent talk among educators that Mrs. Campbell is the committee's choice.

No Application

Waldo said Mrs. Campbell has "never really applied" for the post, although her name has been suggested and she has been approached.

Anne M. Campbell

Mrs. Campbell was reportedly among the top contenders for the post 5½ years ago and was actively seeking the job, when the board named Cecil Stanley to succeed the controversial Floyd Miller.

Contacted Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Campbell would not confirm or deny reports that she would be the committee's choice, adding, "I'm in no position to make that announcement."

Waldo said the committee has a back-up candidate in the event a division in the board exists. Sources believe that Roger Clough, York superintendent of schools for the past six years, is the back-up candidate.

Other candidates considered at one time or another during the past nine months reportedly include Lincoln Schools Supt. John Prasch, Dist. 66 Supt. Vaughn Phelps and Hastings Supt. Thomas Keating.

Salary to $32,000

Salary restrictions have narrowed the field. Stanley, who will retire in December, currently earns $28,000 per year. The board earlier suggested salary negotiations with the new commissioner might range as high as $32,000.

In addition to Waldo, search committee members are R. Jerry Hargitt of Omaha and Walter Moller of Wayne.

Mrs. Campbell, who has held the NU post since 1972, has also served as administrative assistant for public affairs with the Lincoln school system and Madison County school superintendent. She holds a Ph.D. in education.

The board, in voting to force Stanley into retirement in December, is signaling a desire to take the administrative reins in areas it has avoided in recent times, one board member has suggested privately.

Areas the board has generally treaded upon lightly include the level of state support for public schools, school reorganization, special education, sex education and school integration.

One board member said privately he expects major reshuffling of the department and a more active board to take place once the new commissioner is on the job.

Floating Lights Mystery To Lawmen

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Law enforcement officers in eastern Nebraska saw lots of moving lights in the sky late Wednesday night and early Thursday morning.

Officers said sightings ranged as far east as Blair, as far west as Albion, as far south as Beatrice and as far north as Norfolk.

"It's got us kind of spooked," said Fremont Assistant Police Chief Francis Hurt. "I still wonder what they were.

"I wasn't the only one who saw them," Hurt noted. He said officers were reporting the sightings on the sheriff's radio network, the Fremont police network and State Patrol frequencies.

Moved In A Line

Among the objects or lights that Hurt saw between 9 p.m. and 1:30 a.m. were three that moved east across the sky in a line the third above and slightly behind the other two.

A fourth light, he said, hung in the sky northeast of Fremont for at least three hours. He said the light moved slightly to the east during that time. He said the light alternated from red and white to green and white.

The lights made no sound, Hurt said. He noted that he did see a helicopter and fixed-wing aircraft during that time and was able to identify them as aircraft.

'Floating Moon'

Ron Kreifels, a trooper stationed near Fremont, said he saw what looked like a "floating moon," near Winslow (about ten miles north of Fremont.) He said the light suddenly winked out as he watched.

He said he believes he was about three-fourths of a mile from the light that appeared to be about 20 feet from the ground.

Saline County Deputy Sheriff Arlen Stahl turned in a report that he watched lights in the sky near DeWitt for about 2 hours from 3 a.m. to 5 a.m.

Appear In Groups

He said he first saw clear, sharp, white light, combined with a red flashing light. Later other lights appeared, more or less out of nowhere, he said, in groups of four or five and five or six.

An especially large light appeared southeast of Dewitt he said. It appeared to have two smaller lights near it, at positions that would be 11 and 5 o'clock on a clock face

Astronomers Norman Simon and Kam-Ching Leung and atmospherics expert J. Sampson at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln were unable to provide an explanation for the sightings described to them.

A spokesman for the U.S. Weather Service said the weather was "perfectly clear" during the sightings.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration's flight service station in Lincoln said no flight was logged here that would account for the sighting but he noted pilots are not required to file flight plans in clear weather.

The August corporate bankruptcies left $533 million in bad debts, down 33.2% from July, but up 72.5% from a year earlier, the agency said.

Ziebarth Apologizes To All Women

Mrs. Smith, a Republican, has criticized Democrat Ziebarth for his statements relating to women, and their roles in politics.

Last week, Ziebarth was quoted as saying he thought a woman's place is in the home. He later said he welcomed women in politics, and clarified his earlier statement by saying that is how he and Mrs. Ziebarth felt on the issue.

Mrs. Smith took immediate offense at the statement, and Ziebarth reportedly said he would apologize.

During Thursday's confrontation, Ziebarth said the meaning of his initial statements were misinterpreted by the press.

"I was only referring to my wife's choice, and certainly not to my daugther's choice, who happens to be on the Status of Women Commission in Nebraska and is very active in politics," Ziebarth said of his first statements on the woman's role in today's society.

"My wife, being the opposite, prefers the family life in preparing the meals for the children, doing the gardening, and basically this is the reason," the former state senator added.

Ziebarth offered to apologize to Mrs. Smith for the remarks if Mrs. Smith took the comments as they appeared in the media, and not the way he had meant them.

Mrs. Smith replied by saying that she did not feel Ziebarth should apologize to her personally, but to all of the women in Nebraska.

Ziebarth then apologized.

Responding to the apology, Mrs. Smith said, "My oppoent's statement has nothing to do with the three basic questions he raised in the minds of the voters in the last week."

On another statement attributed to Ziebarth, that he had not found one Republican man who supported Mrs. Smith's candidacy, Mrs. Smith said Ziebarth has one of three serious weaknesses.

Either he (Ziebarth) does not listen, or cannot remember what people say or he has not talked to any Republican men, Mrs. Smith said.

Law enforcement officers in eastern Nebraska saw lots of moving lights in the sky late Wednesday night and early Thursday morning.

Officers said sightings ranged as far east as Blair, as far west as Albion, as far south as Beatrice and as far north as Norfolk.

"It's got us kind of spooked," said Fremont Assistant Police Chief Francis Hurt. "I still wonder what they were.

"I wasn't the only one who saw them," Hurt noted. He said officers were reporting the sightings on the sheriff's radio network, the Fremont police network and State Patrol frequencies.

Moved In A Line

Among the objects or lights that Hurt saw between 9 p.m. and 1:30 a.m. were three that moved east across the sky in a line the third above and slightly behind the other two.

A fourth light, he said, hung in the sky northeast of Fremont for at least three hours. He said the light moved slightly to the east during that time. He said the light alternated from red and white to green and white.

The lights made no sound, Hurt said. He noted that he did see a helicopter and fixed-wing aircraft during that time and was able to identify them as aircraft.

'Floating Moon'

Ron Kreifels, a trooper stationed near Fremont, said he saw what looked like a "floating moon," near Winslow (about ten miles north of Fremont.) He said the light suddenly winked out as he watched.

He said he believes he was about three-fourths of a mile from the light that appeared to be about 20 feet from the ground.

Saline County Deputy Sheriff Arlen Stahl turned in a report that he watched lights in the sky near DeWitt for about 2 hours from 3 a.m. to 5 a.m.

Appear In Groups

He said he first saw clear, sharp, white light, combined with a red flashing light. Later other lights appeared, more or less out of nowhere, he said, in groups of four or five and five or six.

An especially large light appeared southeast of Dewitt he said. It appeared to have two smaller lights near it, at positions that would be 11 and 5 o'clock on a clock face.

Astronomers Norman Simon and Kam-Ching Leung and atmospherics expert J. Sampson at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln were unable to provide an explanation for the sightings described to them.

A spokesman for the U.S. Weather Service said the weather was "perfectly clear" during the sightings.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration's flight service station in Lincoln said no flight was logged here that would account for the sighting but he noted pilots are not required to file flight plans in clear weather.

The August corporate bankruptcies left $533 million in bad debts, down 33.2% from July, but up 72.5% from a year earlier, the agency said.

Ziebarth Apologizes To All Women

Mrs. Smith, a Republican, has criticized Democrat Ziebarth for his statements relating to women, and their roles in politics.

Last week, Ziebarth was quoted as saying he thought a woman's place is in the home. He later said he welcomed women in politics, and clarified his earlier statement by saying that is how he and Mrs. Ziebarth felt on the issue.

Mrs. Smith took immediate offense at the statement, and Ziebarth reportedly said he would apologize.

During Thursday's confrontation, Ziebarth said the meaning of his initial statements were misinterpreted by the press.

"I was only referring to my wife's choice, and certainly not to my daugther's choice, who happens to be on the Status of Women Commission in Nebraska and is very active in politics," Ziebarth said of his first statements on the woman's role in today's society.

"My wife, being the opposite, prefers the family life in preparing the meals for the children, doing the gardening, and basically this is the reason," the former state senator added.

Ziebarth offered to apologize to Mrs. Smith for the remarks if Mrs. Smith took the comments as they appeared in the media, and not the way he had meant them.

Mrs. Smith replied by saying that she did not feel Ziebarth should apologize to her personally, but to all of the women in Nebraska.

Ziebarth then apologized.

Responding to the apology, Mrs. Smith said, "My oppoent's statement has nothing to do with the three basic questions he raised in the minds of the voters in the last week."

On another statement attributed to Ziebarth, that he had not found one Republican man who supported Mrs. Smith's candidacy, Mrs. Smith said Ziebarth has one of three serious weaknesses.

Either he (Ziebarth) does not listen, or cannot remember what people say or he has not talked to any Republican men, Mrs. Smith said.

Pastors Satisfied In Work

. . . Pay Is Low

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation is putting a particularly rough financial strain on Christian pastors, a new study indicates. They're the lowest paid among comparably educated professionals in the country, and their paychecks have lagged further behind.

These were among findings of an extensive, year-long study among 19 Protestant denominations by the National Council of Churches' Office of Church Leadership.

The results, issued Thursday, show that pastors of local churches currently are paid an average of $7,703 annually in salary. Other benefits, such as housing and utilities allowances, boost the average to $10,348 a year.

This is about half the average earnings of an attorney, accountant or personnel director, and puts the minister at the bottom of the list economically among professionals of comparable education in other fields.

Raises for ministers also have been slower to come.

However, 83 per cent of the pastors say they're satisfied in their work, even though the pay is low. Similarly, 84 per cent rejected a statement that years of low pay had left them discouraged with the ministry.

The study was directed by a City University of New York professor, Robert L. Bond, through a grant from the Ministers' Life and Casualty Union of Minneapolis. Findings were based on responses from 4,635 pastors.

In the past 10 years, it was found that ministers' salaries have risen an average of 54 per cent, slightly more than the estimated 41 per cent rise in living costs in that period. But among other professionals, income went up considerably more in that time — such as 77 per cent for lawyers, 76 per cent for personnel directors, 70 per cent for accountants and 61 per cent for chemists.

The ministry of the mainline churches generally requires three years of seminary education beyond a college degree.

Eighty-four per cent of the pastors, despite prevailing satisfaction with their work, consider their incomes too low in relation to others of similar education.

Sixty-five per cent of the pastors said their income was not adequate for family and personal needs.

To help meet the gap, an increasing proportion of clergy spouses now hold jobs — 45 per cent of them. This is twice the number of 10 years ago, and 3 per cent above the national average.

Moreover, 22 per cent of the parish pastors have secular jobs on the side, up from 15 per cent a decade ago.

High Court Refuses To Rehear Student Aid Case

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday refused to reconsider its earlier decision that a 1971 law designed to help private college students financially is unconstitutional.

When informed of the court's refusal to grant a motion for a rehearing in the case, Dr. Vance Rogers, president of Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln, said the decision would not be appealed to a higher court.

"We've now done everything we possibly could to test the legality of the law, and I feel that's the end of that particular road," Rogers told UPI.

Group Filed Suit

The suit challenging the validity of the law was instituted by the Nebraska Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, of which Wesleyan is a member.

As to any future efforts to gain financial assistance from the state for independent college students, Rogers said, "We really haven't discussed that yet."

However, a meeting of the association is planned for Sept. 23, and Rogers said the subject might come up.

The law was passed by the Legislature with the understanding it would be tested in the courts at the expense of the association.

$500 Per Year

Under the terms of the law, private school students would have been able to get up to $500 a year in state assistance.

The idea was to help pay the difference between the tuition rates charged by private colleges and those charged by public institutions of higher learning. Normally, private school tuition runs higher.

The high court struck down the law saying it violated constitutional prohibitions against the use of public funds for the benefit of private institutions.

Attorneys for the association, however, said that wasn't true.

Student Benefits

They contended it was the student who would have benefitted and not the college or university.

The Supreme Court also said the law violated the constitutional separation of church and state concept.

But attorneys for the colleges contended the church-state argument was invalid because while religion courses may be offered at many private colleges in the state, they weren't the primary academic goal of the institutions.

The high court also said if the tuition law was acceptable, it appeared to them there was no limit to the use public money could be put in the aid of private institutions.

State Tech College Board To Finalize Budget

The State Board of Technical Community Colleges will make final 1975-76 budget recommendations for the six community college areas at a 2 p.m. meeting Sept. 13, according to board Executive Director Robert C. Schleiger.

The board will meet in the Beatrice Room of the Nebraska Center, 33rd & Holdrege

The area boards have requested a total of about $30 million for projected budget items The state board will submit its funding recommendations to the State Department of Administrative Services for final approval by the 1975 Legislature.

The state board last month pledged to take a "hard-line stand" on granting budget increases, except for reasonable capital construction and equipment needs, and to maintain students' costs at current levels.

Schleiger said Thursday the board, instead of approving all the items built into the 1975-76 requests, will likely urge the area boards to look "realistically" at their purchasing and replacement needs over a five-year period.

"There's definitely a need" in each area, since little building and equipment updating has been done since the formation of the community college system July 1, 1973, Schleiger said. But the board will weigh establishing a state-wide approach and long-range planning for such needs.

In the morning before the official meeting, the board will conduct a first review of 1975-76 capital construction requests for the areas, with final recommendations scheduled to come at the November board session.

In other business at the September meeting, the board will review for possible adoption two policy statements regarding the standardized "continuing education unit" for all regular non-credit courses, and a proposed athletic conference of the community college areas.

Reports are also scheduled on competency-based teaching and the resulting output of students, Schleiger said, "in serving the needs of the state, rather than worrying about enrollment and budgets." Students at the completion of the competency-based programs will be identified as able to perform specific tasks or skills.

A report will also be made on the community college Management Information System now being developed for legislative approval "as early as possible after the first of January," Scheleiger said.

Burbach For Tech School Tax Levy

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Jules Burbach said Thursday that he was afraid the University of Nebraska and the state colleges would trample the technical community colleges if the tech schools were supported entirely by state funds.

The State Supreme Court has declared the local property tax for the tech schools unconstitutional.

Burbach, chairman of the legislature's Revenue Committee, said the university and the state colleges would have more powerful lobbies and would get most of the money available for higher education.

Burbach said an alternative would be to allow the schools to levy a 5-mill property tax. He said he believed the court would allow a property tax if it was the only support for the tech schools.

The court struck down the 1-mill property tax for the schools because the court said the property tax was being used for a state function.

Burbach said the legislature would have to appropriate $30 million from sales and income tax funds if it did not approve a property tax for the tech schools.

Required Recycling Proposed In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Mandatory recycling of newspapers for Omahans?

Mayor Edward Zorinsky and City Council President Robert Cunningham say they suppport such a proposal.

Last week, Councilman John Miller said he is considering introduction of an ordinance tha would require Omahans to keep newspapers separate in the weekly garbage pickup.

The "penalty" for not doing so would be simple: if you have newspaper mixed in with your garbage, it would not be picked up.

"I certainly support John Miller's idea." Zorinsky said. "I support the entire concept of recycling."

"My reaction to the plan is good," Cunningham said. "I just don't think people will do it unless there is some legal commitment."

But Councilman Jerry Hassett says he is against the proposal. "There are already too many regulations on citizens. We owe them good and adequate garbage pickup."

John Hlavacek said he is sympathetic to Miller's idea, "But it would be very difficult to enforce. We ought to urge people more to recycle voluntarily."

Leigh Building Burns

The two-story brick structure, which had housed the Westside Cafe and the George Kumpf real estate office, was reduced to rubble.

The cafe had closed its doors to business Monday. Kumpf had been in poor health for some time.

Firemen from Leigh, Clarkson, Creston and Humphrey battled to keep the fire from spreading to nearby businesses.

Proposal Criticized

Hong Kong (UPI) — The Peking newspaper People's Daily editorially criticized a proposed amendment to the Indian Constitution granting seats in the Indian Parliament to the tiny kingdom of Sikkim.

Thoughtful Gesture Out Of Hand

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Anna M. Ratell, a Springfield civic leader, considered it a "thoughtful gesture" when the local housing authority named an apartment project after her two years ago.

Not any more.

Mrs. Ratell said she has been besieged by telephone calls from angry tenants complaining about vandalism and burglaries. She said she explained she had nothing to do with running the buildings.

"I'd like to help the people, but it's really getting out of hand," she said.

The housing authority has agreed to rename the complex the "Moxon Projects," since it is located on Moxon Street.

$500 Per Year

Under the terms of the law, private school students would have been able to get up to $500 a year in state assistance.

The idea was to help pay the difference between the tuition rates charged by private colleges and those charged by public institutions of higher learning. Normally, private school tuition runs higher.

The high court struck down the law saying it violated constitutional prohibitions against the use of public funds for the benefit of private institutions.

Attorneys for the association, however, said that wasn't true.

Student Benefits

They contended it was the student who would have benefitted and not the college or university.

The Supreme Court also said the law violated the constitutional separation of church and state concept.

But attorneys for the colleges contended the church-state argument was invalid because while religion courses may be offered at many private colleges in the state, they weren't the primary academic goal of the institutions.

The high court also said if the tuition law was acceptable, it appeared to them there was no limit to the use public money could be put in the aid of private institutions.

Thoughtful Gesture Out Of Hand

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Anna M. Ratell, a Springfield civic leader, considered it a "thoughtful gesture" when the local housing authority named an apartment project after her two years ago.

Not any more.

Mrs. Ratell said she has been besieged by telephone calls from angry tenants complaining about vandalism and burglaries. She said she explained she had nothing to do with running the buildings.

"I'd like to help the people, but it's really getting out of hand," she said.

The housing authority has agreed to rename the complex the "Moxon Projects," since it is located on Moxon Street.

State Tech College Board To Finalize Budget

The State Board of Technical Community Colleges will make final 1975-76 budget recommendations for the six community college areas at a 2 p.m. meeting Sept. 13, according to board Executive Director Robert C. Schleiger.

The board will meet in the Beatrice Room of the Nebraska Center, 33rd & Holdrege.

The area boards have requested a total of about $30 million for projected budget items. The state board will submit its funding recommendations to the State Department of Administrative Services for final approval by the 1975 Legislature.

The state board last month pledged to take a "hard-line stand" on granting budget increases, except for reasonable capital construction and equipment needs, and to maintain students' costs at current levels.

Schleiger said Thursday the board, instead of approving all the items built into the 1975-76 requests, will likely urge the area boards to look "realistically" at their purchasing and replacement needs over a five-year period.

"There's definitely a need" in each area, since little building and equipment updating has been done since the formation of the community college system July 1, 1973, Schleiger said. But the board will weigh establishing a state-wide approach and long-range planning for such needs.

In the morning before the official meeting, the board will conduct a first review of 1975-76 capital construction requests for the areas, with final recommendations scheduled to come at the November board session.

In other business at the September meeting, the board will review for possible adoption two policy statements regarding the standardized "continuing education unit" for all regular non-credit courses, and a proposed athletic conference of the community college areas.

Reports are also scheduled on competency-based teaching and the resulting output of students, Schleiger said, "in serving the needs of the state, rather than worrying about enrollment and budgets." Students at the completion of the competency-based programs will be identified as able to perform specific tasks or skills.

A report will also be made on the community college Management Information System now being developed for legislative approval "as early as possible after the first of January," Scheleiger said.

Burbach For Tech School Tax Levy

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Jules Burbach said Thursday that he was afraid the University of Nebraska and the state colleges would trample the technical community colleges if the tech schools were supported entirely by state funds.

The State Supreme Court has declared the local proporty tax for the tech schools unconstitutional.

Burbach, chairman of the legislature's Revenue Committee, said the university and the state colleges would have more powerful lobbies and would get most of the money available for higher education.

Burbach said an alternative would be to allow the schools to levy a 5-mill property tax. He said he believed the court would allow a property tax if it was the only support for the tech schools.

The court struck down the 1-mill property tax for the schools because the court said the property tax was being used for a state function.

Burbach said the legislature would have to appropriate $30 million from sales and income tax funds if it did not approve a property tax for the tech schools.

Required Recycling Proposed In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Mandatory recycling of newspapers for Omahans?

Mayor Edward Zorinsky and City Council President Robert Cunningham say they suppport such a proposal.

Last week, Councilman John Miller said he is considering introduction of an ordinance tha would require Omahans to keep newspapers separate in the weekly garbage pickup.

The "penalty" for not doing so would be simple: if you have newspaper mixed in with your garbage, it would not be picked up.

"I certainly support John Miller's idea," Zorinsky said. "I support the entire concept of recycling."

"My reaction to the plan is good," Cunningham said. "I just don't think people will do it unless there is some legal commitment."

But Councilman Jerry Hassett says he is against the proposal. "There are already too many regulations on citizens. We owe them good and adequate garbage pickup."

John Hlavacek said he is sympathetic to Miller's idea, "But it would be very difficult to enforce. We ought to urge people more to recycle voluntarily."

Instructional TV Library Names Educators To Staff

Three educators have been named to the professional staff of the Great Plains National Instructional Television Library.

Those appointed are Dr. Allen R. Millar, who will be counselor for college and university programming; Patrick A. Drake, programming counselor and Gary L. Grenier, development specialist.

Millar served as president of Southern State College in Springfield, S.D., from 1962 to 1971 and has been a professor of education the past two years at South Dakota University at Vermillion.

Drake has been associated with a cable television operation in North Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, and Grenier has been an assistant principal and fifth grade science teacher at Woodrow Wilson School in Denton, Tex.

The library acquires, duplicates and distributes recorded instructional courses and materials to educational institutions and educational television stations throughout the United States.

Leigh Building Burns

The two-story brick structure, which had housed the Westside Cafe and the George Kumpf real estate office, was reduced to rubble.

The cafe had closed its doors to business Monday. Kumpf had been in poor health for some time.

Firemen from Leigh, Clarkson, Creston and Humphrey battled to keep the fire from spreading to nearby businesses.

Proposal Criticized

Hong Kong (UPI) — The Peking newspaper People's Daily editorially criticized a proposed amendment to the Indian Constitution granting seats in the Indian Parliament to the tiny kingdom of Sikkim.

Exon Declines To Attend Meet With Senators

Gov. J. James Exon has told State Sen. John DeCamp that he will not attend a meeting set up to discuss the state's handling of the financially troubled Pioneer Insurance Co.

DeCamp said he sent a message to the governor asking him to attend and the governor declined the invitation.

Exon sent a letter to DeCamp Wednesday calling for a meeting at 8 a.m. Friday between Pioneer Insurance Co. officials, State Sen. Loran Schmit, DeCamp and State Insurance Director James Jackson.

DeCamp said earlier "I don't see how the thing can be held without the governor."

Trade Magazine Says Industry Plans Expansion

Houston (AP) — A trade publication has forecast the hydrocarbon processing industry will spend $13.4 billion next year on capital improvements.

Hydrocarbon Processing magazine, in an annual survey, said the worldwide expenditures will include $6.3 billion for oil refining facilities, $5.3 billion for petrochemicals, $1.4 billion for gas processing, and $400 million for processing such solids as coal, shale, and tar sands.

Of the $6.3 billion in capital improvements for oil refining, the magazine said $1.6 billion will be spent in the United States and $4.7 billion in other areas of the world. It said about 15% of the $6.3 billion will be allocated to reduce waste effluents and to produce cleaner burning fuels.

Company Builds Soviets' First Bowling Center

The installation, scheduled for completion in late September, is the result of a 1971 agreement between Brunswick and the Soviet ministry of culture.

In addition to Brunswick bowling equipment, the Moscow center will be outfitted with other American-made products including air conditioners, carpeting, floor tiles, hand dryers, a cash register and a juke box.

Exon Declines To Attend Meet With Senators

Gov. J. James Exon has told State Sen. John DeCamp that he will not attend a meeting set up to discuss the state's handling of the financially troubled Pioneer Insurance Co.

DeCamp said he sent a message to the governor asking him to attend and the governor declined the invitation.

Exon sent a letter to DeCamp Wednesday calling for a meeting at 8 a.m. Friday between Pioneer Insurance Co. officials, State Sen. Loran Schmit, DeCamp and State Insurance Director James Jackson.

DeCamp said earlier "I don't see how the thing can be held without the governor."

Trade Magazine Says Industry Plans Expansion

Houston (AP) — A trade publication has forecast the hydrocarbon processing industry will spend $13.4 billion next year on capital improvements.

Hydrocarbon Processing magazine, in an annual survey, said the worldwide expenditures will include $6.3 billion for oil refining facilities, $5.3 billion for petrochemicals, $1.4 billion for gas processing, and $400 million for processing such solids as coal, shale, and tar sands.

Of the $6.3 billion in capital improvements for oil refining, the magazine said $1.6 billion will be spent in the United States and $4.7 billion in other areas of the world. It said about 15% of the $6.3 billion will be allocated to reduce waste effluents and to produce cleaner burning fuels.

Company Builds Soviets' First Bowling Center

The installation, scheduled for completion in late September, is the result of a 1971 agreement between Brunswick and the Soviet ministry of culture.

In addition to Brunswick bowling equipment, the Moscow center will be outfitted with other American-made products including air conditioners, carpeting, floor tiles, hand dryers, a cash register and a juke box.

Final 'Rehearsal' Set For Huskers

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska's football coaching staff will put the finishing touches on selecting personnel to play on kicking and kick return units Friday afternoon in preparation for Saturday's final dress rehearsal scrimmage in Memorial Stadium.

"I hate to work on it live," Coach Tom Osborne said, "but this is one phase of the game that hurt us last season. We had one kickoff returned for a touchdown and had two against Missouri that gave them great field position."

Present plans are for Don Westbrook and Bobby Thomas to be the deep men on kickoff returns. If Westbrook can't go full speed Saturday, the others who will get a look are Ritch Bahe, Tom Heiser or Dave Gillespie. Westbrook was held out of Thursday's workout with a knee strain received in Wednesday's scrimmage.

The kicking unit will be composed of mostly first stringers, but Osborne said there might be some second or third unit players, "but they'll be ones we feel best for the job."

On punt returns, either Thomas or John O'Leary will be deep with Dave Butterfield the up-back.

With the new rule forbidding blocking below the waist on kick returns, Osborne said work already has been done on that and filmed and that there has been no problems so far.

"I just hope in the excitement of the game they don't come unglued because it's a 15-yard penalty from the spot of the foul," Osborne said.

He said he asw no particular areas of concern that will require more work than others between now and the Oregon game.

There are a few players who received injuries in Wednesday's hitting session, but none were believed serious.

Held out Thursday, in addition to Westbrook, were linebacker Tom Ruud, who has a groin injury, quarterback Earl Everett, a bruised knee, and wide receiver Chuck Malito, a back injury.

A couple of other players injured previously are just about ready to resume full duty. Center Wayne Stuberg, who hurt a knee two weeks ago, ran well Thursday, but tackle George Mills still isn't running full speed on an injured knee.

Osborne said Saturday's scrimmage would be the last heavy contact for the balance of the season for the top two units. "We may have some occasional one-on-one blocking for five or ten minutes, but never any scrimmage," he said.

Saturday's scrimmage will be a full dress rehearsal, not only for the players, but for everyone connected with putting on a football game in the stadium.

The 1:30 p.m. session will have a full crew of officials, the scoreboard clock will be in operation and coaches will work on phones from the press box and on the sidelines.

The first unit isn't expected to be in action for more than a half and all the action will be against Oregon offenses and defenses run by the scout team.

Osborne said he may beef up the scout team in a few areas since the varsity moved at will against it Wednesday.

Matuszak's Case Discussed In Court

HOUSTON (UPI) — John Matuszak, decorated with green shoes, gold glasses and a silver bauble hanging in the hair on his chest, testified Thursday the National Football League contract he signed with the Houston Oilers was "an obvious form of coercion."

The 6-8, 285-pound defensive lineman said he should be allowed to jump the NFL and play with the Houston Texans of the World Football League.

Bill Pakalka, attorney for Matuszak and the Texans, told State District Judge Arthur Lescher that contracts binding players to the NFL through the option clause were "a onesided, one-way street" favoring owners.

Matuszak, testifying for an hour, said he had no choice but to sign a four-year contract with the Oilers last year as the NFL's No. 1 draft choice. The WFL did not then exist.

"It was either sign this contract or not play football at all," he said, glowering down from the witness stand. "They (Oilers) had sole right to me and if I did not agree to the terms, I would not be allowed to play in my country.

"I want to play in this country," said the giant lineman who wore a green and white checkered sports coat over an open-collar white shirt. "This is the land of the free and the home of the brave. That's what my country stands for."

He said his signing with the Oilers: "It's an obvious form of coercion. Either you sign the contract or not play."

The Oilers seek an extension of a temporary injunction to prevent Matuszak from playing with the WFL. Court was recessed for the day and the judge gave the lineman and the Texans until noon Saturday to reply to a legal brief filed earlier in the day by the Oilers.

Matuszak cannot play for the WFL Texans until Lescher rules. The big lineman testified he had received no money from the Texans. He and his attorney strongly criticized the standard NFL contracts and the "Rozelle Rule" that allows Commissioner Pete Rozelle to decide compensation should a player jump from one NFL team to another.

"So what you're saying is 'Welcome to the wonderful world of NFL football. This is not a democracy. This is a dictatorship.' Isn't that right?"

Gillman did not answer and slumped in the witness chair with a disgusted look. Earlier, Gillman, wearing his usual bow tie, said to Matuszak's lawyer: "You're a smart aleck."

Matuszak was served with a temporary restraining order last week in the middle of the Texans-New York Stars game. The Oilers must show cause why the former Tampa University player should be held to his contract.

Lesher must decide whether to continue the order as a temporary injunction, thus preventing Matuszak from playing for the Texans until the Oiler contract can be tried on its merits.

The Texans said they found a "loophole" in Matuszak's contract, but testimony indicated the WFL newcomer was questioning all NFL contracts.

Gillman, the first witness called, said in two hours of testimony that Matuszak was signed to four one-year contracts with an option each year by the Oilers.

"It was suggested by the NFL office that we sign a player to separate one-year contracts rather than one containing contract for, say, four years," Gillman said.

Pakalka tried to establish that, with the strike by this year's NFL players still in effect, Matuszak had no appeal of more than $20,000 in fines levied by Gillman. The attorney said the player's contract calls for a salary of $25,000 this year.

"So if he shows up like a good boy tomorrow then he may get $10,000 for playing this year," Pakalka said.

Gillman has fined Matuszak $500 for each practice and team meeting he has missed. The coach said the big lineman would have to pay the entire amount before he could return to the Oilers.

The entire Oiler team, coaches and management were subpoenaed for the hearing and many were sworn in as witnesses and asked by Judge Lesher to leave the courtroom during testimony. Oiler owner Bud Adams said in the back of the room.

When it was discovered during the proceeding that several coaches remained in the courtroom by misunderstanding, Lesher gave the courtroom a football air.

"I can't tell 'em with out a program," he said.

American Duo In Semifinals

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors and Roscoe Tanner, two young American turks, Thursday joined Australian veterans John Newcombe and Ken Rosewall in the semifinals of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

The prize scalp went to the unseeded Tanner, who picked this day to register his first ever victory over Stan Smith, the third seed and 1971 champion, 7-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Connors downed Russia's Alex Metreveli, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1; Newcombe, the defending champion came back from the brink to defeat Arthur Ashe, 46, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, while Rosewall gave India's Vijay Amritraj a set start and 19 years in age before dumping him, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

In the women's singles semifinals Friday, Chris Evert meets Evonne Goolagong and three-time champion Billie Jean King faces unseeded Julie Heldman, who knocked Billie out in the third round last year.

Tanner, only 11th on the 1974 money list with $60,125, jumped the net when he passed Smith on the match point and the 14,916 crowd rose to cheer his victory. The 22-year-old from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., said later, "This has to be my greatest ever win."

In a match of big serving and cut-and-thrust at the net, Smith came up with eight aces against six for Tanner, while he served five doublefaults to Roscoe's three.

Both men held reasonably comfortably in the first set until the tie-break, which Tanner won, five points to two Roscoe broke for 2-1 in the second set and again in the second game, while a fourthgame break was sufficient to give Smith the third set.

But Tanner was not to be denied on this day and he raced to a 4-0 lead in the fourth set and Smith was unable to recover.

Connors, who lost to Metreveli in the Wimbledon semifinal in 1973 and was only 1-1 with him this year, spotted the Russian the first set, but then came back, playing mostly from the baseline and relying on Metreveli errors.

Jimmy trailed 3-0 in the first set, broke for 4-2 in the second when Metreveli doublefaulted and then went ahead 5-3 in third when he broke at love. In the decisive fourth set, Connors broke for 2-1 when Metreveli netted an easy forehand volley.

Brewers Bounce Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Gorman Thomas' two-run homer in the ninth inning gave the Milwaukee Brewers a 4-3 victory over Boston and knocked the reeling Red Sox out of first place in the American League East.

Thomas, recalled from the minors just this week when the player limit was raised to 40, stroked his third career major league home run, with Darrell Porter on first base via a walk from loser Diego Segui, 6-7.

No Motivation Necessary For Links-Pius X Game

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

When Lincoln High and Pius X collide in the season's first intra-city football game Friday night at Seacrest Field, motivation won't be a problem for either team.

Third-year Lincoln High coach Jerry Ball and Pius X's Vince Aldrich, launching his 25th coaching season in Lincoln, can use any number of motivational cues to spur his team.

Pius X, of course, is coming off an unbeaten season and defending its state Class B championship.

The Thunderbolts also can use the same kind of inspirational messages they used last year. That is, Lincoln High may be their last intra-city football opponent in years.

Additionally, Pius X lost all 22 starters from last year and therefore figures it's in an ideal situation to ambush one of the state's projected Class A powers.

Lincoln High, however, can counter with equally powerful motivation factors. The biggest? Turning a whole program into the right direction.

Although it may be premature, it's not too early to set goals. And Lincoln High is the only one of five Capital City teams not experiencing a state football championship within the last four years.

East, winner of two straight state titles and within reach of a third last season before losing its last two games, faces a different kind of challenge this weekend.

The Spartans travel to Omaha Gross Saturday night for a game at Burke Stadium. Gross, which has cracked the final state Class B ratings the past three seasons, is expected to advance to Class A status next week.

Gross also will move into the Omaha Metro Conference next year in place of Boys Town, which withdrew last spring because of a declining enrolment.

East coach Lee Zentic is understandably wary of his opening foe. "I expect to run into a real solid football team," he says. "I hope our players are thinking exactly the same thing."

Northeast and Southeast, forecast as the city's top two prep teams this year, open their respective seasons on the road Friday night.

The Rockets travel to North Platte to tackle the defending Big 10 Conference champions. The Knights visit Fremont, which hopes to rebound from a rare below .500 season.

After Friday's Pius X-Lincoln High collision, there won't be an intra-city game for three weeks when Northeast and Lincoln High meet Sept. 27. All prep games start at 7:30 p.m.

Archery Popularity Growing

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

In the days of Robin Hood, archery was a popular sport and a means of providing meat for the dinner table. Then came the firearm, and archery lost its number one game-getter role, and the luster of tournaments dimmed.

Now archery is returning to the popularily ratings as America's fastest growing participation sport. Bowhunting permits for deer and antelope are being sold by the thousands in every state. Target-shooting tournaments are getting hundreds of entries where 50 might have been common in the past.

Archery equipment is in such demand, sporting goods dealers are unable to stock their shelves and archery gear makers are unable to meet request dates for shipments of orders to the stores.

Lincoln's own archery club, the Lincoln Prairie Bowmen, is also feeling the interest boom. Memberships are over 75 with a substantial increase in the past year.

The Lincoln club is one of the oldest in the state, originating around 1951. It is also one of the most talented of clubs, bringing home a good share of the state shooting trophies annually.

There are four major state archery tournaments annually, according to club vice president Paul Eiland. The state indoor, the state target, the state animal and the state field championships are rotated from site to site each year.

The state indoor and target tournaments resembles the old shoots with simple target shooting the main event.

The state animal championships, held in July, are target shooting at animal faces or silhouettes and are scored by number of hits in vital and non-vital areas to simulate hunting conditions.

The state field, an August shoot, incorporates the shooting skills of both the target shooter and the bow hunter.

Eiland was in the running for an overall championship honor this year with a win at the state target championship, a gold medal for winning a flight at the state indoor and was second in the state animal competition.

Eiland joins fellow club champions, Mike Swiggart, the bow hunting champ; Lincoln High senior Chris Beardslee, a four-time state champ and winner of this year's indoor, target and animal titles; and 11-year-old Gene Beardslee, the cub free-style field shoot winner and gold medalist at the state animal shoot; among others.

The Prairie Bowmen hope to educate new bowmen Saturday by assisting with the Lincoln Young Hunters Clinic at the Lincoln Izaak Walton League. They'll pass along tips on equipment, technique and other useful tips for the bow hunter as one of six educational stations in operation at the daylong clinic.

The club will also sponsor a Bowhunters Jamboree Sunday on its club grounds, located across from the Peterson Construction Company on S. 14th Street. Bowhunters will begin shooting at animal targets at 9 a.m.

The Prairie Bowmen are expecting a good turnout with the increased bowhunting interests in Nebraska, and hope to reach more potential hunters with prior warning.

"A lot of new bowhunters feel all they need to do is go buy equipment, and sometimes they even get the wrong equipment, then wait for the season to open and go out to shoot their deer," Swiggart commented.

"We need to educate these people properly," club president Charles Beardslee said.

Final 'Rehearsal' Set For Huskers

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska's football coaching staff will put the finishing touches on selecting personnel to play on kicking and kick return units Friday afternoon in preparation for Saturday's final dress rehearsal scrimmage in Memorial Stadium.

"I hate to work on it live," Coach Tom Osborne said, "but this is one phase of the game that hurt us last season. We had one kickoff returned for a touchdown and had two against Missouri that gave them great field position."

Present plans are for Don Westbrook and Bobby Thomas to be the deep men on kickoff returns. If Westbrook can't go full speed Saturday, the others who will get a look are Ritch Bahe, Tom Heiser or Dave Gillespie. Westbrook was held out of Thursday's workout with a knee strain received in Wednesday's scrimmage.

The kicking unit will be composed of mostly first stringers, but Osborne said there might be some second or third unit players, "but they'll be ones we feel best for the job."

On punt returns, either Thomas or John O'Leary will be deep with Dave Butterfield the up-back.

With the new rule forbidding blocking below the waist on kick returns, Osborne said work already has been done on that and filmed and that there has been no problems so far.

"I just hope in the excitement of the game they don't come unglued because it's a 15-yard penalty from the spot of the foul," Osborne said.

He said he asw no particular areas of concern that will require more work than others between now and the Oregon game.

There are a few players who received injuries in Wednesday's hitting session, but none were believed serious.

Held out Thursday, in addition to Westbrook, were linebacker Tom Ruud, who has a groin injury, quarterback Earl Everett, a bruised knee, and wide receiver Chuck Malito, a back injury.

A couple of other players injured previously are just about ready to resume full duty. Center Wayne Stuberg, who hurt a knee two weeks ago, ran well Thursday, but tackle George Mills still isn't running full speed on an injured knee.

Osborne said Saturday's scrimmage would be the last heavy contact for the balance of the season for the top two units. "We may have some occasional one-on-one blocking for five or ten minutes, but never any scrimmage," he said.

Saturday's scrimmage will be a full dress rehearsal, not only for the players, but for everyone connected with putting on a football game in the stadium.

The 1:30 p.m. session will have a full crew of officials, the scoreboard clock will be in operation and coaches will work on phones from the press box and on the sidelines.

The first unit isn't expected to be in action for more than a half and all the action will be against Oregon offenses and defenses run by the scout team.

Osborne said he may beef up the scout team in a few areas since the varsity moved at will against it Wednesday.

Matuszak's Case Discussed In Court

HOUSTON (UPI) — John Matuszak, decorated with green shoes, gold glasses and a silver bauble hanging in the hair on his chest, testified Thursday the National Football League contract he signed with the Houston Oilers was "an obvious form of coercion."

The 6-8, 285-pound defensive lineman said he should be allowed to jump the NFL and play with the Houston Texans of the World Football League.

Bill Pakalka, attorney for Matuszak and the Texans, told State District Judge Arthur Lescher that contracts binding players to the NFL through the option clause were "a onesided, one-way street" favoring owners.

Matuszak, testifying for an hour, said he had no choice but to sign a four-year contract with the Oilers last year as the NFL's No. 1 draft choice. The WFL did not then exist.

"It was either sign this contract or not play football at all," he said, glowering down from the witness stand. "They (Oilers) had sole right to me and if I did not agree to the terms, I would not be allowed to play in my country.

"I want to play in this country," said the giant lineman who wore a green and white checkered sports coat over an open-collar white shirt. "This is the land of the free and the home of the brave. That's what my country stands for."

He said his signing with the Oilers: "It's an obvious form of coercion. Either you sign the contract or not play."

The Oilers seek an extension of a temporary injunction to prevent Matuszak from playing with the WFL. Court was recessed for the day and the judge gave the lineman and the Texans until noon Saturday to reply to a legal brief filed earlier in the day by the Oilers.

Matuszak cannot play for the WFL Texans until Lescher rules. The big lineman testified he had received no money from the Texans. He and his attorney strongly criticized the standard NFL contracts and the "Rozelle Rule" that allows Commissioner Pete Rozelle to decide compensation should a player jump from one NFL team to another.

"So what you're saying is 'Welcome to the wonderful world of NFL football. This is not a democracy. This is a dictatorship.' Isn't that right?"

Gillman did not answer and slumped in the witness chair with a disgusted look. Earlier, Gillman, wearing his usual bow tie, said to Matuszak's lawyer: "You're a smart aleck."

Matuszak was served with a temporary restraining order last week in the middle of the Texans-New York Stars game. The Oilers must show cause why the former Tampa University player should be held to his contract.

Lesher must decide whether to continue the order as a temporary injunction, thus preventing Matuszak from playing for the Texans until the Oiler contract can be tried on its merits.

The Texans said they found a "loophole" in Matuszak's contract, but testimony indicated the WFL newcomer was questioning all NFL contracts.

Gillman, the first witness called, said in two hours of testimony that Matuszak was signed to four one-year contracts with an option each year by the Oilers.

"It was suggested by the NFL office that we sign a player to separate one-year contracts rather than one containing contract for, say, four years," Gillman said.

Pakalka tried to establish that, with the strike by this year's NFL players still in effect, Matuszak had no appeal of more than $20,000 in fines levied by Gillman. The attorney said the player's contract calls for a salary of $25,000 this year.

"So if he shows up like a good boy tomorrow then he may get $10,000 for playing this year," Pakalka said.

Gillman has fined Matuszak $500 for each practice and team meeting he has missed. The coach said the big lineman would have to pay the entire amount before he could return to the Oilers.

The entire Oiler team, coaches and management were subpoenaed for the hearing and many were sworn in as witnesses and asked by Judge Lesher to leave the courtroom during testimony. Oiler owner Bud Adams said in the back of the room.

When it was discovered during the proceeding that several coaches remained in the courtroom by misunderstanding, Lesher gave the courtroom a football air.

"I can't tell 'em with out a program," he said.

American Duo In Semifinals

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors and Roscoe Tanner, two young American turks, Thursday joined Australian veterans John Newcombe and Ken Rosewall in the semifinals of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

The prize scalp went to the unseeded Tanner, who picked this day to register his first ever victory over Stan Smith, the third seed and 1971 champion, 7-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Connors downed Russia's Alex Metreveli, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1; Newcombe, the defending champion came back from the brink to defeat Arthur Ashe, 46, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, while Rosewall gave India's Vijay Amritraj a set start and 19 years in age before dumping him, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP)—A Friday night scrimmage is expected to decide several starting positions on Iowa State's football team, Coach Earle Bruce said following a light two-hour workout Thursday.

Bruce said Jack Thomas and Sherman Miller are waging a tight duel at offensive right guard. The right tackle spot between Arlen Ciechanowski and Dave Greenwood is still up for grabs as well at tight end where Al Dixon is battling Glover Rogers.

"Right now I guess you could say that our teams are about as set as they can be," Bruce said. "We won't make any final decisions until after the scrimmage."

Bruce said split end Rob Overton and Forry Smith will alternate at that position.

The Cyclones are holding a closed night scrimmage at an unannounced out of town location to prepare for their opener next week at Texas Tech which will be played at night.

Yankees' Pilot, Virdon, Modest Over Success

NEW YORK (AP) — Can a man go from being fired in the National League one season to Manager of the Year in the American League the next... via a brief stopover in the Pacific Coast League?

"I don't like to take credit for any of this," Bill Virdon said Thursday as he contemplated a torrid 16-4 record over the last three weeks that has earned the New York Yankees a share of first place in the American League's East Division.

"I don't think a manager can take credit for the way the players play or for things that happen on the field. You might put the guys out there, but they've got to do the job."

After piloting the Pittsburgh Pirates to a first-place finish in the National League East in 1972—they lost the pennant on a wild pitch in the ninth inning of the final playoff game—Virdon was fired last September with the Pirates in second place. They finished third.

He was hired by the Houston Astros to manage their Denver farm club in the Pacific Coast League but the Yankees beckoned when Joe Cronin, then president of the American League, vetoed their signing of Dick Williams.

Virdon was well aware that Williams had managed the Oakland A's to three division titles and two world championships in three years.

"I'm sure some people will always compare the job I do with what Williams might have done," he said, "but I can't let that worry me. I can't manage like Williams; I can only manage like I manage."

Along the way, Virdon managed to ruffle a few feelings. It's no secret the Yankees haven't been a happy club much of the season.

The unhappiness surfaced in April with the trade of pitchers Steve Kline, Fritz Peterson, Fred Beene and Tom Buskey to Cleveland for first baseman Chris Chambliss and pitchers Dick Tidrow and Cecil Upshaw.

It continued in May when Virdon shifted Bobby Murcer, the team's top hitter and fiveyear center fielder, to right field and put Elliott Maddox in center. The move has strengthened the Yankee defense and Maddox leads the regulars with a .308 batting average.

"I think all the things that happened were a natural reaction," Virdon said. "The players had been friends for so long with the guys we traded and Murcer had been in center field for so long that I don't think the reaction was anything unexpected. I just thought our defense would be better with Maddox in center and Murcer in right.

"But those have been the only two incidents and they weren't big things. If you go on and win, those things will take care of themselves."

Virdon annoyed a few players with his honesty, players who were used to being coddled and protected publicly by Ralph Houk, Virdon's predecessor.

"It took a helluva lot of guts to do some of the things Bill did and make some of the moves he made," said one Yankee. "Ralph might have said the hell with it. I really think it was time for a change."

Virdon raised a few eyebrows when he criticized the defensive play of second baseman Horace Clarke—since traded—and the weak throwing arm of left fielder Roy White, criticisms which had been aired for years by writers covering the team.

He spoke his mind when he thought someone misplayed a ball where Houk might have blamed the field conditions. Hardly a day went by without some player airing a new complaint.

He benched Graig Nettles for a week after Nettles tailed off drastically from a record 11 home runs in April, only to read the left-hand hitting third baseman's comment that "I always need a rest against a right-handed pitcher after a day off."

He bypassed one of Pat Dobson's starts and once lifted him in the fifth inning of a 2-1 game and the pitcher sounded off both times. He played Ron Blomberg every day for a while but finally sat him down even against right-handers when he lost his batting stroke and then heard Blomberg beef about it.

He heard backup catcher Rick Dempsey—and White, too—ask to be traded so they could play every day. He heard Bill Sudakis say he should be the first baseman because Chambliss wasn't hitting. He heard Gene Michael complain when he lost his shortstop job to Jim Mason, 12 years younger, in spring training. And he heard Murcer admit he wasn't thrilled about being moved from center field.

On the field, only Maddox, left fielder Lou Piniella and second baseman Sandy Alomar among the regulars have had outstanding years—and Maddox didn't become an everyday performer until late May while Alomar has only been a Yankee since midseason. Murcer and catcher Thurman Munson have had off years and Mel Stottlemyre, the club's long-time pitching star, has won one game since April and has been sidelined since June. Sparky Lyle has not been the near-perfect relief ace of the past.

Virdon took it all in stride.

"My biggest problem was not knowing the personnel on other teams," he insisted.

If the Yankees should manage to win the pennant, wouldn't it be nice to face the Pirates in the World Series?

"I'd enjoy it," Virdon said, "but it wouldn't mean anything special. But let's worry about our division first. We've got our work cut out for us the next few weeks, but the players think they can win now."

So does the manager.

Boone Lifts Phillies By Cubs

Chicago (UPI) — Bob Boone's bases-loaded single with one out in the 11th inning scored Willie Montanez and Mike Anderson Thursday to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-5 win over the Chicago Cubs and their first extra-inning victory since April 14.

The two 11th-inning runs also were the first scored in extra innings by the Phillies since April 14 and ended a string of seven straight overtime losses. The victory broke a three-game losing streak for Philadelphia and exended the Cubs losing streak to four games.

Montanez doubled to open the 11th and went to third on Anderson's single. Pinch-hitter Ollie Btrown flied out and Anderson reached second after the catch. Jay Johnstone was walked intentionally to fill the bases before Boone's hit.

Boone's blow saddled the fifth of six Chicago pitchers, Dave LaRoche, with his fourth loss against three wins.

Brock's Patience Under Pressure

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Affable Lou Brock is holding up well under pressure but there may be a limit to even his endurance.

The 35-year-old St. Louis Cardinals star, who early this week was set to laugh his way past Maury Wills' stolen base mark, took a different view Wednesday night.

"There are limits to everything," the mild-mannered Brock said quietly after a frustrating, 1-for-5 performance at the plate

"Reporters come in before the game, and I try to be polite to them all. My only explanation finally is that I've got to go to work

"But then tonight some guy, he wasn't even a member of the press, was down in the dugout and he had his kid with him and wanted to take a picture.

"I said 'sure,' but it took quite a while to get it arranged and I really needed the time in the batting cage. I guess it's hard for people to understand."

Through the years the Cards' "Mr. Cordiality," Brock may have applied pressure to himself by announcing this week he intends to crack Wills' record 104 stolen bases at home.

He deftly swiped No. 99 in the second game of a doubleheader against the Montreal Expos Tuesday night but had no opportunity for No. 100 the next.

With the New York Mets and Philadelphia Phillies to visit over the weekend in conclusion of the home stand, he needs six in five games to fulfill his vow.

"Time and circumstances," Brock mused on a stool at his locker long after the Cards had conquered the Expos 5-4 Wednesday night.

"I can't get in a position where I have to run every time I get on base. It's got to be coordinated. There has to be a purpose for stealing"

Once there he scans increasing volumes of mail, dresses slowly and generally obliges some reporters' requests before taking the field.

"I had a guy thought that called me the other day and wanted to set up an appointment for me to call him at 6 p m. Sunday," he said icredulously, however.

"I told him I didn't know what I'd be doing then but that he could call after the game and I'd talk to him."

BIG 8 REPORT

Kansas

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Dean Baird, starting Kansas linebacker the past two seasons, reinjured a knee which was operated on over the summer and will miss the Washington State football opener, Coach Don Fambrough said after Thursday's practice.

Baird had been hobbling through drills on a twisted ankle, and reinjured the knee Thursday.

Oklahoma State

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Oklahoma State Coach Jim Stanley had praise for his offense after pushing the Cowboys through a two-hour scrimmage Thursday afternoon.

"The offense had some great moments, but sometimes the defense acted like it was feeling sorry for itself," Stanley said. "But, the defense picked up at the end and was super in goal line work."

Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Emphasis was on the passing game Thursday as Colorado football Coach Bill Mallory put his team through a two-hour drill covering all phases of the game.

The Buffs have been working on the grass practice field as much as possible because the opening game against Louisiana State will be played on natural turf in Tiger Stadium.

Center Pete Brock probably will be out for several days because of an injured ankle. But he is expected to be in action for Saturday's scrimmage.

Mallory said the scrimmage, the team's third, will be closed to the public.

Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)- Kansas State went through a light 90-minute workout in shoulder pads and shorts Thursday in preparation for Friday night's annual varsity-junior varsity football game.

The contest will be played at the Manhattan High School Stadium and will be the Wildcats' last contact work before the opening of the season against Tulsa Sept. 14 in Manhattan.

"It gives us a game-type situation before a crowd and with a band and real officials," Coach Vince Gibson said.

Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)Missouri's controlled football scrimmage Thursday "wasn't very polished and the execution was just not as good as we would like it," said Coach Al Onofrio.

"It just was not very good teamwork," he said, noting when you have only partial hitting it is hard to "have it work out very well."

He said Ken Downing would be used as both a kickoff and punt return specialist. Tony Gillick would also run back punts and Bill Ziegler, Steve Mally and Joe Stewart also would return kickoffs, he said.

The Lobber's At It Again

Las Vegas, Nev. (UPI) — On a $25,000 bet, tennis player Bobby Riggs left Las Vegas by motorcycle Thursday in an effort to reach Twin Falls, Idaho, before Evel Knievel makes his jump Sunday across the Snake River Canyon.

Riggs said he bet Knievel that he could ride the 646 miles within 72 hours.

The tennis player, 57, said he had never before "ridden a motorcycle around the block." One of his last big gambles was a tennis match with Billie Jean King, the woman who soundly trounced him on national television.

The Philadelphia Phillies' Larry Bowa is caught in a rundown play between the Chicago Cubs' second baseman Ron Dunn and pitcher Rick Reuschel (48), who tagged Bowa out.

Boone Lifts Phillies By Cubs

Chicago (UPI) — Bob Boone's bases-loaded single with one out in the 11th inning scored Willie Montanez and Mike Anderson Thursday to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-5 win over the Chicago Cubs and their first extra-inning victory since April 14.

The two 11th-inning runs also were the first scored in extra innings by the Phillies since April 14 and ended a string of seven straight overtime losses. The victory broke a three-game losing streak for Philadelphia and exended the Cubs losing streak to four games.

Montanez doubled to open the 11th and went to third on Anderson's single. Pinch-hitter Ollie Btrown flied out and Anderson reached second after the catch. Jay Johnstone was walked intentionally to fill the bases before Boone's hit.

Boone's blow saddled the fifth of six Chicago pitchers, Dave LaRoche, with his fourth loss against three wins.

Brock's Patience Under Pressure

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Affable Lou Brock is holding up well under pressure but there may be a limit to even his endurance.

The 35-year-old St. Louis Cardinals star, who early this week was set to laugh his way past Maury Wills' stolen base mark, took a different view Wednesday night.

"There are limits to everything," the mild-mannered Brock said quietly after a frustrating, 1-for-5 performance at the plate.

"Reporters come in before the game, and I try to be polite to them all. My only explanation finally is that I've got to go to work.

"But then tonight some guy, he wasn't even a member of the press, was down in the dugout and he had his kid with him and wanted to take a picture.

"I said 'sure,' but it took quite a while to get it arranged and I really needed the time in the batting cage. I guess it's hard for people to understand."

Through the years the Cards' "Mr. Cordiality," Brock may have applied pressure to himself by announcing this week he intends to crack Wills' record 104 stolen bases at home.

He deftly swiped No. 99 in the second game of a doubleheader against the Montreal Expos Tuesday night but had no opportunity for No. 100 the next.

With the New York Mets and Philadelphia Phillies to visit over the weekend in conclusion of the home stand, he needs six in five games to fulfill his vow.

"Time and circumstances," Brock mused on a stool at his locker long after the Cards had conquered the Expos 5-4 Wednesday night.

"I can't get in a position where I have to run every time I get on base. It's got to be coordinated. There has to be a purpose for stealing."

Once there he scans increasing volumes of mail, dresses slowly and generally obliges some reporters' requests before taking the field.

"I had a guy thought that called me the other day and wanted to set up an appointment for me to call him at 6 p.m. Sunday," he said icredulously, however.

"I told him I didn't know what I'd be doing then but that he could call after the game and I'd talk to him."

A Couple of Biggies On Card

The college football season begins Saturday with a light, but promising list of games. One of them matching UCLA at Tennessee will kickoff the 1974 NCAA television series Saturday.

Another game Monday night will be nationally televised from Atlanta, Ga., where Coach Pepper Rodgers will unveil his Georgia Tech Yellowjackets against defending national champion Notre Dame.

Those two contests should wet the appetities of Nebraska football fans who still have a week to wait before the Cornhuskers open against Oregon in Memorial Stadium.

UCLA is the predicted winner over the Vols in a high-scoring contest while Notre Dame will win what experts are calling a probable romp for the Irish over Tech.

The Star this season will carry the ratings and predications of Mort Olshan, one of the original handicappers whose opinions have been highly respected for many years.

Valued SEC observers hit at decline in Tennessee recruiting, resulting in a benevolent defense that may well betray the Vols again this season.

In 1973, it yielded over 300 yards a game, 176 of them against the rush. Reports indicate this department has not been shored up substantially from a year ago when the Vols lost four games and won five others by 1, 2, 3, 4 and 6 points against foes not in UCLA's class.

Although the Tennessee offense misses three veteran backs, it still has quarterback Conredge Holloway who figures to give foes fits again this season.

UCLA Line Awesome

UCLA, 9-2 last season, boasts awesome offensive interior line averaging 258 pounds. The defense graduated a couple of key people, but the newcomers are exceptional.

Olshan picks the score to be UCLA 30, Tennessee 23. He says UCLA will be ready mentally for the opener after being destroyed by Nebraska in its 1973 debut.

After losing here 40-13, the Bruins went on to average 43 points a game, three times scoring more than 60 points. UCLA, like Tennessee, will be running the Veer-T offense.

In picking Notre Dame to win 31-0, Olshan says Rodgers, who jumped from UCLA to Georgia Tech, needs time to improve Tech recruiting, which hasn't been good recently.

"Notre Dame is a hell of an opponent to break in a new system against," Olshan said. "Rodgers seldomed used the airlanes, even when he had the personnel, so what's he going to do with a converted defensive back at the controls of his newly installed Wishbone?"

Olshan answers that question: "He'll try to stay on the ground, avoid any high-risk plays and keep the score respectable."

Despite losing several fine athletes this summer, Olshan believes Coach Ara Parseghian has more than enough left from his national championship squad and says Georgia Tech probably doesn't have more than a couple players who could compete for starting berths at Notre Dame.

Houston 27, Arizona State 20.
Memphis State 24, Louisville 14.
Mississippi State 34, William & Mary 16.
New Mexico State 27, Wichita State 13.
North Carolina State 34, Wake Forest 13.
Oregon State 24, Syracuse 20.
Richmond 24, Villanova 14.
Tulane 20, Mississippi 9.

Shrine Bowl Reports Profit

The figure brings to almost $950,000 in contributions for the 16-year event to the Twin Cities Unit of the Shriners Hospital for Crippled and Burned Children in Minneapolis.

Officials estimate that heavy rain for this year's game reduced ticket and program sales at least $20,000 to $25,000.

Starting Position For Olds

Bill Olds, former Husker who got his break during his rookie season last year when injuries hit the running back corps, and Larry Smith, acquired in a trade from Los Angeles, will start for the Colts and Redskins, respectively, in the last tune-up before the start of the regular season in two weeks.

Olds has not carried the ball during the four exhibition games. He played fullback for more than a quarter last week but the Colts were behind and forced to pass.

In making the announcement, Schnellenberger said Don McCauley, who had been at fullback, would move to halfback behind Lydell Mitchell, but it is understood that McCauley will start against the Redskins.

"I believe McCauley belongs at halfback," said Schnellenberger. "We kept working him at fullback, but we weren't able to establish a running game."

Both Mitchell and McCauley have been ineffective and were completely frustrated last Saturday when they combined for only 31 yards against Atlanta as the Colts lost three of four preseason games.

Smith, who is planning to join the World Football League, won the starting position as Larry Brown's running mate over an ineffective Moses Denson, but this selection came while Duane Thomas had been dropped from the team.

Thomas, the talented but controversial running back, had been the Redskins No. 1 choice to replace Charley Harraway, who defected to the WFL last spring, until he was put on waivers for a run-in he had with assistant coach Charley Waller during a team meeting.

Thomas apologized to head coach George Allen, was recalled from waivers last Friday after being claimed by Kansas City and reinstated as a Redskin earlier this week.

Upon his return. Thomas was told that he would play behind Smith. "He's got to work his way back up," the coach said.

Twins Defeat Royals

Kansas City (UPI) — Steve Busby's bases-loaded throwing error on a pickoff move to third base allowed two runs to score Thursday night, helping the Minnesota Twins to a 4-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals behind the six-hit pitching of Vic Albury.

The loss was the Royals' eighth straight, and Busby, 19-13, missed his third attempt at his 20th victory.

With the score tied 1-1, the Twins loaded the bases with one out in the sixth inning on singles by Bobby Darwin and Tony Oliva before Eric Soderholm was hit by a pitch.

Busby's pickoff throw went past third baseman Frank White and down the leftfield line, allowing Darwin and Oliva to score. Soderholm moved to third on the error and scored on a single by Danny Thompson.

Demo Derby Set for Fair

The State Fair auto racing program resumes Friday night with a demolition derby at 7:45 p.m.

An oddity in the demo derby will be a car driven by a Lincoln woman, Kim Graham. Officials say it is very unusual to have a woman entrant for the derby.

Stock car racing fills out the final two days of the Fair's program. Nebraska super stockers will battle Saturday at 2 p.m. On Sunday, the IMCA-sanctioned late-model program will be presented. Time trials will be at 1 p.m. for the late models with racing getting underway at 2 p.m.

Glover's Future Plans

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Rich Glover, released by the New York Giants after one season in the National Football League, was unsure Thursday about his football future.

"No problem," said the former Nebraska "All-American. "There's lots of things to do." Then he paused. "I don't know what."

Chosen in the third round of the 1972 NFL draft, Glover was a part-time player for the Giants last season until defensive tackle John Mendenhall was injured and forced to undergo knee surgery.

Earlier, Glover, who won the Outland Trophy as the nation's top collegiate lineman, had been placed on waivers by the Giants and then withdrawn and placed on the New York taxi squad.

The pro football strike cost Glover important training time this summer and he lost his job to rookie Jim Pietrzak and free agent George Hasenorhl.

"We just felt we had other people to make us better at that position," said New York Coach Bill Arnsparger.

"I can play somewhere," Glover said. But no other pro teams have contacted him.

"Maybe I'll coach high school ball and work up. maybe go back to Nebraska and work towards my Masters while while helping coach there as a graduate assistant."

A Couple of Biggies On Card

The college football season begins Saturday with a light, but promising list of games. One of them matching UCLA at Tennessee will kickoff the 1974 NCAA television series Saturday.

Another game Monday night will be nationally televised from Atlanta, Ga., where Coach Pepper Rodgers will unveil his Georgia Tech Yellowjackets against defending national champion Notre Dame.

Those two contests should wet the appetities of Nebraska football fans who still have a week to wait before the Cornhuskers open against Oregon in Memorial Stadium.

UCLA is the predicted winner over the Vols in a high-scoring contest while Notre Dame will win what experts are calling a probable romp for the Irish over Tech.

The Star this season will carry the ratings and predications of Mort Olshan, one of the original handicappers whose opinions have been highly respected for many years.

Here's what Olshan says about Saturday's televised opener: Valued SEC observers hit at decline in Tennessee recruiting, resulting in a benevolent defense that may well betray the Vols again this season.

In 1973, it yielded over 300 yards a game, 176 of them against the rush. Reports indicate this department has not been shored up substantially from a year ago when the Vols lost four games and won five others by 1, 2, 3, 4 and 6 points against foes not in UCLA's class.

Although the Tennessee offense misses three veteran backs, it still has quarterback Conredge Holloway who figures to give foes fits again this season.

UCLA Line Awesome

UCLA, 9-2 last season, boasts awesome offensive interior line averaging 258 pounds. The defense graduated a couple of key people, but the newcomers are exceptional.

Olshan picks the score to be UCLA 30, Tennessee 23. He says UCLA will be ready mentally for the opener after being destroyed by Nebraska in its 1973 debut.

After losing here 40-13, the Bruins went on to average 43 points a game, three times scoring more than 60 points. UCLA, like Tennessee, will be running the Veer-T offense.

In picking Notre Dame to win 31-0, Olshan says Rodgers, who jumped from UCLA to Georgia Tech, needs time to improve Tech recruiting, which hasn't been good recently.

"Notre Dame is a hell of an opponent to break in a new system against," Olshan said. "Rodgers seldomed used the airlanes, even when he had the personnel, so what's he going to do with a converted defensive back at the controls of his newly installed Wishbone?"

Olshan answers that question: "He'll try to stay on the ground, avoid any high-risk plays and keep the score respectable."

Despite losing several fine athletes this summer, Olshan believes Coach Ara Parseghian has more than enough left from his national championship squad and says Georgia Tech probably doesn't have more than a couple players who could compete for starting berths at Notre Dame.

Houston 27, Arizona State 20.
Memphis State 24, Louisville 14.
Mississippi State 34, William & Mary 16.
New Mexico State 27, Wichita State 13.
North Carolina State 34, Wake Forest 13.
Oregon State 24, Syracuse 20.
Richmond 24, Villanova 14.
Tulane 20, Mississippi 9.

Shrine Bowl Reports Profit

The figure brings to almost $950,000 in contributions for the 16-year event to the Twin Cities Unit of the Shriners Hospital for Crippled and Burned Children in Minneapolis.

Officials estimate that heavy rain for this year's game reduced ticket and program sales at least $20,000 to $25,000.

Starting Position For Olds

Bill Olds, former Husker who got his break during his rookie season last year when injuries hit the running back corps, and Larry Smith, acquired in a trade from Los Angeles, will start for the Colts and Redskins, respectively, in the last tune-up before the start of the regular season in two weeks.

Olds has not carried the ball during the four exhibition games. He played fullback for more than a quarter last week but the Colts were behind and forced to pass.

In making the announcement, Schnellenberger said Don McCauley, who had been at fullback, would move to halfback behind Lydell Mitchell, but it is understood that McCauley will start against the Redskins.

"I believe McCauley belongs at halfback," said Schnellenberger. "We kept working him at fullback, but we weren't able to establish a running game."

Both Mitchell and McCauley have been ineffective and were completely frustrated last Saturday when they combined for only 31 yards against Atlanta as the Colts lost three of four preseason games.

Smith, who is planning to join the World Football League, won the starting position as Larry Brown's running mate over an ineffective Moses Denson, but this selection came while Duane Thomas had been dropped from the team.

Thomas, the talented but controversial running back, had been the Redskins No. 1 choice to replace Charley Harraway, who defected to the WFL last spring, until he was put on waivers for a run-in he had with assistant coach Charley Waller during a team meeting.

Thomas apologized to head coach George Allen, was recalled from waivers last Friday after being claimed by Kansas City and reinstated as a Redskin earlier this week.

Hunter Wins No. 22, 3-0

Oakland (UPI) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter won his 22nd game, highest in the majors and a career-high for him, as he stopped the Texas Rangers on four singles Thursday night for a 3-0 Oakland A's win.

Hunter had never won more than 21 games in a season and now has four consecutive 20-game years. It was his fifth shutout and 18th complete game in 35 starts and boosted Oakland's lead in the AL West to 8½ games. He retired 16 of the final 17 Rangers in order.

Demo Derby Set for Fair

The State Fair auto racing program resumes Friday night with a demolition derby at 7:45 p.m.

An oddity in the demo derby will be a car driven by a Lincoln woman, Kim Graham. Officials say it is very unusual to have a woman entrant for the derby.

Stock car racing fills out the final two days of the Fair's program. Nebraska super stockers will battle Saturday at 2 p.m. On Sunday, the IMCA-sanctioned late-model program will be presented. Time trials will be at 1 p.m. for the late models with racing getting underway at 2 p.m.

Twins Defeat Royals

Kansas City (UPI) — Steve Busby's bases-loaded throwing error on a pickoff move to third base allowed two runs to score Thursday night, helping the Minnesota Twins to a 4-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals behind the six-hit pitching of Vic Albury.

The loss was the Royals' eighth straight, and Busby, 19-13, missed his third attempt at his 20th victory.

With the score tied 1-1, the Twins loaded the bases with one out in the sixth inning on singles by Bobby Darwin and Tony Oliva before Eric Soderholm was hit by a pitch.

Busby's pickoff throw went past third baseman Frank White and down the leftfield line, allowing Darwin and Oliva to score. Soderholm moved to third on the error and scored on a single by Danny Thompson.

Glover's Future Plans

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Rich Glover, released by the New York Giants after one season in the National Football League, was unsure Thursday about his football future.

"No problem," said the former Nebraska All-American. "There's lots of things to do." Then he paused. "I don't know what."

Chosen in the third round of the 1972 NFL draft, Glover was a part-time player for the Giants last season until defensive tackle John Mendenhall was injured and forced to undergo knee surgery.

Earlier, Glover, who won the Outland Trophy as the nation's top collegiate lineman, had been placed on waivers by the Giants and then withdrawn and placed on the New York taxi squad.

The pro football strike cost Glover important training time this summer and he lost his job to rookie Jim Pietrzak and free agent George Hasenorhl.

"We just felt we had other people to make us better at that position," said New York Coach Bill Arnsparger.

"I can play somewhere," Glover said. But no other pro teams have contacted him.

"Maybe I'll coach high school ball and work up, maybe go back to Nebraska and work towards my Masters while while helping coach there as a gradiuate assistant."

'Dodger Killer' Tag On Reds' Gullett

They were the "Dodger Killers" of the storied past.

There's a new name rising on the list — Don Gullett. He might surpass them all.

Division-leading Los Angeles invades for a tumultous three-game weekend series between the charging rivals. The showdown is expected to produce baseball's biggest three-day crowd turnout in years.

The 23-year-old Gullett, whose 12-4 lifetime mark against Los Angeles is well ahead of previous Dodger tormenters, attempts to unlock a Cincinnati holding pattern.

He downplays his success, but admits, "I guess I get up more for 'em. They've always been a good ballclub and that could have something to do with it."

"It has to give me more confidence and they have to worry just a bit," said the Kentuckian who signed as Cincinnati's No. 1 draft choice in 1969.

The Dodgers nine victories in 12 meetings with the Reds this year grate heavily on the veteran Cincinnati club. Manager Sparky Anderson contends the Reds need five of their remaining six games with the Dodgers to seize a fourth pennant in five years.

Anderson—no shrinking violet—has gone a step further. He's predicting the Reds will overhaul Los Angeles by Sept. 12.

"Just a personal feeling," he said, smiling mischievously.

Gullett, 15-9, will lock up with Dodger veteran Don Sutton, 13-9, in the series opener.

Gullett's mastery over Los Angeles puts him on a course that could threaten Marichal as the Dodgers all-time Public Enemy No. 1.

The former San Francisco Giant hurler had a 37-18 career mark against LA, a .672 percentage. Maglie, the stubble-faced warrior with the wicked curve, ranks second with a 2213 mark and a .628 percentage. Bubl, a former Milwaukee Braves pitcher, was 30-21 and 588. Gullett has a .750 percentage and is on the verge of passing Tom Seaver, the New York Mets 29-year-old right-hander who took a 13-5 mark into 1974 against the Dodgers.

Larry Jaster of the St. Louis Cardinals was one of the last to revive the "Dodger Killer" jinx. He shut out Los Angeles five times in 1966.

Twin Winner Player Set In Golf's World Series

Akron, Ohio (UPI) — Gary Player thinks he knows what it takes to win on the rugged 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club Course, site of this weekend's 13th annual World Series of Golf.

Player, winner of this year's Masters and British Open titles, will be making his fifth series appearance and has walked off with the $50,000 top prize the last three times. Only Jack Nicklaus with four series wins has more.

Joining Player will be Hale Irwin, winner of the U.S. Open, "Super Mex," Lee Trevino, winner of the PGA, and host Firestone pro Bobby Nichols, who got into the series as first alternate by capturing the Canadian Open.

Talking about his ability to play the long, heavily-trapped Firestone layout, Player said, "I always spend a little bit more time with my long irons there because there are so many holes that you need a two or three iron.

"Another thing is you've got to have your bunker play in good shape and I think that's one of the reasons I've done well at that course." Player, 37, is considered one of the best sand players ever.

Although Trevino has been in three previous World Series events, his best effort has been a tie for second in 1972. The other two times he came in dead last and readily admits he does not play the long Firestone Course well.

Trevino, 34, earned his berth in the series with a stirring head-to-head stretch dual with Jack Nicklaus at the Tanglewood Country Club in Clemmons, N.C., nipped the Golden Bear by a stroke in the PGA.

Nichols, while playing in the 1964 World Series after winning the PGA, is making his first appearance in the event since becoming head man at Firestone, a course on which he has never done exceptionally well.

"It's one of the few courses that I have never felt comfortable playing," said Nichols, 38, who is having one of his best years on the tour. "There is not an easy or let-up hole out there, but I enjoy playing this type of a course. I'll be ready."

Irwin, who at 29 is the youngest in the field, is also the only rookie as far as WSG play is concerned, but hopes to turn his inexperience into an advantage.

"I think the first time in you'll be trying a little harder," said the former University of Colorado football player. "I'm kind of priming myself for it. I have played Firestone pretty well in the past, and all of us have played the course enough to know what it will take."

Irwin finished third in the 1972 American Golf Classic, which is also played at Firestone.

Second place in the World Series is worth $15,000, with $7,500 going for third place and $5,000 for fourth.

The four contestants will play an official practice round Friday, with the 36-hole event scheduled for Saturday and Sunday. NBC will televise the final six holes both days with coverage scheduled from 4 to 5:30 p m. CDT.

Clear Sailing Set For Courageous

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Courageous, the U.S. defender in next week's America's Cup yacht series, was cleared Thursday of suggestions that her deck structure did not comply with Cup rules.

Although no official protest had been lodged, representatives of the Australian Southern Cross had intimated that recesses in the deck of the Courageous were too large and gave the defender an advantage.

Rules for the 12-meter yachts stipulate that the deck must be flat except for small recesses or items of equipment such as spinnaker poles.

The controversy, small but important since it came only six days before the start of the best four-of-seven series next Tuesday, hinged on whether the Courageous' winch drums amidships are housed in a recess that is too big.

The Australians insisted that somebody should interpret the rules and say what constitutes a small recess.

The recess in question measures about four feet square, cambers down from the aft section and allows the winch drums to be housed at an angle for easier sheeting of the sails.

The measuring committee of the International Yacht Racing Union considered the matter for a couple of days and announced Thursday that the Courageous' deck structure conforms to rule 21 of the international design regulations.

Making the announcement was James McGruer of Scotland, the official IYRU measurer, and two other measurers, Tony Watts of the Royal Thames Yacht Club, representing the challenger, and Bob Blumestock of the New York Yacht Club, representing the defender.

There is no appeal from the measuring committtee's decision, although the Southern Cross representatives indicated they were not happy with it. Had the committeee ruled that there was a violation, major surgical work would have been required on Courageous—work that could have delayed the start of the Cup series.

"Our aim is to make Cup racing as amicable as possible," McGruer said.

'Dodger Killer' Tag On Reds' Gullett

They were the "Dodger Killers" of the storied past.

There's a new name rising on the list — Don Gullett. He might surpass them all.

Division-leading Los Angeles invades for a tumultous three-game weekend series between the charging rivals. The showdown is expected to produce baseball's biggest three-day crowd turnout in years.

The 23-year-old Gullett, whose 12-4 lifetime mark against Los Angeles is well ahead of previous Dodger tormenters, attempts to unlock a Cincinnati holding pattern.

He downplays his success, but admits, "I guess I get up more for 'em. They've always been a good ballclub and that could have something to do with it."

"It has to give me more confidence and they have to worry just a bit," said the Kentuckian who signed as Cincinnati's No. 1 draft choice in 1969.

The Dodgers nine victories in 12 meetings with the Reds this year grate heavily on the veteran Cincinnati club. Manager Sparky Anderson contends the Reds need five of their remaining six games with the Dodgers to seize a fourth pennant in five years.

Anderson—no shrinking violet—has gone a step further. He's predicting the Reds will overhaul Los Angeles by Sept. 12.

"Just a personal feeling," he said, smiling mischievously.

Gullett, 15-9, will lock up with Dodger veteran Don Sutton, 13-9, in the series opener.

Gullett's mastery over Los Angeles puts him on a course that could threaten Marichal as the Dodgers all-time Public Enemy No. 1.

The former San Francisco Giant hurler had a 37-18 career mark against LA, a .672 percentage. Maglie, the stubble-faced warrior with the wicked curve, ranks second with a 2213 mark and a .628 percentage. Buhl, a former Milwaukee Braves pitcher, was 30-21 and 588. Gullett has a .750 percentage and is on the verge of passing Tom Seaver, the New York Mets 29-year-old right-hander who took a 13-5 mark into 1974 against the Dodgers.

Larry Jaster of the St. Louis Cardinals was one of the last to revive the "Dodger Killer" jinx. He shut out Los Angeles five times in 1966.

Twin Winner Player Set In Golf's World Series

Akron, Ohio (UPI) — Gary Player thinks he knows what it takes to win on the rugged 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club Course, site of this weekend's 13th annual World Series of Golf.

Player, winner of this year's Masters and British Open titles, will be making his fifth series appearance and has walked off with the $50,000 top prize the last three times. Only Jack Nicklaus with four series wins has more.

Joining Player will be Hale Irwin, winner of the U.S. Open, "Super Mex," Lee Trevino, winner of the PGA, and host Firestone pro Bobby Nichols, who got into the series as first alternate by capturing the Canadian Open.

Talking about his ability to play the long, heavily-trapped Firestone layout, Player said, "I always spend a little bit more time with my long irons there because there are so many holes that you need a two or three iron.

"Another thing is you've got to have your bunker play in good shape and I think that's one of the reasons I've done well at that course." Player, 37, is considered one of the best sand players ever.

Although Trevino has been in three previous World Series events, his best effort has been a tie for second in 1972. The other two times he came in dead last and readily admits he does not play the long Firestone Course well.

Trevino, 34, earned his berth in the series with a stirring head-to-head stretch dual with Jack Nicklaus at the Tanglewood Country Club in Clemmons, N.C., nipped the Golden Bear by a stroke in the PGA.

Nichols, while playing in the 1964 World Series after winning the PGA, is making his first appearance in the event since becoming head man at Firestone, a course on which he has never done exceptionally well.

"It's one of the few courses that I have never felt comfortable playing," said Nichols, 38, who is having one of his best years on the tour. "There is not an easy or let-up hole out there, but I enjoy playing this type of a course. I'll be ready."

Irwin, who at 29 is the youngest in the field, is also the only rookie as far as WSG play is concerned, but hopes to turn his inexperience into an advantage.

"I think the first time in you'll be trying a little harder," said the former University of Colorado football player. "I'm kind of priming myself for it. I have played Firestone pretty well in the past, and all of us have played the course enough to know what it will take."

Irwin finished third in the 1972 American Golf Classic, which is also played at Firestone.

Second place in the World Series is worth $15,000, with $7,500 going for third place and $5,000 for fourth.

The four contestants will play an official practice round Friday, with the 36-hole event scheduled for Saturday and Sunday. NBC will televise the final six holes both days with coverage scheduled from 4 to 5:30 p.m. CDT.

Clear Sailing Set For Courageous

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Courageous, the U.S. defender in next week's America's Cup yacht series, was cleared Thursday of suggestions that her deck structure did not comply with Cup rules.

Although no official protest had been lodged, representatives of the Australian Southern Cross had intimated that recesses in the deck of the Courageous were too large and gave the defender an advantage.

Rules for the 12-meter yachts stipulate that the deck must be flat except for small recesses or items of equipment such as spinnaker poles.

The controversy, small but important since it came only six days before the start of the best four-of-seven series next Tuesday, hinged on whether the Courageous' winch drums amidships are housed in a recess that is too big.

The Australians insisted that somebody should interpret the rules and say what constitutes a small recess.

The recess in question measures about four feet square, cambers down from the aft section and allows the winch drums to be housed at an angle for easier sheeting of the sails.

The measuring committee of the International Yacht Racing Union considered the matter for a couple of days and announced Thursday that the Courageous' deck structure conforms to rule 21 of the international design regulations.

Making the announcement was James McGruer of Scotland, the official IYRU measurer, and two other measurers, Tony Watts of the Royal Thames Yacht Club, representing the challenger, and Bob Blumestock of the New York Yacht Club, representing the defender.

There is no appeal from the measuring committtee's decision, although the Southern Cross representatives indicated they were not happy with it. Had the committeee ruled that there was a violation, major surgical work would have been required on Courageous—work that could have delayed the start of the Cup series.

"Our aim is to make Cup racing as amicable as possible," McGruer said.

Goethermal Steam Used As Power Source

NEW YORK (AP) — Power users ranging from the nation's biggest tree growers to a handful of pioneering farmers are tapping the earth's natural steam as an alternative to expensive oil and gas.

Geothermal steam, produced by the heat of the earth's molten core, is already established in some Western states as an economical source of power to run electrical utility plants.

Relatively shallow wells have produced man-made geysers in some areas of California, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming

"I think this country has a very vast geothermal potential," says Dr. Joseph Barnea, an energy consultant to the United Nations. "But work has only been done when potential hits you in the eye."

Barnea and Jeff Newsman, a geothermal expert for the Center for Energy Information, a non-profit research group in New York, believe geothermal steam can be found in at least 22 states in the Northwest, Gulfstates, Southwest and up the Atlantic Coast to Virginia.

Paper and wood companies such as Boise Cascade Corp , as well as a few farmers in Utah and Oregon are experimenting with geothermal heat to grow tomatoes, raise seedlings for giant firs and Ponderosa pines and freeze-dry vegetables and coffee.

The Bureau of Reclamation and several of the largest engineering firms are involved in pilot studies to use geothermal resources to create more fresh water for the nation's parched areas

The energy crisis and sky-high costs of fossil fuels such as oil and gas are making the government and a growing number of businesses take a harder look at possible economic advantages of using the earth's heat for more than just creating electricity.

Geothermal steam's advantage is that no fuel is consumed to produce its energy-giving heat.

Savings of some utility companies have been encouraging. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. spends 3.5 mills per kilowatt hour on geothermally generated electricity, compared with a minimum of 17 mills per kilowatt hour using oil. Capital outlays total $125-$150 per kilowatt hour for geothermal energy, compared with $300-$350 per kilowatt hour for oil-generated power.

Geothermal steam becomes hotter and therefore more powerful the deeper it's found.

Geothermal drilling on the average goes to 5,000 to 6,000 feet, but Newman says drillers are starting to go as deep as 8,000 feet in search of hotter water. Oil drilling, Newman says, goes to average depths of 20,000 to 30.000 feet.

Boise Cascade says geothermal heat is being used in a 500,000-seedling nursery put into operation only a month ago in Cove, Ore. A spokesman says the tree-ravaging Tussock moth spurred the development.

With many of this year's seedlings grown outside of nurseries threatened by the moth in the Pacific Northwest, the company established the pilot geothermal nursery in hopes of reaping savings over the usual natural gas method of greenhouse heating. To do it, geothermal steam is simply run through the building's heating pipes.

A spokesman for another forestry giant, Weyerhaeuser Co., says it is planning an eight million-to-10-million seedling facility in Klamath Falls, Ore., and is considering the use of geothermal heat.

Goethermal Steam Used As Power Source

NEW YORK (AP) — Power users ranging from the nation's biggest tree growers to a handful of pioneering farmers are tapping the earth's natural steam as an alternative to expensive oil and gas.

Geothermal steam, produced by the heat of the earth's molten core, is already established in some Western states as an economical source of power to run electrical utility plants.

Relatively shallow wells have produced man-made geysers in some areas of California, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming.

"I think this country has a very vast geothermal potential," says Dr. Joseph Barnea, an energy consultant to the United Nations. "But work has only been done when potential hits you in the eye."

Paper and wood companies such as Boise Cascade Corp., as well as a few farmers in Utah and Oregon are experimenting with geothermal heat to grow tomatoes, raise seedlings for giant firs and Ponderosa pines and freeze-dry vegetables and coffee.

The Bureau of Reclamation and several of the largest engineering firms are involved in pilot studies to use geothermal resources to create more fresh water for the nation's parched areas.

The energy crisis and sky-high costs of fossil fuels such as oil and gas are making the government and a growing number of businesses take a harder look at possible economic advantages of using the earth's heat for more than just creating electricity.

Geothermal steam's advantage is that no fuel is consumed to produce its energy-giving heat.

Savings of some utility companies have been encouraging. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. spends 3.5 mills per kilowatt hour on geothermally generated electricity, compared with a minimum of 17 mills per kilowatt hour using oil. Capital outlays total $125-$150 per kilowatt hour for geothermal energy, compared with $300-$350 per kilowatt hour for oil-generated power.

Geothermal steam becomes hotter and therefore more powerful the deeper it's found.

Geothermal drilling on the average goes to 5,000 to 6,000 feet, but Newman says drillers are starting to go as deep as 8,000 feet in search of hotter water. Oil drilling, Newman says, goes to average depths of 20,000 to 30.000 feet.

Boise Cascade says geothermal heat is being used in a 500,000-seedling nursery put into operation only a month ago in Cove, Ore. A spokesman says the tree-ravaging Tussock moth spurred the development.

With many of this year's seedlings grown outside of nurseries threatened by the moth in the Pacific Northwest, the company established the pilot geothermal nursery in hopes of reaping savings over the usual natural gas method of greenhouse heating. To do it, geothermal steam is simply run through the building's heating pipes.

A spokesman for another forestry giant, Weyerhaeuser Co., says it is planning an eight million-to-10-million seedling facility in Klamath Falls, Ore., and is considering the use of geothermal heat.

Report: Penal Education Needs A Major Overhaul

The state Department of Education gave the legislature's Judiciary Committee its first look Thursday at a report recommending a major overhaul of educational programs at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

The report was requested last spring by Judiciary Committee Chairman Roland Luedtke.

It said that 70% of the inmates are not involved in educational programs.

One of the 31 recommendations in the report suggests that the Southeastern Nebraska Technical Community College operate the vocational training programs at the prison.

The education department recommended privileges and freedoms as rewards for learning. The report suggests trusty status work and educational release, favorable parole consideration, furloughs and additional visiting privileges as rewards.

The report also recommends expanded education and work release programs to provide "transition from institutionalization to renewed contacts with society at large."

The report said the prison should develop eligibility requirements for educational release "that communicate clearly to a man what he must do and how he can qualify for the program."

Another recommendation says "the over-all design of the education-training program should be based on the needs of the inmates as they prepare to leave the institution and re-enter society. The needs of the inmates must be assessed within the framework of the inmate's abilities and interests as they relate to a productive and rewarding career after release."

The educational programs at the prison should be designed so that inmates will find jobs when they leave the prison, the report said.

The education department also suggested: "A survey should be conducted to ascertain why such a small percentage of the inmates are participating in the correctional industries programs."

The report said the libraries at the prison were inadequate.

State Sen. Charles Davey of Scottsbluff asked if the report meant prisoners had almost no opportunity to improve themselves while in prison.

Department of education officials said that was an overstatement because there were some dedicated teachers working at the prison.

Post-Mortem Shows Cow Died Naturally

A post-mortem was made Thursday on cow that was reportedly mutilated in northeast Nebraska and showed the animal died of natural causes.

It marked the first time such an examination was made in the recent rash of reported animal mutilations in northeast Nebraska, according to the Criminal Investigation Division of the Nebraska State Patrol.

The dead cow was taken to the Department of Veterinary Science at the University of Nebraska.

Veterinarians Oliver Grace and Larry McGill determined the cow had been sick for several days and died of infected kidneys and toxcema of the liver.

They said various parts of the cow had been chewed on by some kind of predator.

Commission On Aging Director Urges Retired To Exert Power

The state's senior citizens have tremendous potential to affect events involving their own interests and the overall welfare of the state.

That was the meassage from Joe Gaida, executive-director of the Nebraska Commission on Aging, to the Lancaster County chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons.

The association, which has 470 members locally and 6 million nationwide, is a nonprofit corporation which provides services and helps represent the interests of senior citizens before legislative bodies.

Gaida told the members that 12½% of the state's population is over 65, and that in some counties the percentage is as high as 25%.

Persons over 65 register to vote in larger percentages than other groups, he said, and in fact are more likely to vote than other age groups.

Now is the time for senior citizens to make their impact felt, Gaida said. The next five years, he claimed, will be crucial if existing programs for the elderly are to become institutionalized (or permanent.)

Gaida said two new programs are now being established in the state. He said federal grants have been received to set up retirement education programs through the state's community colleges.

Other federal funds, he said, are being used to create "day care centers" in Lincoln, North Platte and Omaha. The centers would provide locations in which senior citizens can socialize, eat meals and have access to medical care during the daytime.

The centers, Gaida told the group, would make it possible for the elderly to remain independent longer, since they would return home at night.

Another topic that senior citizens should follow, Gaida said, are rumors that the Commission on Aging might be raised to departmental or division status in state government.

Antitrust Bill Has Teeth In Consumer Protection

The Legislature's Revenue Committee was told Thursday the Unicameral may have passed a consumer protection law this year that has a few more teeth than was contemplated.

David Landis of the Legislature's research staff, said there was a "little nugget" contained in one section of a law passed which was billed as antitrust legislation.

"There is consumer protection power in (the law) beyond antimonopoly," Landis said. "It covers the area of consumer protection if the attorney general wants to go after it."

The section in question, he said, in short, gives the attorney general authority to prosecute consumer fraud cases other than those related to antitrust matters.

"I don't think anybody caught it," Landis said.

The Revenue Committee is currently looking into the possibility of offering consumer protection legislation to the 1975 Legislature.

As to future legislation, Landis said about the only thing the Unicameral might want to pass would be a "laundry list" of defined unfair practices.

He said if the legislature doesn't pass such guidelines, the courts will have to setp in and establish them.

Ex-VA Chief Is Quick Changer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald E. Johnson resigned under pressure as head of the Veterans Administration Wednesday, in the face of criticism from Vietnam veterans that they were being shortchanged on benefits.

Twenty-four hours later, Johnson, 50, was back on the public payroll, sworn in as deputy assistant secretary of commerce for domestic and international business.

The new job pays $36,000 a year, compared to $42,500 with the VA, which he had headed since 1969. Johnson formerly was an officer in various Iowa poultry, fertilizer and farm supply businesses.

Retail Sales In Lincoln Soar 32.3%

Lincoln annual retail sales for the year ending May 31 shot up 32.2%, according to statistics released in the August issue of Business in Nebraska magazine.

Sales reached a record high of $54,844,000, compared with $41,467,000 for 1973, a report by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce also showed.

Dave Wolvin, the chamber's research director, attributed the rise to a combination of new manufacturing companies and future planning.

Wolvin said the increase had been steady over several months. The "healthy" economic climate of Lincoln could be a cause for this, he added.

This economic climate results from "Lincoln's attempts to deal with problems before they get here," he said. These problems include the need to improve the downtown area and encourage new industries to locate in Lincoln, according to Wolvin.

He said he abd no statistics from other cities.

$300,000 Lawsuit Filed Over Leak In Beef Cooler

A $300,000 suit has been filed in Lancaster District Court by American Stores in connection with the alleged malfunction of the cooling system at the meat packing plant.

Acme Markets, Inc., doing business as American Stores, alleges that on Dec. 23, 1972, approximately 22,000 pounds of liquid ammonia used in the cooling process escaped the cooling system in the beef cooler at the plant.

Named as defendants in the action were Refrigeration Specialities Co., Henry Valve Co., Natkin & Co., G&C Foundry Co. and Henschien, Everds and Crombie.

According to the petition, the defendants were negligent in failing to manufacture, assemble and design the component parts in compliance with safety codes and standards pertaining to construction of such component parts of the system.

The plaintiff further contends the defendants failed to warn the plaintiff that a safety relief valve was necessary for the safe operation of its cooling system.

Foster Takes No. 1 Spot With Men's Reformatory

Foster, 44, has been a state corrections officer since 1956. His appointment was announced jointly by Correctional Services Director Joseph Vitek and Penal Complex Warden Charles Wolff.

Vitek said Foster, who now holds the No. 2 spot at the reformatory, is a strong candidate for the permanent post as associate penal complex warden in charge of the minimum-medium security reformatory unit.

Foster is a native of Blue Springs. During 18 years with the Corrections Department he has served as training supervisor for the Division of Corrections, and in 1972 was named program coordinator and then senior correctional specialist at the reformatory.

Miller resigned last month to become a parole examiner with the U.S. Board of Paroles in the Atlanta, Ga., regional office. He leaves at the end of this week.

Guess He Just Didn't Like U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — James Hefty, an employe of a Philadelphia chemical firm, was manning the company's booth Thursday at an international chemical and plastics exhibition at Moscow's Sokolniki Park when a Soviet citizen approached him and asked if he was an American. When Hefty said yes, the man stabbed him with a small knife.

Soviet officials said the assailant was apprehended on the scene, and turned out to be a Ukrainian. His breach of detente was not explained.

Technical Rally Lifts Stock Mart

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 22.76 to 670.76, its largest advance since a 23.78 surge Aug. 7 on the eve of Richard M. Nixon's resignation as president.

It was the fourth day in a row, and the seventh in the last 11, that the Dow had moved more than 10 points in one direction or the other.

"It's an exceedingly emotional market, and obviously extremely oversold," said Heinz H. Biel at Hoppin, Watson, Inc.

Last Friday the Dow climbed more than 21 points, only to fall back more than 15 on Tuesday and again on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 1.11 to 37.04.

Brokers gave a good part of the credit for the advance to the Federal Reserve Board's reduction late Wednesday of the amount of funds banks are required to hold in reserve against some large certificates of deposit.

Several experts said the step was unlikely to have any marked effect on interest rates and tight-money pressures generally, but it appeared that investors still welcomed it as a new hint of a possible softening in the Fed's restrictive monetary policy.

Federal National Mortgage, the Big Board volume leader, rose 1⅛ to 13¾ in trading marked by two separate 102,000-share blocks, at 13⅜ and then at 14.

Among mortgage guarantee issues, MGIC Investment was up 1½ to 10⅞ and CMI Investment rose 1¼ to 7⅞.

In the savings and loan group, Gibraltar Financial was up 1⅞ at 8⅛, First Charter Financial picked up 1⅜ to 7, Great Western Financial added 1⅝ to 9¼, and Golden West Financial gained 1 to 6⅛.

Glamors also showed some bounce, with Xerox up 4⅜ at 82¼, IBM, ahead 2¼ at 182¼; and American Home Products, up 1⅜ to 33⅞.

S. S. Kresge, which posted a 20.8 per cent sales increase for August, rose 1½ to 26½ in active trading to lead a broad advance in retail issues.

The day's biggest percentage jump, however, was reserved for Wells, Rich, Greene, which was up 2¼ at 7¾. The advertising agency, in an apparent step toward a return to privately held status, offered to swap cash and debentures for 1.40 million of its common shares.

Report: Penal Education Needs A Major Overhaul

The state Department of Education gave the legislature's Judiciary Committee its first look Thursday at a report recommending a major overhaul of educational programs at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

The report was requested last spring by Judiciary Committee Chairman Roland Luedtke.

It said that 70% of the inmates are not involved in educational programs.

The education department recommended privileges and freedoms as rewards for learning. The report suggests trusty status work and educational release, favorable parole consideration, furloughs and additional visiting privileges as rewards.

The report also recommends expanded education and work release programs to provide "transition from institutionalization to renewed contacts with society at large."

The report said the prison should develop eligibility requirements for educational release "that communicate clearly to a man what he must do and how he can qualify for the program."

Another recommendation says "the over-all design of the education-training program should be based on the needs of the inmates as they prepare to leave the institution and re-enter society. The needs of the inmates must be assessed within the framework of the inmate's abilities and interests as they relate to a productive and rewarding career after release."

The educational programs at the prison should be designed so that inmates will find jobs when they leave the prison, the report said.

The education department also suggested: "A survey should be conducted to ascertain why such a small percentage of the inmates are participating in the correctional industries programs."

The report said the libraries at the prison were inadequate.

State Sen. Charles Davey of Scottsbluff asked if the report meant prisoners had almost no opportunity to improve themselves while in prison.

Department of education officials said that was an overstatement because there were some dedicated teachers working at the prison.

Post-Mortem Shows Cow Died Naturally

A post-mortem was made Thursday on cow that was reportedly mutilated in northeast Nebraska and showed the animal died of natural causes.

It marked the first time such an examination was made in the recent rash of reported animal mutilations in northeast Nebraska, according to the Criminal Investigation Division of the Nebraska State Patrol.

The dead cow was taken to the Department of Veterinary Science at the University of Nebraska.

Veterinarians Oliver Grace and Larry McGill determined the cow had been sick for several days and died of infected kidneys and toxcema of the liver.

They said various parts of the cow had been chewed on by some kind of predator.

Commission On Aging Director Urges Retired To Exert Power

The state's senior citizens have tremendous potential to affect events involving their own interests and the overall welfare of the state.

That was the meassage from Joe Gaida, executive-director of the Nebraska Commission on Aging, to the Lancaster County chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons.

The association, which has 470 members locally and 6 million nationwide, is a nonprofit corporation which provides services and helps represent the interests of senior citizens before legislative bodies.

Gaida told the members that 12½% of the state's population is over 65, and that in some counties the percentage is as high as 25%.

Persons over 65 register to vote in larger percentages than other groups, he said, and in fact are more likely to vote than other age groups.

Now is the time for senior citizens to make their impact felt, Gaida said. The next five years, he claimed, will be crucial if existing programs for the elderly are to become institutionalized (or permanent.)

Gaida said two new programs are now being established in the state. He said federal grants have been received to set up retirement education programs through the state's community colleges.

Other federal funds, he said, are being used to create "day care centers" in Lincoln, North Platte and Omaha. The centers would provide locations in which senior citizens can socialize, eat meals and have access to medical care during the daytime.

The centers, Gaida told the group, would make it possible for the elderly to remain independent longer, since they would return home at night.

Another topic that senior citizens should follow, Gaida said, are rumors that the Commission on Aging might be raised to departmental or division status in state government.

Antitrust Bill Has Teeth In Consumer Protection

The Legislature's Revenue Committee was told Thursday the Unicameral may have passed a consumer protection law this year that has a few more teeth than was contemplated.

David Landis of the Legislature's research staff, said there was a "little nugget" contained in one section of a law passed which was billed as antitrust legislation.

"There is consumer protection power in (the law) beyond antimonopoly," Landis said. "It covers the area of consumer protection if the attorney general wants to go after it."

The section in question, he said, in short, gives the attorney general authority to prosecute consumer fraud cases other than those related to antitrust matters.

"I don't think anybody caught it," Landis said.

The Revenue Committee is currently looking into the possibility of offering consumer protection legislation to the 1975 Legislature.

As to future legislation, Landis said about the only thing the Unicameral might want to pass would be a "laundry list" of defined unfair practices.

He said if the legislature doesn't pass such guidelines, the courts will have to setp in and establish them.

Ex-VA Chief Is Quick Changer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald E. Johnson resigned under pressure as head of the Veterans Administration Wednesday, in the face of criticism from Vietnam veterans that they were being short-changed on benefits.

Twenty-four hours later, Johnson, 50, was back on the public payroll, sworn in as deputy assistant secretary of commerce for domestic and international business.

The new job pays $36,000 a year, compared to $42,500 with the VA, which he had headed since 1969. Johnson formerly was an officer in various Iowa poultry, fertilizer and farm supply businesses.

Retail Sales In Lincoln Soar 32.3%

Lincoln annual retail sales for the year ending May 31 shot up 32.2%, according to statistics released in the August issue of Business in Nebraska magazine.

Sales reached a record high of $54,844,000, compared with $41,467,000 for 1973, a report by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce also showed.

Dave Wolvin, the chamber's research director, attributed the rise to a combination of new manufacturing companies and future planning.

Wolvin said the increase had been steady over several months. The "healthy" economic climate of Lincoln could be a cause for this, he added.

This economic climate results from "Lincoln's attempts to deal with problems before they get here," he said. These problems include the need to improve the downtown area and encourage new industries to locate in Lincoln, according to Wolvin.

He said he ahd no statistics from other cities.

$300,000 Lawsuit Filed Over Leak In Beef Cooler

A $300,000 suit has been filed in Lancaster District Court by American Stores in connection with the alleged malfunction of the cooling system at the meat packing plant.

Acme Markets, Inc., doing business as American Stores, alleges that on Dec. 23, 1972, approximately 22,000 pounds of liquid ammonia used in the cooling process escaped the cooling system in the beef cooler at the plant.

Named as defendants in the action were Refrigeration Specialities Co., Henry Valve Co., Natkin & Co., G&C Foundry Co. and Henschien, Everds and Crombie.

According to the petition, the defendants were negligent in failing to manufacture, assemble and design the component parts in compliance with safety codes and standards pertaining to construction of such component parts of the system.

The plaintiff further contends the defendants failed to warn the plaintiff that a safety relief valve was necessary for the safe operation of its cooling system.

As a result of the ammonia leak, the plaintiff claims damages to property and the business operation.

Foster Takes No. 1 Spot With Men's Reformatory

Foster, 44, has been a state corrections officer since 1956. His appointment was announced jointly by Correctional Services Director Joseph Vitek and Penal Complex Warden Charles Wolff.

Vitek said Foster, who now holds the No. 2 spot at the reformatory, is a strong candidate for the permanent post as associate penal complex warden in charge of the minimum-medium security reformatory unit.

Foster is a native of Blue Springs. During 18 years with the Corrections Department he has served as training supervisor for the Division of Corrections, and in 1972 was named program coordinator and then senior correctional specialist at the reformatory.

Miller resigned last month to become a parole examiner with the U.S. Board of Paroles in the Atlanta, Ga., regional office. He leaves at the end of this week.

MOSCOW (AP) — James Hefty, an employe of a Philadelphia chemical firm, was manning the company's booth Thursday at an international chemical and plastics exhibition at Moscow's Sokolniki Park when a Soviet citizen approached him and asked if he was an American. When Hefty said yes, the man stabbed him with a small knife.

Soviet officials said the aasailant was apprehended on the scene, and turned out to be a Ukrainian. His breach of detente was not explained.

Technical Rally Lifts Stock Mart

New York (AP) — A technical rally abetted by hopes for easier money carried the stock market to its best gain in nearly a month Thursday in another session of volatile activity on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 22.76 to 670.76, its largest advance since a 23.78 surge Aug. 7 on the eve of Richard M. Nixon's resignation as president.

It was the fourth day in a row, and the seventh in the last 11, that the Dow had moved more than 10 points in one direction or the other.

"It's an exceedingly emotional market, and obviously extremely oversold," said Heinz H. Biel at Hoppin, Watson, Inc.

Last Friday the Dow climbed more than 21 points, only to fall back more than 15 on Tuesday and again on Wednesday.

Gainers prevailed over losers 996 to 441 among the 1,795 issues traded Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume was active at the outset, then slowed markedly and totaled only a moderate 14.21 million shares for the day.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 1.11 to 37.04.

Brokers gave a good part of the credit for the advance to the Federal Reserve Board's reduction late Wednesday of the amount of funds banks are required to hold in reserve against some large certificates of deposit.

Several experts said the step was unlikely to have any marked effect on interest rates and tight-money pressures generally, but it appeared that investors still welcomed it as a new hint of a possible softening in the Fed's restrictive monetary policy.

"From the standpoint of its technical condition, the market was poised for a rally," said Monte Gordon at Dreyfus Corp.

The central bank's action bank reserves "tended to indicate at least that additional restraint by the Fed is not in the cards," Gordon said.

A sign of investors' focus on the credit situation was the sharp advance recorded by many of the so-called "interest-sensitive" stocks.

Federal National Mortgage, the Big Board volume leader, rose 1⅛ to 13¾ in trading marked by two separate 102,000-share blocks, at 13⅜ and then at 14.

Among mortgage guarantee issues, MGIC Investment was up 1½ to 10⅞ and CMI Investment rose 1¼ to 7⅞.

In the savings and loan group, Gibraltar Financial was up 1⅞ at 8⅛, First Charter Financial picked up 1⅜ to 7, Great Western Financial added 1⅝ to 9¼, and Golden West Financial gained 1 to 6⅛.

Glamors also showed some bounce, with Xerox up 4⅜ at 82¼, IBM, ahead 2¼ at 182¼; and American Home Products, up 1⅜ to 33⅞.

S. S. Kresge, which posted a 20.8 per cent sales increase for August, rose 1½ to 26½ in active trading to lead a broad advance in retail issues.

The day's biggest percentage jump, however, was reserved for Wells, Rich, Greene, which was up 2¼ at 7¾. The advertising agency, in an apparent step toward a return to privately held status, offered to swap cash and debentures for 1.40 million of its common shares.

Robintech, which came in with a sharp quarterly earnings increase, added 2⅞ to 50⅝.

Serious Crime Up 8.1% In Nebraska, More Than U.S. Jump

The figures were released Friday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in its 1973 Uniform Crime Reports.

Statistics come from the FBI's "Crime Index offenses." The crime index is made up of two broad serious crime divisions: violent and property crimes. Violent crimes are murder-non-negligent manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Property crimes include burglary, larceny-theft and auto theft.

Serious crime increased 6.8% 1972 to 1973 in Lancaster County, the report showed. The increase is more than double the 3% rise experienced 1971 to 1972. Of the 6,615 serious crimes reported in the county, 93.8% of them were reported by Lincoln police.

Murder and non-negligent manslaughter showed the biggest increase, 52% over 1972. There were 67 actual such cases in 1973, up from 44.

Forcible rape was up almost 20%, from 212 cases to 254. Robbery showed a similar rise. There were 803 incidents in 1972; 964 in 1974.

And auto theft was up about 14%. There were 3,989 cases in '72, 4,668 in '73.

The decrease in the large aggravated assault category from 1,579 to 1,574 kept the overall increase in violent crimes to under 8%. There were 2,859 violent crimes in Nebraska in 1973, compared to 2,638 in 1972.

Property crimes increased just over 8%, from 37,446 to 40,490.

Nationally, violent crimes increased 5% and property crimes 6%. Forcible rape showed the biggest gain, 10%, while aggravated assault was up 7% and murder only 5%.

But Nebraska's only such city, Omaha, showed a 10% serious crime rise, from roughly 19,330 serious crimes to 21,260.

Surburban areas nationally reported an average increase in serious crime of 9%, while rural areas were up 10%.

Crime Up In 5 Cities, Down In 4

Washington (AP) — Five of Nebraska's 12 largest cities showed noticeable serious crime increases in 1973, according to statistics released Friday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

But four of the cities showed decreases and three stayed virtually the same in "number of offenses known to police" in the FBI's annual Uniform Crime Reports.

North Platte showed the biggest increase in what the FBI calls serious crime, going from 204 incidents in 1972 to 420 in 1973, most of the increase in the larceny-theft category.

Fremont, Kearney and Norfolk remained on more or less equal footing with 1972 and Grand Island, Beatrice, Columbus and Hastings had decreases in numbers of serious crimes.

The FBI's serious crimes list includes seven categories: murder-manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft and auto theft. The total of those seven crime categories makes up the crime index.

Reagan To Talk At Thone Dinner

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California will address a Sept. 28 fund raising dinner in Norfolk on behalf of 1st District Rep. Charles Thone of Lincoln.

The $10-per-plate affair will be held at the Norfolk airport.

Male Dummies Aid Ventriloquists

Atlantic City, N.J. (AP) — The Miss America Pageant hasn't opened its doors to men, but three of the contestants in the talent competition have names like Stanley, Leroy and Oliver.

The male contestants are the dummies used by self-taught ventriloquists Miss Alaska, Miss Alabama and Miss Nebraska.

With Stanley firm in hand, Darby Moore, a 20-year-old from Kenai, Alaska, said she first got interested in ventriloquism "about eight years ago when I saw a friend of mine doing it in a local pageant."

"I wanna say something," he piped. "I like Atlantic City and all the beautiful girls. Hey lady, you want a little brother?"

The only time Stanley got out of hand was when he was joined by Miss Alabama with Leroy and Miss Nebraska with Oliver.

To which Pam Long's Leroy answered a quick "shutup."

Miss Pelc, a native of Johnstown, Neb., said Oliver might seem a little fuzzy because his body is literally older than his head. Miss Pelc and her father construct their own heads and bodies for their dummies.

While Oliver rolled his eyes at Stanley and Stanley attempted to talk to all the contestants, Leroy sat silently brooding on the lap of 20-year-old Pam Long, a student at the University of North Alabama.

Miss Long said she took up ventroloquism after watching ventriloquist Vonda Kay Van Dyke win the Miss America crown 20 years ago.

Miss Long said Leroy was really put to the test a few weeks ago when she fell off the stage while performing in Muscle Shoals, Ala.

"It was the longest two seconds of my life. I wanted to die," she said. "But Leroy came up talking. He said, 'You'd do anything to steal my act,' and the audience loved it."

Across Nebraska

McConaughy Level At Fourth Lowest Point

Ogallala — Storage levels at Lake McConaughy have dropped to the fourth lowest point since Kingsley Dam was closed in 1941. Present storage is at 3,247.5 feet, nearly 50 feet above the record low of 3,198.2 feet in October, 1956. In October, 1964, storage dropped to 3,243 feet, 4.5 feet below the present level, and in September, 1961, the lake storage was 3,237 feet, 10.5 below the present mark.

School Evacuated By Blast; No Damage

Hebron (AP) — An explosion that originated in the heating system at Lincoln Elementary School at Hebron Wednesday caused a three and a half hour evacuation of the 152 students, but there was no damage to the building. School Supt. Ramon Mieth said apparently a malfunction in the control system on the furnace caused a gas accumulation and when the custodian lit the pilot light the explosion occurred.

Good Apple Crop Expected

Nebraska City — Although this year's apple crop here will not be exceptional, area growers expect to have an average size harvest. The last rain started the apples growing again and they're sizing up pretty good, according to Jim Gress, manager of the Catron orchard. Grove Porter said he expects to have a good crop, especially if the orchards get some more rain. Bill Oberdieck, owner and manager of Kimmel orchard, said the apples there are doing beautifully.

Nebraska Gets $31,967 From Forests

Washington (UPI) — Counties in which national forest lands are located have been given a record total of nearly $118 million as their share of receipts from timber sales and other earnings of the forests in the 1974 fiscal year, the U.S. Forest Service announced Thursday. Under forest law, the counties annually get 25% of national forest receipts to compensate them, in effect, for the fact that they cannot earn normal tax revenues from the forest lands. Payment to Nebraska will total $31,967.

NPPD, Pender Sign Agreement

Columbus — The Nebraska Public Power District has signed a 10-year interconnection agreement with the village of Pender. Under terms of the agreement, NPPD will make available to Pender electricity needed as the village's power consumption increases. NPPD will construct six miles of 34.5 kilovolt transmission line from the Cuming County Public Power District facilities to the town's substation. The project is expected to be completed in late 1975.

Two Deaths Raise Traffic Toll To 268

By The Associated Press

The deaths of an Ashton farmer and a Beatrice man have raised Nebraska's 1974 traffic toll to 268, compared with 279 on this date last year.

Sherman County authorities said Edwin Stanczyk, 60, of rural Ashton, was killed Thursday morning when his tractor was struck by a Burlington Northern freight train on a township road about one mile east of Ashton.

Officials said Stanczyk, his son and son-in-law were cutting silage, and that Stanczyk was returning to the field with an empty wagon when the mishap occurred.

Investigators said Stanczyk's tractor had a closed cab, and that Stanczyk probably did not hear the train coming.

Stanczyk's grandson, Jesse Jakubowski, 5, was also in the tractor cab, but was thrown clear of the wreckage. The youth sustained cuts and bruises, and was admitted to a Loup City hospital, where he was listed in satisfactory condition Thursday afternoon.

Investigators said the driver of the car was Donna Kollekowski, 53, also of Beatrice.

Crash Victim's Name Released; Said Tentative

Lexington (UPI) — Dawson County Atty. Willard Weinhold said Thursday night the woman killed in a truck-train accident east of here Labor Day has been tentatively identified as Charlene Ann Carrerro of Moline, Ill.

The woman was believed to be 20 to 25 years old, Weinhold said.

Her husband, Ismel Carrerro, 52, remained unconscious Thursday at the Lexington Community Hospital.

Omaha Considers Ban On 'Nondomestic' Pets

Mayor Edward Zorinsky said, "We've had three complaints about people keeping coyotes in their back yards. I guess some people figure if a police dog is a good watch dog, a coyote is better."

Currently, there is nothing in city law about having a coyote around the house as a pet. But a new ordinance to be introduced to the City Council would put coyotes back in the country.

It would prevent anyone in the city from keeping a "nonpet or nondomestic animal," or bringing one into the city...unless a permit is obtained from the public safety director.

Under the proposal, nonpet animals are defined as everything but a dog, cat, hamster, rabbit, salamander, gerbil, guinea pig, chinchilla, canary, parakeet, turtle or mouse.

Nondomestic animals are anything but a horse, bovine, swine, sheep, goat, mule, donkey, chicken, turkey, fowl, swan or other animal commonly kept for agricultural or commercial purposes.

Lincoln State Cold Spot

The low for Lincoln ties the record low for Sept. 5 last equalled in 1960, the National Weather Service reported.

Other lows across Nebraska were mostly in the 40's and 50's early Thursday.

Friday's forecast for the state calls for partly cloudy skies in the east, sunny in the west. Highs will range from the upper 70's in the east to the low 80's in the west.

Weather Warms; Fair Crowds Don't

Looking toward a better and financially brighter last few days with the Mac Davis grandstand show and a "Kids Day" Saturday, fair manager Henry Brandt estimated Thursday's attendance at 35,000 — the same as last year. That means the 1974 edition of the fair is still keeping ahead of 1973's.

Concession stand operators aren't so optimistic about, or generous with, crowd estimates. They're still complaining about a no-crowd problem this week, following a "wild" Labor Day weekend where they couldn't keep up with customers.

Fairgoers have until the grandstand show at 7 p.m. Sunday to warm the pocket books of the concessionaires and the carnival. Then the fair becomes an ex.

'Cold Killing Us'

Brandt said at a news conference Thursday that "the cold is killing us" at night. He said crowds are gone by 10 p.m., but that "we might have broken even last night (Wednesday)" on the midway. Cold night temperatures have hurt the rides, especially high ones where chilling customers is a breeze.

Brandt hopes that Saturday's annual Kids Day will help rescue the midway from the cash flow chill. This Saturday, youngsters 16 and under will be allowed in the outside gate for free until 6 p.m. Tickets at the Murphy Brothers midway rides will be half-price for the 16 and under crowd from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Grandstand Show

Brandt is also looking toward singer-song writer Mac Davis to rescue another problem — low gate receipts for the last feature entertainer, trumpeter Doc Severensen, who drew a disappointing two-night crowd Monday and Tuesday.

Davis is at the fair for a one-night stand in front of the grandstand Saturday night beginning at 7:45. Brandt said that Davis has already attracted 8,000 ticket buyers. There are no four dollar seats left; but there are some three dollar ones, Brandt said, and 6,000 general admission seats are still available.

As of Wednesday, Brandt said, gross receipts were down $2,958 from the comparable day in 1973.

The fair's share of the midway receipts is determined by a set scale, Brandt explained. Of the first $25,000 in receipts, the fair receives 35%; for the next $25,000, the fair's share is 40%, and for the next $25,000, the fair takes 45%.

For any receipts over $75,000, the fair's share is 50%.

In the Cornhusker Championship Tractor Pull Thursday night, winners were chosen in seven classes as the souped-up machines hauled a weighted sled over a 325-foot course.

The contest lasted past midnight as several machines not only made the dirt fly but vital parts of their engines too, but in the end the big machine driven by Carol Youngren, Odebolt, Iowa, triumphed in the 12,000-pound stock division.

Other winners in the stock division included Gerry Arends, Paris, Mo., in the 5,000-pound class; Doug Nelson, Wayne, 7,000-pound class, and Carol Youngren, Odebolt, Iowa, 8,000-pound class.

In the hot rod division, Wayne Longnecker, Cambridge, Iowa, won the 5,000-pound class and Robert Ault, Elkhart, Iowa, took top honors for 7,000 pounds.

FFA Judging

In Future Farmers of America (FFA) judging Thursday the spotlight was on the sheep and dairy divisions.

Ann, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Shiner, received $25 and a trophy for top place. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lorenson, Scott will take home a $20 check and a trophy.

Top honors and a gold medal in FFA dairy showmanship went to Kevin Fry, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Fry of Ewing. Kevin showed an aged Holstein he bought this summer from his father's herd.

Second place and a silver medal in showmanship was awarded to Russell Anderson of the Central FFA Chapter. Margie Vandersnick of Ewing took third.

Squirrel Feeder Resigns From White House Post

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — In 1949 when he was 5 years old and living in Washington, Richard Feeney happened into President Harry S. Truman while feeding squirrels in a park. He mentioned to the chief executive that squirrels on the White House lawn appeared ill-fed compared to others. The youngster thereupon received a presidential appointment as Official White House Squirrel Feeder, with no limit on his tenure and no salary.

"Who wanted pay?" said Feeney, now 29 and a newly commissioned naval officer stationed at Atlantic Fleet headquarters here. "It was a lot of fun to feed the squirrels and I went to the White House as often as I could."

He said: "It's a title I've cherished for many years. But there comes a time when one must step down. I plan to write President Ford, telling him of the appointment's existence and perhaps he'll find someone better for the job."

Serious Crime Up 8.1% In Nebraska, More Than U.S. Jump

Washington (AP) — Serious crime in Nebraska increased 8.1% in 1973, about 35% more than the national average crime growth of 6%.

Murder and manslaughter led the way.

The figures were released Friday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in its 1973 Uniform Crime Reports.

Statistics come from the FBI's "Crime Index offenses." The crime index is made up of two broad serious crime divisions: violent and property crimes. Violent crimes are murder-non-negligent manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Property crimes include burglary, larceny-theft and auto theft.

Serious crime increased 6.8% 1972 to 1973 in Lancaster County, the report showed. The increase is more than double the 3% rise experienced 1971 to 1972. Of the 6,615 serious crimes reported in the county, 93.8% of them were reported by Lincoln police.

Crime in Nebraska showed increases in six of the seven categories. Only aggravated assault declined, by five cases over 1972.

Murder and non-negligent manslaughter showed the biggest increase, 52% over 1972. There were 67 actual such cases in 1973, up from 44.

Forcible rape was up almost 20%, from 212 cases to 254. Robbery showed a similar rise. There were 803 incidents in 1972; 964 in 1974.

The number of burglaries rose nearly 16%, from 8,489 to 9,828.

And auto theft was up about 14%. There were 3,989 cases in '72, 4,668 in '73.

The decrease in the large aggravated assault category from 1,579 to 1,574 kept the overall increase in violent crimes to under 8%. There were 2,859 violent crimes in Nebraska in 1973, compared to 2,638 in 1972.

Property crimes increased just over 8%, from 37,446 to 40,490.

Nationally, violent crimes increased 5% and property crimes 6%. Forcible rape showed the biggest gain, 10%, while aggravated assault was up 7% and murder only 5%.

Property crimes had an overall 6% increase.

Serious crimes in large cities — those with populations over 250,000 — increased only 1% last year, compared to a 9% decrease in 1972.

But Nebraska's only such city, Omaha, showed a 10% serious crime rise, from roughly 19,330 serious crimes to 21,260.

Surburban areas nationally reported an average increase in serious crime of 9%, while rural areas were up 10%.

Male Dummies Aid Ventriloquists

Atlantic City, N.J. (AP) — The Miss America Pageant hasn't opened its doors to men, but three of the contestants in the talent competition have names like Stanley, Leroy and Oliver.

The male contestants are the dummies used by self-taught ventriloquists Miss Alaska, Miss Alabama and Miss Nebraska.

The state queens and their dummies, which they prefer to call dolls, got together for lunch Wednesday.

With Stanley firm in hand, Darby Moore, a 20-year-old from Kenai, Alaska, said she first got interested in ventriloquism "about eight years ago when I saw a friend of mine doing it in a local pageant."

Miss Alaska, who also taught her sisters and brothers ventriloquism, was constantly interrupted by her pint-size co-hort, Stanley.

"I wanna say something," he piped. "I like Atlantic City and all the beautiful girls. Hey lady, you want a little brother?"

The only time Stanley got out of hand was when he was joined by Miss Alabama with Leroy and Miss Nebraska with Oliver.

Oliver, who is all eyes, was held in tow by 22-year-old Sharon Pelc as he chatted with photographers to "get my best side."

Miss Pelc, a native of Johnstown, Neb., said Oliver might seem a little fuzzy because his body is literally older than his head. Miss Pelc and her father construct their own heads and bodies for their dummies.

While Oliver rolled his eyes at Stanley and Stanley attempted to talk to all the contestants, Leroy sat silently brooding on the lap of 20-year-old Pam Long, a student at the University of North Alabama.

Miss Long said she took up ventroloquism after watching ventriloquist Vonda Kay Van Dyke win the Miss America crown 20 years ago.

Miss Long said Leroy was really put to the test a few weeks ago when she fell off the stage while performing in Muscle Shoals, Ala.

"It was the longest two seconds of my life. I wanted to die," she said. "But Leroy came up talking. He said, 'You'd do anything to steal my act,' and the audience loved it."

McConaughy Level At Fourth Lowest Point

Ogallala — Storage levels at Lake McConaughy have dropped to the fourth lowest point since Kingsley Dam was closed in 1941. Present storage is at 3,247.5 feet, nearly 50 feet above the record low of 3,198.2 feet in October, 1956. In October, 1964, storage dropped to 3,243 feet, 4.5 feet below the present level, and in September, 1961, the lake storage was 3,237 feet, 10.5 below the present mark.

School Evacuated By Blast; No Damage

Hebron (AP) — An explosion that originated in the heating system at Lincoln Elementary School at Hebron Wednesday caused a three and a half hour evacuation of the 152 students, but there was no damage to the building. School Supt. Ramon Mieth said apparently a malfunction in the control system on the furnace caused a gas accumulation and when the custodian lit the pilot light the explosion occurred.

Good Apple Crop Expected

Nebraska City — Although this year's apple crop here will not be exceptional, area growers expect to have an average size harvest. The last rain started the apples growing again and they're sizing up pretty good, according to Jim Gress, manager of the Catron orchard. Grove Porter said he expects to have a good crop, especially if the orchards get some more rain. Bill Oberdieck, owner and manager of Kimmel orchard, said the apples there are doing beautifully.

Nebraska Gets $31,967 From Forests

Washington (UPI) — Counties in which national forest lands are located have been given a record total of nearly $118 million as their share of receipts from timber sales and other earnings of the forests in the 1974 fiscal year, the U.S. Forest Service announced Thursday. Under forest law, the counties annually get 25% of national forest receipts to compensate them, in effect, for the fact that they cannot earn normal tax revenues from the forest lands. Payment to Nebraska will total $31,967.

NPPD, Pender Sign Agreement

Columbus — The Nebraska Public Power District has signed a 10-year interconnection agreement with the village of Pender. Under terms of the agreement, NPPD will make available to Pender electricity needed as the village's power consumption increases. NPPD will construct six miles of 34.5 kilovolt transmission line from the Cuming County Public Power District facilities to the town's substation. The project is expected to be completed in late 1975.

Two Deaths Raise Traffic Toll To 268

By The Associated Press

The deaths of an Ashton farmer and a Beatrice man have raised Nebraska's 1974 traffic toll to 268, compared with 279 on this date last year.

Sherman County authorities said Edwin Stanczyk, 60, of rural Ashton, was killed Thursday morning when his tractor was struck by a Burlington Northern freight train on a township road about one mile east of Ashton.

Officials said Stanczyk, his son and son-in-law were cutting silage, and that Stanczyk was returning to the field with an empty wagon when the mishap occurred.

Investigators said Stanczyk's tractor had a closed cab, and that Stanczyk probably did not hear the train coming.

Stanczyk's grandson, Jesse Jakubowski, 5, was also in the tractor cab, but was thrown clear of the wreckage. The youth sustained cuts and bruises, and was admitted to a Loup City hospital, where he was listed in satisfactory condition Thursday afternoon.

A Beatrice man, Robert Nies, 20, was killed Wednesday night when his motorcycle collided with a car on Highway 77 in Beatrice.

Investigators said the driver of the car was Donna Kollekowski, 53, also of Beatrice.

Crash Victim's Name Released; Said Tentative

Lexington (UPI) — Dawson County Atty. Willard Weinhold said Thursday night the woman killed in a truck-train accident east of here Labor Day has been tentatively identified as Charlene Ann Carrerro of Moline, Ill.

The woman was believed to be 20 to 25 years old, Weinhold said.

Her husband, Ismel Carrerro, 52, remained unconscious Thursday at the Lexington Community Hospital.

Omaha Considers Ban On 'Nondomestic' Pets

Mayor Edward Zorinsky said, "We've had three complaints about people keeping coyotes in their back yards. I guess some people figure if a police dog is a good watch dog, a coyote is better."

Currently, there is nothing in city law about having a coyote around the house as a pet. But a new ordinance to be introduced to the City Council would put coyotes back in the country.

It would prevent anyone in the city from keeping a "nonpet or nondomestic animal," or bringing one into the city...unless a permit is obtained from the public safety director.

Under the proposal, nonpet animals are defined as everything but a dog, cat, hamster, rabbit, salamander, gerbil, guinea pig, chinchilla, canary, parakeet, turtle or mouse.

Nondomestic animals are anything but a horse, bovine, swine, sheep, goat, mule, donkey, chicken, turkey, fowl, swan or other animal commonly kept for agricultural or commercial purposes.

Lincoln State Cold Spot

The low for Lincoln ties the record low for Sept. 5 last equalled in 1960, the National Weather Service reported.

Other lows across Nebraska were mostly in the 40's and 50's early Thursday.

Friday's forecast for the state calls for partly cloudy skies in the east, sunny in the west. Highs will range from the upper 70's in the east to the low 80's in the west.

Crime Up In 5 Cities, Down In 4

Washington (AP) — Five of Nebraska's 12 largest cities showed noticeable serious crime increases in 1973, according to statistics released Friday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

But four of the cities showed decreases and three stayed virtually the same in "number of offenses known to police" in the FBI's annual Uniform Crime Reports.

North Platte showed the biggest increase in what the FBI calls serious crime, going from 204 incidents in 1972 to 420 in 1973, most of the increase in the larceny-theft category.

Fremont, Kearney and Norfolk remained on more or less equal footing with 1972 and Grand Island, Beatrice, Columbus and Hastings had decreases in numbers of serious crimes.

The FBI's serious crimes list includes seven categories: murder-manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft and auto theft. The total of those seven crime categories makes up the crime index.

Weather Warms; Fair Crowds Don't

The weather warmed up Thursday, slightly; but the Nebraska State Fair crowds didn't . . . not even slightly.

Looking toward a better and financially brighter last few days with the Mac Davis grandstand show and a "Kids Day" Saturday, fair manager Henry Brandt estimated Thursday's attendance at 35,000 — the same as last year. That means the 1974 edition of the fair is still keeping ahead of 1973's.

Concession stand operators aren't so optimistic about, or generous with, crowd estimates. They're still complaining about a no-crowd problem this week, following a "wild" Labor Day weekend where they couldn't keep up with customers.

Fairgoers have until the grandstand show at 7 p.m. Sunday to warm the pocket books of the concessionaires and the carnival. Then the fair becomes an ex.

'Cold Killing Us'

Brandt said at a news conference Thursday that "the cold is killing us" at night. He said crowds are gone by 10 p.m., but that "we might have broken even last night (Wednesday)" on the midway. Cold night temperatures have hurt the rides, especially high ones where chilling customers is a breeze.

Brandt hopes that Saturday's annual Kids Day will help rescue the midway from the cash flow chill. This Saturday, youngsters 16 and under will be allowed in the outside gate for free until 6 p.m. Tickets at the Murphy Brothers midway rides will be half-price for the 16 and under crowd from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Grandstand Show

Brandt is also looking toward singer-song writer Mac Davis to rescue another problem — low gate receipts for the last feature entertainer, trumpeter Doc Severensen, who drew a disappointing two-night crowd Monday and Tuesday.

Davis is at the fair for a one-night stand in front of the grandstand Saturday night beginning at 7:45. Brandt said that Davis has already attracted 8,000 ticket buyers. There are no four dollar seats left; but there are some three dollar ones, Brandt said, and 6,000 general admission seats are still available.

Despite the increase in attendance, midway receipts sag slightly behind 1973, when the fair's share reached $115,961 for the 10 days.

As of Wednesday, Brandt said, gross receipts were down $2,958 from the comparable day in 1973.

The fair's share of the midway receipts is determined by a set scale, Brandt explained. Of the first $25,000 in receipts, the fair receives 35%; for the next $25,000, the fair's share is 40%, and for the next $25,000, the fair takes 45%.

For any receipts over $75,000, the fair's share is 50%.

In the Cornhusker Championship Tractor Pull Thursday night, winners were chosen in seven classes as the souped-up machines hauled a weighted sled over a 325-foot course.

The contest lasted past midnight as several machines not only made the dirt fly but vital parts of their engines too, but in the end the big machine driven by Carol Youngren, Odebolt, Iowa, triumphed in the 12,000-pound stock division.

Other winners in the stock division included Gerry Arends, Paris, Mo., in the 5,000-pound class; Doug Nelson, Wayne, 7,000-pound class, and Carol Youngren, Odebolt, Iowa, 8,000-pound class.

In the hot rod division, Wayne Longnecker, Cambridge, Iowa, won the 5,000-pound class and Robert Ault, Elkhart, Iowa, took top honors for 7,000 pounds.

FFA Judging

In Future Farmers of America (FFA) judging Thursday the spotlight was on the sheep and dairy divisions.

Ann, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Shiner, received $25 and a trophy for top place. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lorenson, Scott will take home a $20 check and a trophy.

Top honors and a gold medal in FFA dairy showmanship went to Kevin Fry, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Fry of Ewing. Kevin showed an aged Holstein he bought this summer from his father's herd.

Second place and a silver medal in showmanship was awarded to Russell Anderson of the Central FFA Chapter. Margie Vandersnick of Ewing took third.

Squirrel Feeder Resigns From White House Post

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — In 1949 when he was 5 years old and living in Washington, Richard Feeney happened into President Harry S. Truman while feeding squirrels in a park. He mentioned to the chief executive that squirrels on the White House lawn appeared ill-fed compared to others. The youngster thereupon received a presidential appointment as Official White House Squirrel Feeder, with no limit on his tenure and no salary.

"Who wanted pay?" said Feeney, now 29 and a newly commissioned naval officer stationed at Atlantic Fleet headquarters here. "It was a lot of fun to feed the squirrels and I went to the White House as often as I could."

He said: "It's a title I've cherished for many years. But there comes a time when one must step down. I plan to write President Ford, telling him of the appointment's existence and perhaps he'll find someone better for the job."

Attempt To Take Coronation Stone From Abbey Foiled

LONDON (AP) — An attempt to steal the coronation stone of ancient Scottish kings from Westminster Abbey was foiled early Thursday by a burglar alarm, a rapid police swoop and the weight of the stone.

Scotland Yard detained three men for what was believed to be a Scottish nationalist attempt to take the sandstone block, called the Stone of Scone, back to Scotland where it is revered as a patriotic symbol. The English keep it under the seat of their coronation chair in the abbey.

England's King Edward I, an implacable foe of the Scots, brought the stone to London in 1296 from Scone Castle near Perth in eastern Scotland.

More than 100 policemen converged on Westminster Abbey minutes after an alarm attached to the stone went off in Scotland Yard's duty room at 12:12 a.m., officers said.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said one man was arrested inside the abbey beside the coronation chair, to which the stone is normally secured by iron staples. Police said the stone had been pried loose and placed on a trolley that collapsed under the 448-pound weight.

The other men were arrested outside the abbey, a spokesman said. But there was speculation they had nothing to do with the attempted theft and would be released.

Scottish nationalists have long demanded the return of the stone and four of them managed to steal it on Christmas Day, 1950. Police found it 109 days later hidden in Arbroath Abbey on Scotland's east coast where Scotland declared its independence from England in 1320.

The stone bears no inscription. But Scottish legend says it groans when the rightful sovereign sits on it, and remains silent beneath a conqueror.

Senate Passes Oil Tanker Bill

Washington (UPI) — Urged to keep oil from being a political weapon, the Senate Thursday approved a bill to require that part of U.S. oil imports be carried in American tankers. The vote was 42 to 28.

Opponents said the bill would add to inflation by increasing the cost of oil. Supporters said it would stimulate American shipbuilding, give jobs to crews, help the balance of trade and help fight pollution.

A somewhat different version has passed the House. The differences likely will be worked out in a conference committee.

Attempt To Take Coronation Stone From Abbey Foiled

LONDON (AP) — An attempt to steal the coronation stone of ancient Scottish kings from Westminster Abbey was foiled early Thursday by a burglar alarm, a rapid police swoop and the weight of the stone.

Scotland Yard detained three men for what was believed to be a Scottish nationalist attempt to take the sandstone block, called the Stone of Scone, back to Scotland where it is revered as a patriotic symbol. The English keep it under the seat of their coronation chair in the abbey.

England's King Edward I, an implacable foe of the Scots, brought the stone to London in 1296 from Scone Castle near Perth in eastern Scotland.

More than 100 policemen converged on Westminster Abbey minutes after an alarm attached to the stone went off in Scotland Yard's duty room at 12:12 a.m., officers said.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said one man was arrested inside the abbey beside the coronation chair, to which the stone is normally secured by iron staples. Police said the stone had been pried loose and placed on a trolley that collapsed under the 448-pound weight.

The other men were arrested outside the abbey, a spokesman said. But there was speculation they had nothing to do with the attempted theft and would be released.

A police officer said of the operation: "It almost came off. Only its (the stone's) sheer weight stopped it from being stolen."

Scottish nationalists have long demanded the return of the stone and four of them managed to steal it on Christmas Day, 1950. Police found it 109 days later hidden in Arbroath Abbey on Scotland's east coast where Scotland declared its independence from England in 1320.

The stone bears no inscription. But Scottish legend says it groans when the rightful sovereign sits on it, and remains silent beneath a conqueror.

Senate Passes Oil Tanker Bill

Washington (UPI) — Urged to keep oil from being a political weapon, the Senate Thursday approved a bill to require that part of U.S. oil imports be carried in American tankers. The vote was 42 to 28.

Opponents said the bill would add to inflation by increasing the cost of oil. Supporters said it would stimulate American shipbuilding, give jobs to crews, help the balance of trade and help fight pollution.

A somewhat different version has passed the House. The differences likely will be worked out in a conference committee.

Lodge News — The "Sunday Journal and Star" has it.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 9-6

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
